Research Log Assignment

Due Wednesday, January 5th 7pm

(please deliver to Williston 424 or send via email to jewing & jboissel)

Spend an hour (_no more_) researching the following question:

“What is it like to be an undergraduate student in a digitally-rich world? What impact does technology have on college life and learning? “

As you conduct your search, keep a log of what resources/tools you used, what terms/words you searched, and a summary of the kinds of things you found. A bulleted list with notes is sufficient; this should be approximately one-page. The goal for this assignment is to get you thinking about how you approach research and be conscious of the paths you take; there are no ‘right or wrong’ answers and capturing both successes and failures will be very important at this stage. Don’t be concerned if after an hour you have not found much to answer this question! We are interested in discussing the process. We understand that students come to this class with very different experiences and will consequently approach the assignment in different ways. We’ll spend the next class session reviewing student logs and sharing.
