This chapter will reflect on the following main themes of my 1973 book Marx on Money, and will discuss the more recent literature and the further development of my own thinking on these key issues: (1) Marx's general theory of money at the beginning of Capital prior to the theory of money in capitalism; (2) money-capital and the financing of capitalist production; (3) Marx's theory credit-money in Volume 3 of Capital; (4) the devalorization of capital; (5) money and prices of production; and (6) money and economic equilibrium.
