Africana Studies

AFCNA-140 When People Met Power: Political Accountability in Africa Before 1750

Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course traces the long history of political accountability in Africa. How did Africans wrest good governance from their leaders? How did they understand civic virtue and social responsibility? What principles of political logic did kingdoms share with societies without kings and royal women? How did gender contribute to structures of authority? What sources and methods enable us to productively approach a period of time distant from our own?
Crosslisted as: HIST-140
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
H. Hanson

AFCNA-181 Introduction to African Diaspora Religions

Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Over the last century, religionists have labored to discover the meaning of African dispersal beyond the continent and its accompanying spiritual lineages. What theories of encounter sufficiently adjudicate the synthetic religious cultures of African-descended persons in North America, South America, and the Caribbean? What are the cross-disciplinary methodologies that scholars utilize to understand African religious cultures in the Western hemisphere? Firstly, this course will introduce the field of Africana religious studies. This background will inform the second and primary objective of the course: thematizing and exploring West and Central African religious traditions housed in the Americas. Crosslisted as: RELIG-181, CST-149AD
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
H. Hanson

AFCNA-200 Foundations of Africana Studies

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This reading- and writing-intensive course draws upon the intellectual traditions of African American, African, and African diasporic studies in order to explore the connections and disjunctures among people of African descent. While the course pays attention to national, regional, and historical contexts, it asks this question: what do African descended people have in common and when and how are their experiences and interests different? What can we glean from contemporary discourses grounded in the consideration of global black lives?
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive
K. Brown

AFCNA-206 African Cities: Development Dreams and Nightmares in the Twentieth Century

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: African cities demonstrate the failure of models of development with the aim and ideal of industrialization. This course examines the empty promises of modernity through the lens of African urban history using fiction, film, and city archives. Beginning with Timbuktu and Cairo, the course explores the emergence and decline of trade entrepots, the rise of colonial cities, and the dilemmas of postcolonial economies and polities. Dar es Salaam, Nairobi, Kampala, Kinshasa, Harare, Johannesburg, Lagos, Accra, and Dakar are among the cities studied. Designed for those seeking only an introduction to development as well as those with further ambitions, it assumes no previous knowledge of Africa.
Crosslisted as: HIST-206
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
H. Hanson

AFCNA-208 Introduction to Twentieth-Century Critical Race Theory

Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the discursive relationship between race, power and law in contemporary U.S. society. Readings examine the ways in which racial bodies are constituted in the cultural economy of American society where citizens of African descent dwell. We explore the rules and social practices that govern the relationship of race to gender, nationality, sexuality, and class in U.S.
courts and other cultural institutions. Thinkers covered include W.E.B. DuBois, Kimberle Crenshaw, Derrick Bell, and Richard Delgado, among others. Crosslisted as: CST-253
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
L. Wilson
Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors
Advisory: Critical Social Thought 248, 249, or 250 recommended but not required

AFCNA-234 Black Metropolis: From MLK to Obama
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Black Metropolis refers to the more than half a million black people jammed into a South Side ghetto in Chicago at mid-twentieth century that featured an entrenched black political machine, a prosperous black middle class, and a thriving black cultural scene in the midst of massive poverty and systemic inequality. This course will follow the political, economic, and cultural developments of what scholars considered to be the typical urban community in postwar United States. We will examine such topics as Martin Luther King's failed desegregation campaign; Harold Washington, first black mayor; William Julius Wilson's urban underclass thesis; and the rise of Barack Obama. Crosslisted as: POLIT-234
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives

AFCNA-241 Topics in Africana Studies

AFCNA-241AF Topics in Africana Studies: 'Afro-Latin America: From Slavery to Invisibility'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Exploration of the history of Afro-Latin American populations since Independence within and outside the nation-state. We will question why and how to study those whose governments define them not as peoples of African descent but as part of a mixed-race majority of Hispanic cultural heritage, who themselves may often have supported this policy, and who may have had compelling reasons to avoid official scrutiny. Readings include early twentieth-century Latin American racialist theorizing; research using census, economic, criminal, and marriage records; autobiographical works, and analysis of race in textual and musical representations of peoples, regions, and nations. Crosslisted as: LATAM-260, HIST-287AF
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
L. Gudmundson

AFCNA-241AW Topics in Africana Studies: 'African Women's Work'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: The power to produce food and reproduce society gave women significant public voice in African societies in the past. But over 200 years they lost that public voice and control over subsistence. Why, when women are still producing food and people, is the social and political voice of women so much less significant than it was before? We explore African women's work of governing, production, and social reproduction across the tumultuous changes of the 20th century. The class seeks to provide an achievable yet challenging set of learning experiences for those who have no prior experience studying Africa, but also for those who have substantial previous engagement with African issues. Crosslisted as: HIST-296AW, GNDST-206AW
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives

AFCNA-241BN Topics in Africana Studies: 'Black Abolitionists: American Revolution to Reconstruction'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Slavery existed throughout the U.S. at the time of the American Revolution; afterwards, gradual emancipation plans freed the children of the formerly enslaved in the northern states. Runaways from the South increased their numbers. These nineteenth-century African Americans built the first edifices of freedom, chiefly through the institutions of family and religion, and furnished both leaders and foot soldiers for the abolitionist movement. They acted in the hope that their efforts would end slavery and bring full citizenship for black people. We will examine their unique contributions to the history of freedom, and the many obstacles they faced as they mobilized for emancipation.

Crosslisted as: HIST-274

AFCNA-241FW Topics in Africana Studies: 'African American Women and United States History'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: How is our understanding of U.S. history transformed when we place African American women at the center of the story? This course will examine the exclusion of African American women from dominant historical narratives and the challenge to those narratives presented by African American women's history through an investigation of selected topics in the field.
Crosslisted as: GNDST-206FW, HIST-280AA
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
M. Renda

AFCNA-241HS Topics in Africana Studies: 'African American History, Precolonial to Emancipation'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course will examine the cultural, social, political, and economic history of African Americans through the Civil War. Topics covered include the African background to the African American experience, the Atlantic slave trade, introduction and development of slavery, master-slave relationships, the establishment of black communities, slave revolts, the political economy of slavery, women in slavery, the experiences of free blacks, the crisis of the nineteenth century, and the effect of the Civil War.
Crosslisted as: HIST-281
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
L. Morgan

AFCNA-241SA Topics in Africana Studies: 'Slavery in the Americas'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: A course, organized topically rather than geographically or nationally, that offers a comparative analysis of African American slavery as a dominant social system in Brazil, the Caribbean, and the U.S. South. Topics include: why slavery?; sugar and slavery; historical demography; culture and the law; kinship and family; long-run economic development; patterns of race relations; master class and racist ideologies; resistance to slavery; and abolition and its aftermath. Readings include historical and anthropological studies, as well as a major documentary collection on slavery in Brazil.
Crosslisted as: LATAM-289, HIST-289
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
L. Gudmundson

AFCNA-243 Rural Prosperity in the African Past
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course seeks to understand what relationships engendered rural prosperity in African communities in the past, and what processes of change have led millions of rural people to abandon their homes and livelihoods to join flows of migrants to cities and other nations. We examine African patterns of production over the long term and the transformation of African agriculture in the last two centuries, considering famine, the social and political organization of access to productive resources, and the relationship of rural and urban communities. We ask how rural prosperity might be recreated in the 21st century.

AFCNA-251 Contemporary African American Literature II
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course will examine African American literature and culture in the postwar period as American identities are coalescing around the concept of the US as a world power. Specifically, our task during the semester will be to discuss the myriad ways black authors and artists attempt to interrogate the structure of racial hegemony by creating poetry and prose meant to expand notions of culture and form. We will also examine music, visual art, and advertisements from this era to have a greater sense of the black experience through various cultural representations. Writers will include James Baldwin, Toni Morrison, Ralph Ellison, Michael S. Harper and bell hooks.

Crosslisted as: ENGL-251
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
K. J. Brown

AFCNA-282 African American History from Emancipation to Obama
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will examine the social, cultural, political, and economic history of African Americans from emancipation and Reconstruction through the present. Emphasis will fall on postwar southern social and economic developments, the rise of segregation, northern migrations, black class stratification, nationalism, the twentieth-century civil rights movement, and current trends in African American political, social, and economic life.

AFCNA-301 The Abolition Movement
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will examine the maturation of North American slave regimes after the American Revolution and the diverse activities of people who worked to abolish slavery. The assorted motives of white opponents of slavery and the actions of both free and enslaved African Americans to achieve freedom will be highlighted. We will analyze the mechanics of biracial coalition building and assess the historical legacy of these activists for subsequent social movements.
Crosslisted as: HIST-301AB

AFCNA-302 Urban Policy
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Gentrification, unemployment, crime, failing schools, disinvestment, mass incarceration--what comes to mind when you think of the inner city? In response to a constrained fiscal environment, cities have increasingly adopted neoliberal policy approaches to address seemingly intractable urban problems. The seminar will study current research to assess the political and economic impact of this neoliberal policy regime on housing, education, and public safety.
Crosslisted as: POLIT-302
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
P. Smith
Restrictions: This course is open to Juniors and Seniors.
Prereq: 8 credits in the department.

AFCNA-308 Luminous Darkness: African American Social Thought After DuBois
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Examines the causes of and proposed solutions to 'the Negro problem' in post-Civil War American public policy. Focuses on the life, work, and legacies of DuBois. Drawing on domestic and diasporic fictional and nonfictional depictions of black life in the 'DuBoisian century' the course considers different responses to his 1903 question, 'How does it feel to be a problem?' Examining theories, arguments, movements and policies targeting blacks and their environment allows us to criticize black modernity, assess the changing role of black intellectuals in society, evaluate 'race theory' and consider dominant and marginal attempts to analyze and overcome the 'color line' in America.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives

AFCNA-321 Politics of Decolonization
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This seminar is a critical exploration of the various processes, accounts and theories of colonialism and decolonization in Africa and the Americas. The aim is to chart alternative paths to rethinking the meaning and impact of these terms. Focusing on the various colonial/imperial tools employed to subjugate, exploit and dominate colonized subjects, we will examine how liberal discourses/structures that are assumed to embody the terms of freedom and sovereignty have now become extensions of the colonial they were initially employed to overcome. The main objective of this course is to explore various approaches to redefining decolonization, noting the changing meaning of colonialism.

AFCNA-339 The Visual Culture of Protest
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines social protests from the perspective of the visual. Examining cultural productions from 1948-2015 we will focus on the geographical specificity of planned and spontaneous protests that have mobilized people into action. We will use a black studies framework to engage the possibilities present in resisting disparate power structures of race, gender, sexuality, class, and region. Artists, musicians, activists, writers, and grassroots organizers of social movements have been ever cognizant of the role of the visual in subverting power structures. We will use this opportunity to place visual culture at the center of a conversation concerning resistance, human rights, political agency, citizenship, and freedom.
Crosslisted as: ENGL-339, CST-339

AFCNA-341 Topics in Africana Studies

AFCNA-341AF Topics in Africana Studies: 'Resist: African American Spiritualities of Dissent'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course seeks to understand how protest fuels the creation and sustenance of black religious movements and novel spiritual systems in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. We will examine the dissentive qualities of selected African American activists, community workers, scholars, spiritual/religious leaders and creative writers. By the end of this course, students will be able to thoughtfully respond to the questions, "What is spirituality?"; "What is dissent?"; and "Has blackness required resistive spiritual communities?"

AFCNA-341CR Topics in Africana Studies: 'Re-imagining the Caribbean' Mechanisms in the Southern Cone of Latin America'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: The Caribbean has been formed through a complex interaction of the peoples of Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin American and the United States. In this introductory, interdisciplinary course we will examine the major issues that have shaped modern Caribbean society, including colonialism, revolution, nationalism, self-determination, transition from agricultural to tourism-based economies, migration, and globalization. Particular attention will be given to Cuba, Haiti, Guyana, Jamaica, Trinidad, Puerto Rico, and the Dominican Republic, but we will also consider relevant examples from other areas of the region.

AFCNA-341EM Topics in Africana Studies: 'The Age of Emancipation'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This colloquium examines the causes and the course of the Civil War, its social, economic, and political results during Reconstruction, and the early roots of both de jure segregation and the civil rights movement. It will examine the process of emancipation from the perspective of social history. Violent conflicts over free labor, the establishment of sharecropping, and the political and economic policies pursued by various groups--freedpeople, ex-masters, northern policymakers, wage laborers, and African American women, for example--will be covered. African American viewpoints and histories will receive particular emphasis.

AFCNA-341PW Topics in Africana Studies: 'Power and Exchange in the African Past'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Did African nations become poorer in the 20th century because development initiatives were badly executed? inherently exploitative? ill-timed? Looking beyond the caricatures of evil colonial officers, lazy peasants, or greedy elites, who do we see engaged in productive activity and what are they doing? What concepts and categories illumine our understanding of their actions? How does a careful exploration of the nature of exchange and production in Africa revise our perception of the global economy in the present? We will explore three centuries of exchange in Africa and elsewhere: students may focus their research on the history of a market in any part of the world.
Crosslisted as: HIST-341PW
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
H. Hanson
Prereq: 8 credits of history or other significant preparatory coursework relevant to the topic.

AFCNA-341TM Topics in Africana Studies: 'Toni Morrison'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course will examine the work and the centralized black world of the last American Nobel laureate in literature, Toni Morrison. Morrison is the author of eleven novels and multiple other works, including nonfiction and criticism. In a career that has spanned over forty years and has informed countless artists and writers, Morrison's expansive cultural reach can hardly be measured accurately. In this course we will endeavor to critically analyze the arc and the import of many of Morrison's writings.
Readings include: The Bluest Eye, Sula, Song of Solomon, Jazz, Playing in the Dark, Paradise, and A Mercy.
Crosslisted as: ENGL-350TM
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
C. Bailey
Prereq: ENGL-199.

AFCNA-351 Sex, Race, and the Visual
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines categories of race, gender, sex, and sexuality through the lens of the visual. Using contemporary literature, photography, performance art, film, and theories of the visual, our task is to investigate the import and utility of embodiment. How do race, gender, and sexuality function in the artistic imaginary? What can we glean from cultural productions that engage the viewer/reader in ways that challenge ideas about conformity, fluidity, belonging, and self-reflection? More than a linear literary or theoretical trajectory, this course will provide a template for all the mechanisms of the visual -- psychological and ocular, interpretive, rhetorical and performative.
Crosslisted as: ENGL-351
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
K. J. Brown
Prereq: ENGL-200.

AFCNA-356 Black Migrations
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This seminar is a comparative examination of the migration of African-descended people within and to the United States. It looks at in succession the original African diaspora through the Atlantic slave trade; the Great Migration of African Americans from the South; the immigration to the U.S. of African-descended people from the West Indies; and last, the movement of Africans from the continent to the United States since 1965 when immigration laws became more inclusive. We will evaluate the process of African Americanization for each new migratory group in all of its cultural and political ramifications. Course material includes articles, books, films, novels, and guest speakers. Crosslisted as: POLIT-356
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
Other attributes: Community-Based Learning
P. Smith
Prereq: AFCNA-200 or POLIT-200.

AFCNA-369 Black Radicalism
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: The struggles and ideas of transatlantic black radicals have changed the ways we think and study--through the formation of Africana/African-American/Black-Studies--and the ways in which we express thoughts and ideas--through culture and politics. In this seminar, we will study the interdisciplinary history of black radicalism in the 20th century--in the United States, the Caribbean, and Africa. This interdisciplinary history is animated by a central debate over the role of black internationalism, if any, in domestic black radical thought and action, in the United States, the Caribbean, and Africa.
Crosslisted as: POLIT-369
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive

ANTHR-105 Introduction to Cultural Anthropology
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Introduces the analysis of cultural diversity, including concepts, methods, and purposes in interpreting social, economic, political, and belief systems found in human societies.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
E. Babül, J. Roth, M. Watson, The department
Restrictions: This course is limited to first years, sophomores and juniors

ANTHR-204 Anthropology of Modern Japan
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Since the mid-nineteenth century, Americans have viewed Japan as the Orient's most exotic and mysterious recess, alternately enticing and frightening in its difference. Intense economic relations and cultural exchange between Japan and the U.S. have not dispelled the image of Japanese society and culture as fundamentally different from our own. In this course, we will strive for greater understanding of shared experiences as well as historical particularities. Issues covered may vary from one semester to another, but frequently focus on work, women, minorities, and popular culture. Films and anthropological works provide ethnographic examples of some key concepts.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
J. Roth

ANTHR-212 Shopping and Swapping: Cultures of Consumption and Exchange
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: We shop for our food, for our clothes, for our colleges. We purchase cars, manicures, and vacations. It seems that there is little that cannot be bought or sold. But we also give and receive gifts, exchange favors, 'go dutch' in restaurants, and invite friends for potlucks. This course examines exchange systems cross-culturally, in order to understand their cultural significance and social consequences. It explores how our own commodity exchange system, which appears to be no more than an efficient means of distributing goods and services, in fact contains intriguing symbolic dimensions similar to the gift exchange systems of Native North America, Melanesia, and Africa.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
J. Roth
Prereq: ANTHR-105.

ANTHR-216 Special Topics in Anthropology

ANTHR-216AF Special Topics in Anthropology: 'Archaeology of Food'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course explores the study of ancient foodways with a focus on how and why humans across the globe began to domesticate plant and animal resources approximately 10,000 years ago. The first half of the course presents the types of archaeological data and analytical methods used to study the "agricultural revolution" in a variety of regions. The second half explores a number of themes within the archaeology of food that investigate the relationship between agriculture and sedentism, food and gender, the politics of feasting, and methods for integrating archaeological and ethnographic approaches to the study of food.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
E. Klarich
Prereq: ANTHR-105.

ANTHR-216AU Special Topics in Anthropology: 'Peoples and Cultures of Indigenous Australia'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Indigenous peoples of Australia have long been objects of interest and imagination by outsiders-for their ceremonial practices, social structures, religious forms, aesthetic expressions, and relationships to land. This course will explore how Aboriginal peoples have struggled to reproduce and represent themselves and their lifeways on their own terms -- via visual media (pigment designs on bark, acrylic paintings on canvas); performances (cultural festivals, plays, other forms); archival interventions (photographic, textual, digital); museum exhibition; and various textual genres (autobiography, fiction, poetry). We will examine "traditional" and "contemporary" productions as all part of culture and culture-making in the present, emphasizing that this is ongoing and intercultural work.

Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
S. Thorner
Prereq: ANTHR-105.

ANTHR-216CA Special Topics in Anthropology:
'Collecting the Past: Art and Artifacts of the Ancient Americas'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Early European explorers, modern travelers, collectors, curators, and archaeologists have contributed to the development of ancient Latin American collections in museums across the globe. This course traces the history of these collecting practices and uses recent case studies to demonstrate how museums negotiate--successfully and unsuccessfully--the competing interests of scholars, donors, local communities, and international law. Students will learn how archaeologists study a variety of artifact types within museum collections and will have the opportunity to conduct independent research projects using pre-Columbian pottery collections from the Mount Holyoke Art Museum.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
E. Klarich
Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors
Prereq: One course in archaeology, anthropology, history of Latin America, museum studies, or art history.

ANTHR-216HP Special Topics in Anthropology:
'Feminist Health Politics'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Health is about bodies, selves and politics. We will explore a series of health topics from feminist perspectives. How do gender, sexuality, class, disability, and age influence the ways in which one perceives and experiences health and the access one has to health information and health care? Are heteronormativity, cissexism, or one's place of living related to one's health status or one's health risk? By paying close attention to the relationships between community-based narratives, activities of health networks and organizations and theory, we will develop a solid understanding of the historical, political and cultural specificities of health issues, practices, services and movements.

ANTHR-216HR Special Topics in Anthropology:
'Anthropology and Human Rights: Between Devil's Advocate and Rights Advocacy'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course explores anthropological approaches to human rights -- a key theme of transnational politics and international law. Anthropologists have contributed to discussions on human rights since the UN Declaration and the field has provided a vibrant platform to analyze ideologies, politics, and practices surrounding human rights. We will survey an array of anthropological studies that approach human rights from the perspective of cultural relativism, contextualization, advocacy, and practice. Students will gain a critical perspective on the seemingly universal rhetoric of human rights by learning how it produces diverse effects in places such as Africa, Latin America, and the Middle East.

ANTHR-216LA Special Topics in Anthropology:
'Anthropology of Latin America'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Latin America has undergone massive political, economic and cultural transformations since the end of the Cold War. Indeed, during the final decades of the twentieth century, much of the region embraced neoliberal governance and free market capitalism. However, by the turn of the millennium, many Latin American governments had made a sharp "turn to the Left," as states began to intervened more directly in the economy, promote alternative imaginings of modernization, and recognize greater rights for Indigenous and Afro-descendent peoples. This course will begin with a focus on these shifts in governance, but largely focuses on the consequences of these changes within people’s everyday lives.

ANTHR-216MG Special Topics in Anthropology: 'Migration Through Film'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The dramatic increase in transnational migrations has prompted new debates over globalization, diversity, and human rights. In these debates, the fate of migrants is defined by competing visions of them as pawns or pioneers, as passive victims or driven agents. This course explores the key role played by film in such representations, comparing and contrasting film to ethnography as a way to relate migrant experiences and understand migration. We look at how documentaries, feature films in local and world cinema, and ethnographies represent decisions to go abroad and the effects of migration on home and host communities. We ask what can be gleaned from these sources, such as: What it is like to be an undocumented migrant or a member of a "second generation"? What we can learn about the conditions of trafficked women or refugees? How do the politics and policies of bordering work. We also explore how geography, citizenship, class, gender, age, ethnicity, race and religion feature in these representations. Students will critically analyze how migrants are represented in film through active class discussions and several written essays.

ANTHR-216NF Special Topics in Anthropology: 'The Anthropology of Food'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Drawing on a holistic, multidisciplinary perspective, this course considers food as a lens through which issues such as gender, family, community, nationality, religion and class can be more deeply understood. Food and drink are examined not only for the biological needs they fill but also in terms of their spiritual and cultural dimensions. We will explore the journey of food production, preparation, distribution and consumption nationally and internationally. Local, national and global networks are analyzed as we examine the role food plays in creating and mediating socioeconomic and political relationships. Food scarcity, security, sovereignty and sustainability are also considered.

ANTHR-216PY Special Topics in Anthropology: 'Anthropology of Play'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: We associate play with childhood, a time of spontaneous and creative activity, in contrast to the boring routine of adult responsibilities. And yet play is more than just fun and games. It is through play that children develop lasting cognitive and social skills. For adults too, there can be serious play -- play that has real consequence -- play that shapes the intimate lives of individuals, as well as entire social formations. In this course, we will explore play cross-culturally, from the Balinese cockfight to American football, from gambling to roll playing. We will design games based on the anthropological readings in order to appreciate the game-like qualities of many domains of life.

ANTHR-216RK Special Topics in Anthropology: 'Risk'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: People in all societies face uncertainty. Dangers, many of our own making, confront us at every turn - in the form of global warming, market collapses, tainted food, epidemics, and accidents at work and on roads. Terrorist attacks and crime have led to the increased control of urban public spaces.
Modern institutions and technologies of risk (probability, insurance, audits, sundry regulation) strive to tame chance, to make it manageable, and even potentially profitable, and have contributed to emergent cultures of risk. In this course, we examine these technologies of risk and associated cultural forms, in relation to other means by which people have dealt with uncertainty in the past.

ANTHR-230 Language in Culture and Society
Offered: Fall  | Credits: 4
Description: Language is integral to human experiences across cultures. Interpersonal communication holds social worlds together, lending them significance. This course examines language as a complex, embodied field of cultural practice and performance. It bridges core concepts within linguistic anthropology and semiotics -- such as relativity, indexicality, performance, and language ideology -- with critical analyses of social fields including race, gender, and sexuality. Illustrative examples are drawn from Western and non-Western societies.

Description: This course examines global health disparities and the unequal distribution of disease, focusing on the health consequences of poverty, structural violence, and globalization. In addition, we critically examine the foundations of global humanitarianism and the complexities, constraints, and prospects for working collaboratively across borders to resolve global health problems. Readings will address how global health is constructed and represented, and why humanitarian endeavors (charitable, philanthropic, NGO, religious, etc.) have emerged as the preferred manner of addressing global health problems in the contemporary era.

ANTHR-246 Magic, Witchcraft, and Religion
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  | Credits: 4
Description: Religion counts among anthropology’s most central and enduring areas of interest. This course traces a history of anthropological attention to belief and ritual from the nineteenth century to the present. We will read classic and contemporary ethnographic studies of religious systems, covering topics that include spirits and animism, totemism, magic, witchcraft, mythology, taboo, sacrifice, orthodoxy and orthopraxy, religion and modernity, and secularism. The course will scrutinize "religion" itself as a cultural and analytical category, and it will question how an anthropological perspective alters perceptions of the global politics of religion today.

ANTHR-247 Anthropology, Experience, and the Mind
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: In this course, we will explore new frontiers in psychological anthropology to ask questions about the foundations of human experience. What are the boundaries between the universal and the constructed, nature and culture, the ordinary and the extraordinary? In what ways is our thinking along such lines conditioned, as scholars and as social actors more generally? And are there means to break habituated ways of knowing to arrive at fresh insight into our own ways of being and that of others? These questions, among others, will be examined through ethnographic writings, science fiction and literary accounts, film, and cross-disciplinary work from physicists and cognitive scientists. Topics will include local theory of mind, notions of the self, karma and nonlinear time, and varying modes of spiritual experience.

Description: This seminar will focus on emerging innovations in the development, use and governance of reproductive and genetic technologies (RGTs). How do novel developments at the interface of fertility treatment and biomedical research raise both new and enduring questions about the 'naturalness' of procreation, the politics of queer families, the im/possibilities of disabilities, and transnational citizenship? Who has a say in what can be done and for which purposes? We will engage with ethnographic texts, documentaries, policy statements, citizen science activist projects, and social media in order to closely explore the diversity of perspectives in this field.

ANTHR-316LA Special Topics in Anthropology: 'Race and Religion in Latin America'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: The course will begin with an investigation of the proto-racial and religious categories through which Europeans in the early modern era understood human difference. From there, we will trace how these notions were re-conceptualized in the centuries following the encounter between Europeans, Africans, and the Indigenous Peoples of the Americas. As we examine this history -- including the emergence of slavery, eugenics, mestizaje, and Liberation Theology -- we will pay particular attention to how interwoven racial and religious hierarchies were both constructed and resisted. The final section of the course will concentrate on the contemporary entanglements of race and religion in the region.

ANTHR-316ME Special Topics in Anthropology: 'Anthropology of the Political in the Contemporary Middle East'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This seminar focuses on anthropological studies of how power - both in its open and hidden forms - manifests itself and shapes everyday life in the contemporary Middle East. It explores how authority is established and contested in various domains including bureaucracy and the state; sexuality and the family; religion and civil society; markets and the media. We will trace how experiences of colonization, imperialism, modernization, nationalism, capitalism, occupation, war and revolt mold the conditions of living for peoples of the Middle East. We will also examine how specific forms of knowledge production attribute coherence to the region, allowing its imagination as an object of intervention in the name of development and security.

We will then see how anthropologists contributed to the study of law by conceptualizing it as part of larger socio-political processes and as a field that includes social relations, processes, and practices. The students will learn how some key legal issues such as dispute management, decision making, and reconciliation are actualized in diverse cultural and social settings, to think critically and evaluate legal processes in a multicultural setting and in plural societies.

ANTHR-316SE Special Topics in Anthropology: 'Anthropology of Secularism'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: What is secularism? For many of us, the answer is obvious: the world without religious belief, or the separation of church and state, or even the "really real" world. In recent years, scholars in number fields have begun to question these common sense notions about secularism. In this course, we will investigate this rapidly expanding literature and the critical lines of inquiry it has opened up: Under what specific cultural and historic conditions did secularism first emerge? Is secularism experienced today in the same way throughout the world? If not, how do they vary? What ways of being and living does secularism encourage or allow to flourish? Description: What makes a home feel like home? What makes a neighborhood feel alive and vibrant? Architects and urban planners develop elaborate designs meant for specific kinds of human uses, and yet we find that people often use spaces for purposes quite different from those that planners intended. In this course, we will explore the ways in which people dwell in the abstract spaces of planners, turning them into inhabited places. We will also explore the ways that people navigate through and between these spaces that have been compartmentalized into politically and socially bounded units. A variety of theoretical perspectives will be applied in diverse cultural cases to better understand the ways in which peoples inhabit the world.

ANTHR-316WC Special Topics in Anthropology: 'Writing Capitalism's Ruins'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: There's a low buzz; we feel nervous. Is this capitalism's end? Have zombie silhouettes hit the horizon yet? Keep checking. Anthropology narrates collective feelings, gives form to the ambience. But what's the ambience of late industrialism; what's it feel like to collapse? As we watch factory buildings crumble, we wonder whether the tap water's clean. The question of how to write the world (anthropologically-speaking) must also be a question of how to survive, thrive, and even flourish. Archaeologists have long explored decadence, collapse, and ruins. Cultural anthropologists now find themselves in the archaeologists' shoes. Drawing from archaeology, cultural anthropology, ecology, and literary theory, this course will be an open-ended, writing-oriented examination of contemporary experiences of ruins and ruination. One area of focus is the effects of capitalism and post-industrialism on people of color and non-English speakers in North America.

Or is it tinkering, experimentation? This course offers an advanced introduction to cultural and anthropological studies of science. Through careful readings of work in areas such as the sociology of scientific knowledge, actor-network theory, feminist science studies, and affect theory, we will explore the sciences as complex systems of cultural production. Architectural Studies

ARCH-201 Introduction to Architecture
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course introduces the many facets of architecture: history, theory, and design of buildings, landscapes, and cities. In addition to surveying architecture from the earliest forms of human habitation to contemporary residences, the course introduces basic analytical skills of architectural representation. Students will develop skills of speaking and writing about architecture, while also learning basic design tools: the sketch, map, plan, elevation, materials study, and landscape setting. Guest architects and theorists will introduce design topics and work with students preparing drawings and designs that are evaluated on effort and realization, not on proficiency.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

Restrictions: This course is limited to First-year and Sophomore students.

ARCH-205 Introduction to Architecture

ARCH-205AD Introduction to Architecture: 'Design'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This studio course will be a design investigation of a particular theme in or approach to architecture and the built environment. Students will develop and apply traditional and contemporary architectural skills (sketches, plans, elevations, models, computer diagramming, and various modes of digital representation) to interdisciplinary and socially pertinent design problems. Creative and indexical study and analysis will be used to generate and foster a broad range of concepts and language to solve architectural issues involving site, construction, inhabitation, function, form, and space. Our goal is to apply creative techniques in art and sculpture to the creation of meaningful space.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
N. Darling
Advisory: One semester of design or drawing is recommended
Notes: Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of materials.

ARCH-225 Intermediate Studies in Architectural Design

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course introduces students to contemporary digital design tools in order to better communicate fundamental architectural ideas. Students engage with CAD, 3D modeling, and 2D visualization techniques in Rhino 5 and Adobe CC, ultimately becoming an integral part of their creative design process. Students become proficient in digital drawing and modeling as they craft a short series of cumulative design exercises focusing on the tectonics and articulation of architectural surfaces. Skills are introduced and expanded, but more importantly, students learn to navigate the virtual environment that now more than ever influences a designer’s disciplinary interests and creative processes.

Advisory: One semester of Drawing I, design, or sculpture is recommended.

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This studio/lecture course explores the ecology of nature's architecture and human-built environments as we "study our living place", and let the ecology of place guide design. Students will closely observe and analyze individual and collective environments and landscapes, case-study examples, ecosystems, wildlife, habitats, and human spaces of form and function. Students will utilize whole-systems thinking, knowledge of environmental issues, Earth elements and the biosphere to better understand and creatively build resilient, environmentally responsible design plans. This interdisciplinary course will be active with literature, group discussions, individual and group work/presentations; and will include outdoor, creative and hands-on activities. Students will expand as ecological designers through weekly journals, visual exercises/sketching, mapping, palette and site-design challenges and projects.

ARCH-225ED Intermediate Studies in Architecture: 'Environmental Principles'

Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4

Description: This hybrid studio addresses human comfort with lectures and problem work sessions integrated with design projects. We start with an in-depth study of the world’s climate regions, the sun, and the earth’s tilt and spin. Primary methods of heat transfer are investigated as students research two architectural solutions (vernacular and contemporary) within each climate. Using daylight, the sun’s movement, and sun-path diagrams students will design, draw and build a functioning solar clock. Issues in day-lighting and thermal comfort will then drive an extended design problem. Students will be asked to solve numerical problems and present design solutions using both drawings and models.

ARCH-305CS Advanced Topics in Architecture: 'Capstone Studio'

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4

Description: This studio provides a structured creative environment for students to explore and design in both an individual and collaborative setting. Students develop their own individual design projects, identifying their approach, then executing their creative acts throughout the semester. This course is highly interdisciplinary in nature, yet designed for students developing projects in various areas of architecture and design, environmental studies, and urban planning. Discussion and writing are integral to this studio. The semester culminates in a collective exhibition. Students must have an individual project in mind or in progress at the start of the term.

ARCH-305TC Advanced Topics in Architecture: 'Technologies of Architectural Design'

Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4

Description: This seminar investigates the role of technology in the design of buildings in the pre-modern world. We will perform the layout of a medieval church plan employing geometric procedures, follow the development of drawing in conception and construction, and consider structural innovation as a response to changing functional and imaginative demands. Using digital software and the facilities of the Makerspace, we will explore the possibilities technology offers for the analysis, reconstruction, and presentation of historical architecture.

ARTH-100 Image and Environment

ARTH-100PW Image and Environment: 'The Power of Images'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Bombarded daily by thousands of images, we often lack sufficient visual literacy to understand fully how they shape our reality. The course explores roles that images have played in earlier cultures and in our own, how people view, analyze, and articulate their understanding of the visual world. Topics include living statues, votive offerings, voodoo figures, relics, idolatry, iconoclasm, propaganda, and censorship.

ARTH-100SE Image and Environment: 'Ways of Seeing'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course explores how artists, images, and objects have sparked revolution, defined identity, changed how people think and act, reflected and made history. We will examine moments of major change in the arts through close attention to specific themes, individuals, and works from the last seven centuries. The goal is not a fact-filled, comprehensive, strictly chronological overview, but rather an understanding of the ways in which the western visual legacy has profoundly shaped how we see the world around us.

ARTH-100WA Image and Environment: 'Western Art: 1400-2000'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: An introduction to painting, sculpture, and architecture in Europe and America from the Renaissance to the present. Classes are organized around five focused topics: Renaissance Florence; the artist in the seventeenth century; art and revolution; nineteenth-century abstraction. Lectures will be complimented by class discussion and short films.

ARTH-101 The Built Environment
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course surveys architecture from the ancient world to the present as both a functional response to human activity and as a medium that expresses cultural values. In the service of domestic life, religious ritual, political agendas, commerce, and leisure, architecture reflects and shapes the natural environment, technology, economics, and aesthetic taste. While the history of Western architecture constitutes the primary touchstone, we will pursue themes that include buildings, cities, and sites from around the world.

ARTH-105 Arts of Asia
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This multicultural course introduces students to the visual arts of Asia from the earliest times to the present. In a writing- and speaking-intensive environment, students will develop skills in visual analysis and art historical interpretation. Illustrated class lectures, group discussions, museum visits, and a variety of writing exercises will allow students to explore architecture, sculpture, painting, and other artifacts in relation to the history and culture of such diverse countries as India, China, Cambodia, Korea, and Japan.

ARTH-202 Talking Pictures: An Introduction to Film
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Some of the best feature-length films of the past century have commanded our attention and imagination because of their compelling artistry and the imaginative ways they tell stories visually and verbally. This course closely studies narrative films from around the world, from the silent era to the present, and in the process it introduces students to the basic elements of film form, style, and narration.
Some of the films to be considered are: Broken Blossoms, Battleship Potemkin, Citizen Kane, Contempt, The Bicycle Thief, Ugetsu, Rear Window, Woman in the Dunes, The Marriage of Maria Braun, Days of Heaven, and Moulin Rouge.

ARTH-230 Italian Renaissance Art
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This survey outlines the arts in Italy from the late thirteenth to sixteenth centuries, a time of major cultural transformation. To trace these developments, we will take a geographic approach, focusing on cities and societies in order to understand the diverse social networks that linked artists like Leonardo da Vinci and Michelangelo with their publics. We will also address themes such as the role of women in the arts as both patrons and producers; the rise of print; and the expanding networks of cross-cultural contact that linked Italian cities like Florence, Rome, and Venice to places throughout western Europe and beyond.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
J. Maier
Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors

ARTH-231 Northern Renaissance Art
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course covers the arts in Northern Europe during a time of upheaval. We will look at developments in panel painting, manuscript illumination, printmaking, and sculpture from the fourteenth to sixteenth centuries—examining shifting patterns of patronage and production along with shifting styles, techniques, and media. We will consider major artists like Jan van Eyck, Albrecht Durer, and Pieter Bruegel, as well as seismic cultural shifts such as the print revolution, the emergence of the woman artist, the Reformation, and the origins of the art market.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
C. Andrews
Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors

ARTH-233 Renaissance and Baroque Architecture in Italy
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course focuses on architecture in Italy—including churches, palaces, villas, and fortifications, as well as city planning—from 1400 to 1700. In this period, architects took their cues from the classical tradition even as they carved out their own territory, developing new techniques and perfecting old ones to realize their designs. We will trace shifting architectural practice through key figures from Brunelleschi to Bernini, and through the lens of larger cultural forces. We will also examine buildings in light of the painted and sculpted decorative programs that were often integral to their overall effect.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
J. Maier
Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors
Advisory: First-year students may seek permission if they have 4 credits in Art History.

ARTH-236 The Global Renaissance
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The traditionalist view of the Renaissance treats Europe as if it were an isolated hotbed of cultural innovation. This course will reconsider the period as one of intensifying crosspollination, when European artists were deeply affected by contact with the Near and Far East, Africa, and the Americas. Specific topics will include representations of distant lands and peoples; the collecting of exotic materials; cartography and expanding world horizons; Venice and the Ottoman world; and the reception of classical architecture in Latin America. We will consider many facets of Renaissance visual culture--from paintings and buildings to maps, prints, and illustrated books--that framed these global crosscurrents.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
J. Maier
Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors

ARTH-242 History of Photography: The First Hundred Years
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course surveys the first century of photography, beginning with its putative birth in 1839 and following its shifts and turns until the eve of World War II. We will look at a variety of photographic types: the daguerreotype, calotype, tintype, albumen and gelatin silver prints. We will assess a range of practices: studio portraiture, commercial pictures, vernacular photography, journalism, and the fine arts. And we will follow camerawork in a variety of settings: Canada, China, England, France, Mexico, Russia, and the U.S.

ARTH-243 Architecture 1890-1990

ARTH-243AR Architecture 1890-1990: 'Building the Modern Environment'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: An exploration of major movements and personalities in architecture from the late nineteenth century to the present. Emphasizing the United States against the background of European developments, the course considers the search by architects, including Frank Lloyd Wright, Le Corbusier, and Frank Gehry, for a language of form and space that captures the contemporary spirit as it elevates society to a higher plane of existence. Discussion focuses on issues of technology and utopia, the skyscraper, and the collision of tradition, modernity, and postmodernism in architecture since 1945.

ARTh-244 Global Modernism
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the great ruptures in late 19th and early 20th century art that today we call modernist. It relates aspects of that art to the equally great transformations outside the studio: political revolution, the rise and consolidation of industrial capitalism, colonization and its discontents, and world war. It compares different kinds of modernisms, including those in Austria, France, Germany, Mexico, Spain and Russia.

ARTh-245 Art of Cold War Modernity
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course traces the different paths of painting, sculpture, and photography in the U.S. and Western Europe between 1945 and 1989, between the end of World War II and the fall of the Berlin Wall. We will follow the 'crisis of modernism,' the rise of post-modernism, and the effects of geopolitical tension on the visual arts.

ARTh-262 Arts of Japan
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course explores the special characteristics of Japanese art and architecture, from the early asymmetry of Jomon pottery and the abstraction of Haniwa figures to the later elite arts of the aristocratic, military, and merchant classes: narrative scroll painting, gold-ground screens, and the 'floating world' of the color woodblock print. A historical survey of the arts of Japan, highlighting the interplay of art with religious and political issues.

ARTh-263 Arts of India
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The multicultural course will survey architecture, sculpture, painting, and other arts of India from the earliest times to the twenty-first century. Students will explore the various arts as material expressions of a relationship between religious beliefs, geography and cultural conditions of the subcontinent of India in different historical periods. Class sessions will also provide opportunities for an examination of cross-cultural issues relating to the study of non-Western art in a Western academic discipline. Students will develop strategies for visual analysis and critical thinking through written assignments, class discussions, and close reading of scholarly articles.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives

ARTh-271 Arts of Islam: Book, Mosque, and Palace
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Through investigation of major works produced in the Muslim world between the seventh and seventeenth centuries from Spain to India, this course explores the ways in which art and architecture were used to embody the faith, accommodate its particular needs, and express the power of its rulers. Topics include the calligraphy of the Qur’an, illustrated literature, the architecture of the mosque, and the aristocratic palace.

ARTH-290 Issues in Art History

ARTH-290AP Issues in Art History: 'Ancient Painting and Mosaic'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: The course treats the themes, techniques, and contexts of painting and mosaic in the ancient Mediterranean. From Bronze Age palaces to early Byzantine churches, surfaces were embellished with frescoes, pebbles, glass and jewels.
These might be rendered in complex geometric shapes or with mythological scenes. Portable vases displayed elegantly drawn figures. We will examine the unique effects of each medium by working with original objects in the Mount Holyoke College Art Museum.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
B. Bergmann
Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors
Advisory: Some exposure to the classical world of Greece and Rome or art history.

ARTH-290BC Issues in Art History: 'Bollywood: A Cinema of Interruptions'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Indian popular film, known commonly as Bollywood, is usually understood to have weak storylines interrupted with overblown cinematic spectacles and distracting dance numbers. The course explores the narrative and visual structure of Bollywood for what scholar Lalitha Gopalan has called a "constellation of interruptions." We will analyze a selection of films closely, read scholarly articles, participate in debates, write guided assignments, and pursue independent research papers. We will learn to develop provocative historical and theoretical approaches to Indian films both, as a vibrant cultural form as well as intelligent filmmaking that challenges us and contributes to our understanding of world cinema.

ARTH-290CM Issues in Art History: 'Classical Myth in Ancient Art'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: The aim of the course is to acquaint students with the stories of gods and mortals represented in Greek and Roman art. We will examine visual modes of storytelling in sculpture, mosaic, fresco, lamps, and gems. In which contexts did such stories appear, why, and what do we know about their reception among ancient viewers?

ARTH-290CR Issues in Art History: 'The City of Rome
From Romulus to Constantine'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: A detailed survey of the archaeology of the city of Rome from its origin in the early Iron Age to the beginning of the fourth century CE. The principal monuments and architectural development of the ancient city will be discussed against a broader cultural and historical background, with an emphasis on the powerful families and individuals responsible for the shaping of the urban landscape, and the specific social and political circumstances that gave the monuments meaning.

ARTH-290FM Issues in Art History: 'American Films
That Matter'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Certain American films stand out as works of art by combining strong narrative structure with striking visual presence. Ten of those films, from the silent era to the present, will be studied. In addition to weekly discussion, students will be responsible for analyzing opening sequences. Among the films to be considered are: The Grapes of Wrath, It's a Wonderful Life, Sunset Boulevard, Touch of Evil, Vertigo, Chinatown, Blade Runner, Do the Right Thing, and Beasts of the Southern Wild.

Crosslisted as: FLMST-270FM

ARTH-290PM Issues in Art History: 'Pompeii'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Buried in the volcanic eruption of 79 CE, Pompeii provides an astounding level of preservation for fresco, sculpture, and luxury arts in addition to temples, baths, houses, shops, theaters, and streets. The rediscovery of the ancient site since the eighteenth century had a significant impact upon European art and literature. The course examines the surviving environment and artifacts created in the late republic and early empire and considers the history of archaeological and art historical methods and the romantic visions of Pompeii in art, theatre, and film up to the present.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
B. Bergmann
Advisory: Some exposure to the classical world of Greece and Rome or art history.

ARTH-290TH Issues in Art History: 'The City of Athens from Theseus to Alaric'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: A detailed survey of the principal surviving monuments and the overall architectural development of the city of Athens from its origins in the Bronze Age to the end of the 4th century C.E. The archaeological evidence will be discussed against a broader cultural and historical background, with an emphasis on the specific people and events that helped to shape the city and the general social and political circumstances that gave the monuments meaning.

ARTH-300 Seminar

ARTH-300CR Seminar: 'Critical Approaches to Art Historical Study'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Intended as a kind of 'boot camp' for Art History majors, this course gives a major overview of the field, its methods, and its professional possibilities. Students will design their own research projects, conceptualize exhibitions, and hear from professionals working in various sectors of the art world. They will hone their research, writing, and speaking skills, while learning what it means to interpret art through lenses such as formalism, Marxism, gender, and postcolonialism. Students will also write applications for internships, jobs, and graduate programs—the goal being to consider how the art history skills they have acquired as undergraduates can translate into life after college, in the art world and beyond.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive; Writing-Intensive
J. Maier
Restrictions: This course is open to Juniors and Seniors.
Prereq: 8 credits in Art History.

ARTH-301 Topics in Art History

ARTH-301DE Topics in Art History: 'Destroying Art Past and Present'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course, we will investigate the destruction of artworks and monuments for religious or political reasons, called iconoclasm. The seminar addresses the current debates involving the removal and destruction of confederate monuments in the U.S. and responses from government, media, and social critics. Concurrently, we will study key historical moments of iconoclasm ranging from the Byzantine era to the Protestant Reformation and the French Revolution. Studying iconoclasms in different historical periods raises the issue of the power of art in society. Through class discussion, group work, original research, and writing, we will explore how past iconoclasms may inform our understanding of the present. The work also involves an inquiry into art historical methodology as well as approaches from fields such as critical race theory, and a consideration of the role of the art historian in the present debates and social justice movements. Crosslisted as: RELIG-331DE

ARTH-301FS Topics in Art History: 'Founding Sisters: The Origins of College Collections'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The seminar explores the early history of liberal arts college collections and the pioneering women who founded them. Research in the college archives and museum and department files will supply answers to how and when marble sculpture, plaster casts, and scientific specimens came to Mount Holyoke. The course illuminates a major, forgotten role of women in shaping of the liberal arts in the late 19th and 20th centuries. Final projects will culminate in a virtual exhibition and WordPress site that will be linked to museum and department websites.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
B. Bergmann
Prereq: 8 credits in Art History.

ARTH-301TC Topics in Art History: 'Technologies of Architectural Design'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This seminar investigates the role of technology in the design of buildings in the pre-modern world. We will perform the layout of a medieval church plan employing geometric procedures, follow the development of drawing in conception and construction, and consider structural innovation as a response to changing functional and imaginative demands. Using digital software and the facilities of the Makerspace, we will explore the possibilities technology offers for the analysis, reconstruction, and presentation of historical architecture.

ARTH-302 Great Cities

ARTH-302PA Great Cities: 'Reimagining Paris'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This seminar studies medieval Paris, the largest city in Europe, royal capital of France, and home to a renowned university. We meet the city through its surviving buildings, visual arts, and literature. Using digital tools we will reconstruct key lost buildings in a process that casts participants in the role of builder, demands careful evaluation of evidence and encourages creative imagination.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
M. Davis
Restrictions: This course is open to Juniors and Seniors.
Prereq: 8 credits in Art History, Computer Science, or Medieval Studies.

ARTH-310 Seminar in Ancient Art

ARTH-310CA Seminar in Ancient Art: 'Collecting Global Antiquity'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The seminar considers the collecting and display of ancient objects from antiquity to the present. We will look at current and past controversies about plunder and cultural patrimony. Students will engage in firsthand study of objects and trips to museum collections will offer opportunities to assess installations of antiquities in modern settings. A focus will be an exciting new gift to the Mount Holyoke College Art Museum of artifacts from Afghanistan, which introduce issues of cross-cultural exchange along the Silk Route. Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

ARTH-310RL Seminar in Ancient Art: 'Roman Luxury'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: The conquest of the Mediterranean introduced a spectacular array of precious materials, flora, and fauna into Rome, and wealthy homeowners spared no expense in collecting and displaying exotica and virtuoso feats of artistry, many accomplished by captive Greeks. The seminar explores patterns of consumption in houses, villas, and sanctuaries in the late Republic and early Empire, and how they were sustained by slave labor, political affiliations, and land ownership. Focus will be on spring exhibition at Smith College, "Leisure and Luxury in the Age of Nero", and on original works of art in our own museum.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

Prereq: Courses in art history, classics, or ancient history.

ARTH-332 Seminar in Renaissance and Baroque Art

ARTH-332DV Seminar in Renaissance and Baroque Art: 'Leonardo da Vinci'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Leonardo da Vinci ushered in the High Renaissance in painting and established an archetype for the visionary that persists to this day. Artist, architect, military engineer, scientist, and author, he has been credited with inventing the helicopter and corkscrew, not to mention new modes of representation. His best known works—the Mona Lisa, the Last Supper, the Vitruvian Man—were among the foremost icons of western culture. In this seminar, our goal is to look at these paradigms, and Leonardo himself, with fresh eyes. By peering into the mind and achievements of one extraordinary individual, we will open a window onto the broader intellectual and artistic concerns of the Renaissance.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
J. Maier
Restrictions: This course is open to Juniors and Seniors.
Prereq: 8 credits in art history.

ARTH-340 Seminar in Modern Art

ARTH-340AM Seminar in Modern Art: After Impressionism'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This seminar focuses on the works of Seurat, Gauguin, van Gogh, and Toulouse-Lautrec and the feverish debates about painting in the 1880s and 1890s that the previous generation of Impressionists had brought about. Although sometimes called 'Post-Impressionists,' the four were hardly a unified group, took distinct paths away from the main lines of avant-garde expression, and pursued projects that had limited allegiance to the ideas and practices of the others.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

ARTH-342 Seminar in Contemporary Art

ARTH-342GC Seminar in Contemporary Art: 'Curating Global Contemporary Art'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Contemporary art belongs to a global exchange of ideas, requiring models for understanding its value beyond countries of origin. Museums and galleries regularly showcase artworks from different continents to signal historical interconnections. The course explores the challenges or curating contemporary art. We will study existing curatorial practices, and examine the role of small exhibitions as well as large international art fairs in creating an interlinked, international art community. We will work closely with the Mount Holyoke College Art Museum, and develop exhibition strategies to foreground the global aspect of contemporary art.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
A. Sinha
Restrictions: This course is open to Juniors and Seniors. Prereq: 8 credits in Art History.

ARTH-350 Seminar in American Art

ARTH-350FW Seminar in American Art: 'The Architecture of Frank Lloyd Wright'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This seminar will explore Frank Lloyd Wright's 60-year career in architecture. We will pay particular attention to ways in which he handled form, space, and structure to frame human activity and to create a modern American style. We will also explore the social implications of Wright's approach to domestic design and community planning.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
M. Davis
Restrictions: This course is open to Juniors and Seniors. Prereq: 8 credits in art history or architectural studies.

ARTH-360 Seminar in Asian Art

ARTH-360BC Seminar in Asian Art: 'Bollywood: A Cinema of Interruptions'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: How are we to respond to Indian popular film, which is notorious for its distracting song and dance numbers, meandering story line, and visually overblown spectacles? This seminar will develop historical and theoretical approaches to Indian films as what scholar Lalitha Gopalan calls a 'constellation of interruptions.' Students will examine feature films in class, write critical papers on scholarly essays, and pursue independent research projects on various aspects of Indian film.

ARTST-120 Drawing I

ARTST-120BV Drawing I: 'Observation, Practice, and Experience'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: An intensive practice of observational drawing will challenge common assumptions about how the world is seen and has implications for all aspects of imagination and critical thought. The course will focus on the foundational elements of space, line, tone, value, vision, and the body. It will utilize multiple drawing techniques, tools, materials, and scales, and it will engage in rigorous observation to tap the analytic and expressive capacities of the medium. Studio investigations will be supplemented with critiques, lectures and demonstrations. The work of relevant historical and contemporary artists will be examined.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
G. Siepel
Advisory: No previous studio experience required. A student may take only one ARTST-120 or ARTST-131.
Notes: Along with ARTST-116 and ARTST-131, this 120 course will function as a prerequisite course for 200-level studio art courses. Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of course materials.

ARTST-120VE Drawing I: 'Visual Exploration'
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: An introduction to both the technical and conceptual aspects of drawing as a primary tool for visual expression and analysis. Art historical contexts as well as the dialogue between the arts and other disciplines will be considered. Emphasis is placed on learning to see, and to think visually.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

ARTST-120FR Drawing I: 'Form, Structure, and Space'
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This intensive drawing course will challenge students' assumptions about the world around them. The course will begin from the beginning, using an embodied connection to the tools of drawing to explore foundational elements of space, line, plane, surface, and tone. This course is grounded in hands-on methods where students will work with a variety of drawing media to tap into both the analytic and expressive capacities of the medium. Students will draw extensively from live figure models.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
G. Siepel
Advisory: No previous studio experience required. A student may take only one ARTST-120 or ARTST-131.

ARTST-131SE Studio Art Foundations: 'Seeing, Making, and Being'
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This hands-on interdisciplinary introduction to the tools and practices of 2D, 3D, and 4D art will encompass multiple approaches including drawing, sculptural construction, site-specificity, and video. Students will undertake conceptual exploration in conjunction with formal and technical skill-building and interdisciplinary dialogue. Studio work will be supplemented with critiques, discussion, collaboration, and research, as well as study of relevant contemporary and historical artists.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
G. Siepel
Advisory: No previous studio experience is required. A student may take only one ARTST-120 or ARTST-131.
Notes: Along with ARTST-116 and ARTST-120, this 131 course will function as a prerequisite course for 200-level studio art courses. Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of course materials.

ARTST-137 Topics in Studio Art

ARTST-137SC Topics in Studio Art: 'Scene Design I'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: An introduction to the art and work of the set designer in the performing arts. Students will learn how a designer approaches a script, how this work impacts a production, and what means are used in the execution of the process. They will learn how to develop their own visual imaginations and how to create visual concepts through discussions, renderings, models and some hand drafting. No previous experience in theatre, performance, or the visual arts is required.

ARTST-226AR Topics in Studio Art: 'Painting: Abstraction to Representation'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Students in this course will explore pictorial strategies that were first developed by abstract painters but have provoked significant shifts within representational painting as well-such as color field painting, process painting, and conceptual abstraction. After examining the history of such approaches, students will use them to develop personal projects that may be abstract, representational, or somewhere in between. Special attention will be paid to the metaphorical potential of materials and to developing personal approaches to color.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
J. Rhoads
Prereq: ARTST-120 or ARTST-131.
Advisory: Five College students require permission of instructor to enroll
Notes: Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of course materials.

ARTST-226DH Topics in Studio Art: 'Printmaking/Digital Hybrid'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course will explore several ways by which to integrate digital techniques with printmaking by hand. Using Adobe Photoshop and Illustrator, students will incorporate digital methods to develop their imagery but ultimately will print their final work using traditional processes. Students will learn the basics of each technique before moving onto those using digital intervention. Processes studied in depth will include relief and engraving on wood, collographs, and using the laser-cutter to create hand-cut stencils and matrixes for a variety of monoprint techniques.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
A. Maciuba
Prereq: ARTST-120 or ARTST-131.

ARTST-236 Painting I
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course introduces the basic principles and techniques of painting. Students will learn to use a variety of painting tools, to accurately see and mix colors, to analyze surface qualities, and to prepare supports. Working primarily from direct observation, they will strive to articulate form, to capture spatial relationships, to create purposeful compositions, and to make meaningful images. Subjects will include still life, figure, interiors, and the landscape.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
J. Rhoads
Prereq: ARTST-120 or ARTST-131.
Advisory: Five College students require permission of instructor to enroll
Notes: Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of course materials.

ARTST-237 Painting II

ARTST-237DV Painting II: 'Development and Exploration'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Through a series of increasingly complex color, spatial, and compositional problems, this course consolidates and builds upon the principles and techniques studied in Painting I. Students use these skills to establish their own lines of inquiry, and to explore the formal and conceptual issues that arise from them. To this end, course assignments require increasing degrees of self-direction as the semester progresses, and material and technical experimentation is encouraged. Group critiques play an important role in helping each student formulate her own concerns and ways of working. Subjects include still life, interiors, landscapes, and figures.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
J. Rhoads
Prereq: ARTST-120 or ARTST-131, and ARTST-236.
Notes: Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of materials.

ARTST-246 Sculpture I
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Introduction to fundamental sculptural techniques and three-dimensional thinking. Various media are explored, with an emphasis on understanding the language of sculpture through material.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
The department
Prereq: ARTST-120 or ARTST-131.
Advisory: Priority given to majors, minors, and prospective majors. Five College students require permission of instructor to enroll
Notes: Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of course materials.

ARTST-256 Printmaking I
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course is an introduction to the four basic areas of printmaking: relief, intaglio, screen printing and lithography. Students will begin the semester learning the basics of each technique through attending demonstrations and working on small projects in each area. Students will then choose to focus on one of the four processes, spending the remainder of the semester learning more advanced methods within their chosen area and completing a series of in-depth projects.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
A. Maciuba
Prereq: ARTST-120 or ARTST-131.
Advisory: Five College students require permission of instructor to enroll
Notes: Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of course materials.

ARTST-257 Printmaking II
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Printmaking II builds on students' existing skills learned in Printmaking I or Printmaking/Digital Hybrid, and deepens their engagement with various forms of print. The course explores concepts such as layering, multiplicity, and mediated forms of production. An emphasis will be placed upon examination of the role of printmaking and print media within contemporary art context. Students challenge themselves with various modes of display and distribution, while blurring distinctions between traditional and innovative processes.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
T. Millman
Prereq: ARTST-120, ARTST-131, ARTST-256, or ARTST-226DH.
Notes: Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of course materials.

ARTST-266 Body and Space
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course focuses on the issues surrounding body and space through installation, performance, and public arts. Students explore the possibilities of body as an energetic instrument, while investigating the connotations of various spaces as visual vocabulary. The self becomes the reservoir for expression. The course examines the transformational qualities of the body as the conduit that links conceptual and physical properties of materials and ideas.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
R. Hachiyanagi
Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors
Advisory: This course has no prerequisite and counts towards studio art major and minor requirements as a 200-level course.
Notes: 2 studios (2 hours and 30 minutes); Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of course materials.

ARTST-267 Papermaking with Local Plants
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Students collect usable local plants. They examine and record them before and after drying, then cook and crush them to make paper pulp. As they learn how to process those plants, they study how their methods directly connect to papermaking techniques in various indigenous cultures, especially in Africa, the Pacific, Latin America & Asia. Students conceive and construct their art projects inspired by historical/cultural/biological/ecological/personal aspects of plants as well as their physical qualities.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
R. Hachiyanagi
Prereq: At least one 200-level studio art course.
Advisory: Five College students require instructor’s permission for this course. Email the professor with a list of all the studio courses previously taken.
Notes: Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of course materials.

ARTST-269 Japanese Papermaking
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course, students learn the traditional practice and history of Japanese hand papermaking, while exploring contemporary applications of the method. Thin, translucent, strong paper is great for drawing and printmaking, as well as sculptural construction and paper casting. This fluidity of medium naturally encourages students to become interdisciplinary in their art making. The apparent fragility, structural strength, and surprising longevity of the material provides a foundation for philosophical investigations into the nature of creativity.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
R. Hachiyanagi
Prereq: One 200-level studio art course.
Notes: Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of course materials. Five College students require instructor’s permission for this course. Email the professor with a list of all the studio courses previously taken.

ARTST-280 Topics in Studio Art
Description: Topics courses are offered each semester which are outside the realm of the usual course offerings, focusing on contemporary issues.

ARTST-280FP Topics in Studio Art: ‘Art-Making on a Fragile Planet’
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: What does it mean to be an artist in the Anthropocene? How can we use sculpture to explore pressing environmental issues while still taking responsibility for our consumption of materials? Through research, discussion, and production, this class will explore the possibilities and approaches available to us as artists for meaningful social engagement and response to our current environmental condition. We will utilize a wide range of fabrication approaches and raw materials, including dysfunctional objects, recycled materials, and digital and time-based media.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
L. Bouton
Prereq: ARTST-120 or ARTST-131.
Advisory: The course is open to those with no previous sculpture experience as well as those seeking to further develop their sculptural abilities.
Notes: Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of course materials.

ARTST-280NP Topics in Studio Art: ‘Narrative Painting’
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: In the past few years, many contemporary painters have shown renewed interest in one of painting’s oldest functions -- telling stories. Students in this course will first explore historical forms of narrative painting before considering its many uses today: to advance political agendas, to reimagine or recover histories, to memorialize, to cultivate attention, to entertain, and to impart values. They will create paintings in relationship to historical and contemporary events, found texts, myths, literature, and stories they write themselves.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
J. Rhoads
Prereq: ARTST-120 or ARTST-131.
Notes: Students enrolled in this course will be responsible for some of the cost of course materials.

ASIAN-214 Philosophical Foundations of Chinese Thought: The Classical Period
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: An introduction to Chinese thought in the Classical period (~500-221 BCE), a time of great social and political furor. We will study (in translation) the works of Kongzi (Confucius), Mozi, Zhaungzi, Mengzi (Mencius), Han Feizi, and others, with an eye to the contemporary relevance of ancient Chinese thought. We will ask such questions as: What kind of life should one live? What is the source of political authority? What is human nature? We will work to understand each philosopher’s answers to these questions, and develop our own views in response. We will take care to put these figures and their works in their historical and cultural context.

ASIAN-247 Chinese Women Writers in the 20th and 21st Centuries
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: In the last hundred years, China witnessed the emergence of many talented Chinese women writers. Not only did they take part in every stage of important socio-political changes in modern and contemporary China, they were and still are the avant-garde of literary reform and innovation. Many of their works, in particular, take gender and gender ideology/politics at issue, while deviating from the traditional discourse that marginalized or trivialized women, exploring creative and effective ways of literary dialogue and imagination. This course will cover women writers from both modern (1911-1949) and contemporary (1949-present) times. Some of the representative women writers include: Ding Ling, Xiao Hong, Zhang Ailing, Zong Pu, Yang Jiang, Wang Anyi, Tie Ning, etc.

ASIAN-331 Asian History

ASIAN-339 The Medieval Mirror: Freedom, Gender and Resistance in Contemporary Arabic Literature

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4

Description: Setting their historical novels in the Middle Ages, contemporary Arab writers such as Radwa Ashour, Jurjy Zaydan, Gamal al-Ghitani and Bensalem Himmich have reflected into the past the problems of present Middle-Eastern societies. Writing from Egypt, Lebanon and Morocco, they revisited with nostalgia the extraordinary medieval heritage of the Arab-Islamic world, educating their readers while taking them on journeys to Medieval Andalusia, to the last years of the Baghdad of the caliphs, and to Cairo on eve of the Ottoman conquest. By looking into the medieval mirror, these authors challenged conservative readings of this heritage. In doing so, they contributed to the modernization of their countries and were able to escape censorship, uphold feminist values, and to criticize Western imperialism and oppressive Arab rulers. In this course, we will read their works in valuable English translations, while discussing their extraordinary lives as twentieth-century writers, intellectuals, and activists.

Astronomy

ASTR-100 Stars and Galaxies
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Discover how the forces of nature shape our understanding of the cosmos. Explore the origin, structure, and evolution of the earth, moons and planets, comets and asteroids, the sun and other stars, star clusters, the Milky Way and other galaxies, clusters of galaxies, and the universe as a whole.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. Dyar, J. Young

ASTR-102 Solar Systems
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Travel through our solar system using results of the latest spacecraft. Explore the origins of our worlds through the study of planet formation, meteorites, asteroids, and comets. Discover the processes that shape planetary interiors, surfaces, and atmospheres. Compare our solar system to others by learning about newly discovered exoplanets. Trace the conditions that may foster life throughout the solar system and beyond.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. Dyar, J. Young

ASTR-105 The Sky
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: A hands-on introduction to observing and understanding the extraterrestrial sky. Daily and annual motions of the sun, moon, planets, and stars; celestial coordinate systems; apparent brightnesses and colors of the stars; time; calendars. Observations at the Williston Observatory with the unaided eye, visually with the eight-inch telescope, and by electronic camera with computer-controlled telescopes.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
T. Burbine

ASTR-115 Introduction to Astronomy
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: A comprehensive introduction to the study of modern astronomy, covering planets--their origins, orbits, interiors, surfaces and atmospheres; stars -- their formation, structure and evolution; and the universe -- its origin, large-scale structure and ultimate destiny. This introductory course is for students who are planning to major in science or math.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
The department

ASTR-223 Planetary Science
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This intermediate-level course covers fundamentals of spectroscopy, remote sensing, and planetary surfaces. Discussions will include interiors, atmospheres, compositions, origins, and evolution of terrestrial planets; satellites, asteroids, comets, and planetary rings.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
The department
Prereq: 1 physical science course and MATH-100 or MATH-101.

ASTR-226 Cosmology
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Cosmological models and the relationship between models and observable parameters. Topics in current astronomy that bear upon cosmological problems, including background electromagnetic radiation, nucleosynthesis, dating methods, determinations of the mean density of the universe and the Hubble constant, and tests of gravitational theories. Discussion of questions concerning the foundations of cosmology and its future as a science.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
J. Young
Prereq: ASTR-100, ASTR-101, ASTR-102, or ASTR-115; one semester of physics; and one semester of calculus at high school or college level.

ASTR-228 Astrophysics I: Stars and Galaxies
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: A calculus-based introduction to the properties, structure, formation, and evolution of stars and galaxies. The laws of gravity, thermal physics, and atomic physics provide a basis for understanding observed properties of stars, interstellar gas, and dust. We apply these concepts to develop an understanding of stellar atmospheres, interiors, and evolution, the interstellar medium, and the Milky Way and other galaxies.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
J. Young
Prereq: PHYS-110 and MATH-102.
Advisory: PHYS-201 and MATH-203 strongly suggested.

ASTR-295 Independent Study
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 1-4
Other attributes: Independent Study
The department
Instructor permission required? Y
Course can be repeated for credit.

ASTR-330 Topics in Astrophysics
Description: In-class discussions will be used to formulate a set of problems, each designed to illuminate a significant aspect of the topic at hand. The problems will be difficult and broad in scope: their solutions, worked out individually and in class discussions, will constitute the real work of the course. Students will gain experience in both oral and written presentation. Topics vary from year to year.

ASTR-330AC Topics in Astrophysics: 'Asteroids and Comets'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course is an introduction to asteroids and comets from both an astronomical and geological point of view. Topics that will be covered will include how these objects are discovered, their orbits, the mineralogies of asteroids and meteorites, how these objects are classified, impact hazard scales, and space missions. This course is appropriate for any student interested in the properties of these small bodies.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
T. Burbine

ASTR-330MA Topics in Astrophysics: 'Mars'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will survey the past, present, and future of Mars exploration and science. We will focus on the evolution of Mars as a paradigm for terrestrial planets, with specific units on missions, formation, volcanism, impacts, glaciers and water, spectroscopy and mineralogy, climate, and issues pertaining to the possibilities of life on Mars. This is a discussion-based, interactive seminar with students and faculty reading current papers from the literature, supported by many outside speakers. Weekly writing assignments focus on critical thinking.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. Dyar
Prereq: Any intermediate-level Astronomy or Geology course.
Advisory: Astronomy 223 recommended.

ASTR-330MN Topics in Astrophysics: 'Moon'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will survey the past, present, and future of lunar exploration and science. We will focus on the evolution of the Moon as a paradigm for terrestrial planets, with specific units on interiors, heat flow, thermal evolution, magnetism, volcanism, volatiles, impacts, crustal composition and mineralogy, regoliths, and spectroscopy of its surface. This is a discussion-based, interactive seminar with students and faculty reading current papers from the literature.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. Dyar
Prereq: Any intermediate-level Astronomy or Geology course.
Advisory: Astronomy 223 recommended.

ASTR-330VE Topics in Astrophysics: 'Venus'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will survey the past, present, and future of the exploration and science of the planet Venus. We will focus on the evolution of Venus as a paradigm for Earth’s possible future. We will have specific units on interiors, heat flow, thermal evolution, magnetism, volcanism, impacts, crustal composition and mineralogy, and spectroscopy of its surface. This is a discussion-based, interactive seminar with students and faculty reading current papers from the literature.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. Dyar
Prereq: Any intermediate-level Astronomy or Geology course.
Advisory: ASTR-223 recommended.

ASTR-335 Astrophysics II
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: How do astronomers determine the nature and extent of the universe? Centering around the theme of the "Cosmic Distance Ladder," we explore how astrophysics has expanded our comprehension to encompass the entire universe. Topics include: the size of the solar system; parallactic and spectroscopic distances of stars; star counts and the structure of our galaxy; Cepheid variables and the distances of galaxies; the Hubble Law and large-scale structure in the universe; quasars and the Lyman-Alpha Forest.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
J. Young
Prereq: ASTR-228.

ASTR-352 Astrophysics III
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Advanced course covering physical processes in the gaseous interstellar medium, including photoionization in HII regions and planetary nebulae, shocks in supernova remnants and stellar jets, and energy balance in molecular clouds. Dynamics of stellar systems, star clusters, and the virial theorem will also be discussed, along with galaxy rotation and the presence of dark matter in the universe, as well as spiral density waves. The course concludes with quasars and active galactic nuclei, synchrotron radiation, accretion disks, and supermassive black holes.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
J. Young
Prereq: ASTR-335 or two physics courses at the 200 or 300 level.

ASTR-395 Independent Study
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 1-8
Other attributes: Independent Study
The department
Instructor permission required? Y
Course can be repeated for credit.
Biochemistry

BIOCH-295 Independent Study
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 1-4
Description: Independent work in biochemistry can be conducted with any member of the biochemistry committee and, upon approval, also with other members of the biological sciences and chemistry departments and program in neuroscience and behavior.
Other attributes: Independent Study
Instructor permission required? Y
Notes: Students conducting an independent lab research project for credit in a department, program, or lab covered by the College’s chemical hygiene plan must participate in a safety training session before beginning research.
Course can be repeated for credit.

BIOCH-311 Protein Biochemistry and Cellular Metabolism
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course is a rigorous introduction to the study of protein molecules and their role as catalysts in the cell. Topics include general principles of protein folding, protein structure-function correlation, enzyme kinetics and mechanism, carbohydrate and lipid biochemistry, and metabolic pathways (catabolic and anabolic) and their interaction and cross-regulation. Biological transformation of energy is considered in light of the principles of thermodynamics.
Crosslisted as: BIOL-311, CHEM-311
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Berry
Restrictions: This course is limited to Biochemistry majors only.
Prereq: BIOCH-311.; Coreq: BIOCH-314L.

BIOCH-330 Topics in Biochemistry and Molecular Biology
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course each year examines a number of important and exciting topics in biochemistry, molecular biology, and other related fields of biology. The intellectual and research development that formulated these fundamental concepts is traced through extensive readings of the primary literature. Discussions emphasize the critical evaluation of experimental techniques, data analysis, and interpretation. This is a seminar-style course in which students will bear responsibility for the synthesis and presentation of assigned papers; substantial student participation in the form of oral presentation is expected.

BIOCH-330MB Topics in Biochemistry and Molecular Biology
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course each year examines a number of important and exciting topics in biochemistry, molecular biology, and other related fields of biology. The intellectual and research development that formulated these fundamental concepts is traced through extensive readings of the primary literature. Discussions emphasize the critical evaluation of experimental techniques, data analysis, and interpretation. Substantial student participation in the form of oral presentation is expected. This course will focus on antibiotic resistance and the emergence of drug-resistant bacteria.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
K. McMenimen
Prereq: CHEM-212 and either BIOCH-311 or BIOCH-314.
BIOCH-330RN Topics in Biochemistry and Molecular Biology: 'The RNA World: The Origin of Life to Modern Cells'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: RNA is believed by many to have been the first macromolecule to evolve. In a hypothesized "RNA world," RNA would have simultaneously served the roles of carrying genetic information and catalyzing chemical reactions within early cells. The past three decades have been a renaissance for RNA biology, as researchers have uncovered the critical role RNA plays in eukaryotic and bacterial gene regulation and defense, as well as the potential for RNAs to perform catalysis. This seminar will introduce students to modern approaches to study the structure and function of RNA and will explore the chemical and biological roles RNA plays in modern cells as well as its role in the origin of life. Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive
K. Berry
Prereq: BIOCH-311, or BIOCH-314, or CHEM-212.

BIOCH-395 Independent Study
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 1-8
Description: Independent work in biochemistry can be conducted with any member of the biochemistry committee and, upon approval, also with other members of the biological sciences and chemistry departments and program in neuroscience and behavior.
Other attributes: Independent Study

Instructor permission required? Y
Notes: See safety training restrictions in the course description for Biochemistry 295
Course can be repeated for credit.
Biological Sciences

BIOL-145 Introductory Biology

BIOL-145AB Introductory Biology: 'Animal Bodies, Animal Functions'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: How are animal bodies built to deal with living on earth? In this course we will study the function of cells, organs, and organ systems that have evolved to help animals make their way through the physical and chemical environment. In lecture and in lab, we will consider the common needs of animals -- needs such as feeding, breathing, and reproducing -- and the diverse solutions they have devised. A range of life, from unicellular organisms to animals with backbones (including mammals), will be considered.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
S. Bacon
Restrictions: This course is limited to first-year students.
Coreq: BIOL-145ABL.

BIOL-145BN Introductory Biology: 'Introduction to Biological Inquiry'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course students will explore the biological world from evolution to physiology to cellular dynamics, developing a basic understanding of how knowledge is generated. Laboratory experiences will help students acquire the skills necessary to conduct their own research and understand basic data analysis. Socially relevant science issues will generate discussion on the intersection of science and current events.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
P. Brennan
Restrictions: This course is limited to First-year and Sophomore students.
Coreq: BIOL-145BNL.

BIOL-145GW Introductory Biology: 'A Green World'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the plant life in the woods and fields around us, the exotic plants in our greenhouses, and the plants we depend on for food. We will study plants living in surprising circumstances, settling into winter, escaping from gardens, reclaiming farmland, cooperating with fungi and insects, and fighting for their lives. We will find that plants challenge some conventional, animal-based assumptions about what matters to living things. In labs, students will seek to answer their questions about how plants grow in nature, by studying plant structure and function, ecology, and evolution.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. Frary
Restrictions: This course is limited to first-year students.
Coreq: BIOL-145GWL.

BIOL-145HG Introductory Biology: 'Biology in the Genomic Era'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Genome projects are leading to great advances in our understanding of biology and in our ability to manipulate the genetic information of organisms, including humans. We will focus on the science behind genome projects, and the ways in which the resulting knowledge and technology affect our lives. In lab we will examine and analyze a variety of organisms such as microbes, plants and humans. This class will also serve as a general introductory biology course for biology majors as well as non-majors.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
C. Woodard
Restrictions: This course is limited to first-year students.
Coreq: BIOL-145HGL.

BIOL-145RG Introductory Biology: 'Organismal Biology'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course encompasses a broad range of concepts central to our understanding of how organisms function and evolve. We will investigate important biological processes, such as photosynthesis and metabolism, and systems, such as the cardiovascular and immune systems. We will also take a holistic view of biology and use our newly acquired knowledge to explore such diverse topics as: the evolution of infectious diseases, the consequences of development and design on the evolution of organisms, and how the physiology and behavior of animals might affect their responses to global climate change.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
R. Brodie
Restrictions: This course is limited to first-year students.
Coreq: BIOL-145RGL.
Notes: Registration in one of the two corequisite labs is also required.

BIOL-160 Integrated Introduction to Biology and Chemistry
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This 8-credit course serves as a gateway to both the biology and chemistry core curricula. The course introduces and develops fundamental concepts in chemistry while also exploring the diverse range of strategies adopted by living systems to survive in different environments. This course prepares students for further study in chemistry (Chemistry 201) and/or biology (Biology 200). Students must register for both Biology 160 and Chemistry 160 as well as a single lab section (listed under Chemistry 160L). Recommended for students interested in completing pre-health requirements or advanced study in biochemistry or neuroscience.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Broaders, R. Brodie
Restrictions: This course is limited to first-year students.
Coreq: CHEM-160 and CHEM-160L.
Notes: Students must co-enroll in Biology 160 and Chemistry 160 for a total of 8 credits; three 50 minute lectures, three 75 minute lectures, and one three-hour laboratory per week.

BIOL-200 Introductory Biology II: How Organisms Develop
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: An overview of cells to tissues to organisms. Cellular components, the role of the nucleus, cell reproduction, and meiosis will be examined as part of our study of gamete production, fertilization, embryology, and development in an invertebrate (sea urchins), a vertebrate (chick), a fern, and a flowering plant. The basic molecular biology of DNA, RNA, and protein synthesis will be presented and examined in the context of building a fly embryo and a flower.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
R. Fink, A. Frary
Prereq: BIOL-145 or BIOL-160, or NEURO-100;
Coreq: BIOL-200L.

BIOL-203 Teaching Children Science: College Students in the Elementary Classroom
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course is designed for science students with interests in teaching and learning with children. It will focus on research, theory and practice pertinent to science education, linking scientific information gained in college classes to children's learning of scientific phenomena. Weekly class meetings (from 1-3 hours) will include laboratory and off-site field investigations. Each student will also become a 'Science Buddy' at a local elementary school, assisting children with hands-on science experiences for at least 1 hour each week.
Crosslisted as: EDUST-203
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
Other attributes: Community-Based Learning
R. Fink
Instructor permission required? Y
Prereq: One year of any college science (in any discipline), at least one lab course.

BIOL-206 Local Flora
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course offers plant identification and natural history, emphasizing native and introduced trees and wildflowers. On- and off-campus field trips.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
A. Frary
Prereq: 4 credits in the department.

BIOL-223 Ecology
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will cover the fundamental factors controlling the distribution and abundance of organisms, including interactions with the abiotic environment, fitness and natural selection, population growth and dynamics, species interactions, community dynamics, and diversity. We will address variation across space and time. The course will combine observational, experimental, and mathematical approaches to some of the applications of ecological theory, including conservation, disease dynamics, and biological control.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

M. Hoopes

Prereq: BIOL-145 or BIOL-160 and at least one semester of Calculus or Statistics.; Coreq: BIOL-223L.

Notes: Biology 223 and/or Biology 226 must be taken for the Biology major.

Biol-226 Evolution

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4

Description: The mechanisms of evolutionary change within populations and between species; patterns of change in space, time and form; and the origin of adaptations. These approaches make sense of the diversity of life. Then we turn to the evolution of developmental pathways, as a way of approaching the unity of life.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

S. Rachootin

Prereq: BIOL-200 or BIOL-223 or BIOL-230.; Coreq: BIOL-226L.

Biol-230 Cell and Molecular Biology

Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4

Description: Cells are the smallest common denominator of life: the simplest organisms are single cells, while others like ourselves are composed of vast communities of cells. In this course, we will learn how cellular structure and function is orchestrated by biological molecules, most notably the genome and the proteins it encodes. Topics will include genetic inheritance, gene and protein regulation, cellular processes including transport, energy capture, and signaling, the cellular and molecular basis for disease, and modern techniques including genomics, bioinformatics, and microscopy. The laboratory component will illustrate and analyze these topics through selected experimental approaches.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

A. Camp, R. Lijek

Prereq: BIOL-200 and CHEM-201.; Coreq: BIOL-230L.

Advisory: Students who have completed BIOL-210 or BIOL-220 should not take BIOL-230.

Biol-236 Topics in Biological Sciences

Biol-236TA Topics in Biological Sciences: 'Biology of Terrestrial Arthropods'

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

Description: Evolutionary history of the terrestrial arthropods (body plans, relationships, fossil history); physiology (the implications of cuticle, thermoregulation, flight); reproduction (life cycles, metamorphosis, mating systems); behavior (communication, sociality); ecology (parasitism, mutualism, predator-prey and plant-insect interactions). Each student will collect, mount, and identify specimens for her own collection.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

S. Rachootin

Instructor permission required? Y

Coreq: BIOL-236TAL.

Biol-295 Independent Study

Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 1-4

Other attributes: Independent Study

The department

Instructor permission required? Y

Notes: Note: Any student conducting an independent laboratory research project for course credit in a department, program, or laboratory covered by the College's chemical hygiene plan must participate in a safety training session before beginning research.

Course can be repeated for credit.

Biol-301 Regenerative Medicine: Biology and Bioethics

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

Description: What is regenerative medicine? What is the science that drives new medical therapies using stem cells? We will study the biology of adult, embryonic, and induced pluripotent stem cells, as well as the legal, ethical, and moral implications of using these cells in medical therapies. Each member of the class will participate in a staged debate on these issues for an introductory biology class.
Pending funding, we may travel to Washington, D.C.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive
R. Fink
Instructor permission required? Y
Prereq: BIOL-220 or BIOL-230 and instructor permission.

BIOL-302 Molecular Evolution
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the dynamics of evolutionary change at the molecular level, the effects of various molecular mechanisms on the structure and function of genes and genomes, and the methodology involved in dealing with molecular data from an evolutionary perspective. Lab work will be devoted to learning ways to analyze DNA sequence data and to create and evaluate trees that use molecular data.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. Frary
Prereq: BIOL-230 (or BIOL-210) and BIOL-226.; Coreq: BIOL-302L.

BIOL-305 Cellular and Molecular Aspects of Development
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Examines the roles of cellular movement and cellular interaction in the development of multicellular organisms. Topics include cell recognition and adhesion during morphogenesis, the importance of extracellular matrices, and current theories of embryonic pattern formation. Self-designed laboratories include techniques such as microsurgery and time-lapse recording, using a wide variety of embryos and cell types.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive
R. Fink
Prereq: BIOL-200 and BIOL-230 (or BIOL-210 and BIOL-220).; Coreq: BIOL-305L.

BIOL-307 Vertebrate Anatomy
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: We will study the structure, function and evolution of the diversity of structures that allow vertebrates to perform basic functions such as locomotion. We will connect the functions with day-to-day challenges for vertebrates including humans, and we will discuss functional disruption such as disease and trauma. In lab we will dissect fresh-frozen and formaline-preserved vertebrates. A willingness to work with such preserved material is critical to success in class. Students are expected to work in groups during class time, as well as read the required chapters before class. This class requires you to memorize the names of several structures in a functional context.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
P. Brennan
Prereq: BIOL-220, BIOL-230, or BIOL-226.; Coreq: BIOL-307L.

BIOL-308 Darwin
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course looks at the scientific content and intellectual context of Darwin's theory of evolution - his facts, metaphors, hypotheses, and philosophical assumptions. Readings from Darwin and his sources, and examination of the organisms he studied. A background in eighteenth- and nineteenth-century history or whole organism biology is recommended.
Crosslisted as: HIST-301DW
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive
S. Rachootin
Prereq: BIOL-226 or HIST-248.

BIOL-310 Invertebrate Zoology
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course looks at the evolutionary relations of the profoundly different groups of animals in light of their structure, development, and fossil history. Emphasizes exceptional organisms that prove - and disprove - biological rules. Themes include coloniality, asexual reproduction, metamorphosis, and making skeletons.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
S. Rachootin
Prereq: BIOL-226.; Coreq: BIOL-310L.
BIOL-311 Protein Biochemistry and Cellular Metabolism
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course is a rigorous introduction to the study of protein molecules and their role as catalysts in the cell. Topics include general principles of protein folding, protein structure-function correlation, enzyme kinetics and mechanism, carbohydrate and lipid biochemistry, and metabolic pathways (catabolic and anabolic) and their interaction and cross-regulation. Biological transformation of energy is considered in light of the principles of thermodynamics.
Crosslisted as: BIOCH-311, CHEM-311
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Berry
Restrictions: This course is limited to Biochemistry majors only.
Prereq: BIOL-230 (or BIOL-210) and CHEM-302.; Coreq: BIOL-311L.

BIOL-314 Nucleic Acids Biochemistry and Molecular Biology
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course is an in-depth examination of DNA and RNA structures and how these structures support their respective functions during replication, transcription, and translation of the genetic material. Emphasis is on the detailed mechanisms associated with each step of gene expression. Discussions incorporate many recent advances brought about by recombinant DNA technology.
Crosslisted as: BIOCH-314, CHEM-314
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Berry
Restrictions: This course is limited to Biochemistry majors only.
Prereq: BIOCH-311, BIOL-311, or CHEM-311.; Coreq: BIOL-314L.
Advisory: Chemistry 302 can be taken concurrently
Notes: Please sign up for this course as Biochemistry 314

BIOL-315 Behavioral Ecology
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course, students learn to view and understand animal behavior within an evolutionary context. The mechanistic side of behavior is investigated and students explore how behavioral traits originate and evolve over time. Students will integrate their knowledge of how organisms work with an appreciation of why they work the way they do. At the end of the course, students will understand basic concepts in behavioral biology and know many of the experiments that have facilitated our understanding of this field. They will be able to construct hypotheses and design experiments that address behavioral phenomena. The laboratory portion of this course is based on individual projects.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive
R. Brodie
Prereq: 8 credits of 200-level work from Biological Sciences; Coreq: BIOL-315L.
Advisory: BIOL-223 or BIOL-226 strongly recommended.

BIOL-316 Scanning Electron Microscopy
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 2
Description: Includes theory and operation of the scanning electron microscope and preparation of biological and geological materials for observation. The versatile use of the microscope will be emphasized and will include low magnification, high resolution, and back scattered (reflected) electron modes of operation as well as operation at different pressures. Energy dispersive X-ray microanalysis will be introduced.
Crosslisted as: GEOL-316
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
The department
Prereq: 4 credits at the 200 level from Biological Sciences or Geology.

BIOL-319 Immunology with Laboratory
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: The immune system protects the sterile interior of our bodies from the vast diversity of microbes in the outside world, adapting and improving from each encounter. How does it achieve this remarkable feat? This course will investigate the cells, organs, and biochemical signals that comprise innate and adaptive immune systems, as well as how they interact to identify and remove foreign pathogens. Emphasis will be placed on the human immune response to infectious diseases, with examples from clinical case studies and experimental models. The laboratory portion will provide hands-on experience with the foundational techniques of immunology research. Additional topics may include: autoimmunity, allergy, vaccination, transplantation, cancer, immune deficiency, and pathogen evasion strategies.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

R. Lijek
Prereq: BIOL-210 and BIOL-220, or BIOL-230.; Coreq: BIOL-319L.

BIOL-320 Introduction to Transmission Electron Microscopy
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 2
Description: Basic principles of transmission electron microscopy (TEM) and potential uses in biological studies. Each student selects a project and learns the fundamentals of specimen preparation, operation of the TEM, and image acquisition. Preparation, assessment and interpretation of the resulting electron micrographs culminate in an individual portfolio.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
Instructor permission required? Y
Prereq: BIOL-220 or BIOL-230.
Notes: There will be an additional self-scheduled, weekly 1-2 hour lab during which students will receive microscope training.

BIOL-321 Conference Course
Description: Selected topics from areas emphasized in the department according to needs of particular students. Study in small groups or by individuals.

BIOL-321AD Conference Course: 'Addiction, Superior Memory, and Diseases of the Brain'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course, we will explore diseases of memory as well as extreme instances of phenomenal memory. We will review primary research literature and case studies to explore the changes that underlie addiction and memory. After reviewing the scientific literature, we will manipulate memory-related pathways in the brain of mice then evaluate the resulting changes in memory formation and behavior. This course will enable students to relate behavioral changes to changes in brain function.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. White
Prereq: BIOL-200 or BIOL-220 or BIOL-230.; Coreq: BIOL-321AD.

BIOL-321EL Conference Course: 'Extreme Life'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will focus on biological systems that push the limits of structural and physiological possibility. For example, midges flap their wings at up to 1000 Hz; bar-headed geese migrate over Mount Everest; deep-sea fish withstand pressures near 300 atmospheres; certain frogs can allow their body temperatures to drop below 0 degrees Celsius. Through readings and discussions we will explore the diverse mechanisms that underlie how organisms reach extreme levels of performance and survive in extreme environments.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
G. Gillis
Prereq: BIOL-230 and plus one additional Biological Sciences course above 200.

BIOL-321GD Conference Course: 'Genetics of Disease'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course we will explore the genetic basis for disease susceptibility using models from cancer and other diseases. Discussion will focus on how the environment and genetics interact on an individual level, which leads to a "susceptibility profile" for each person. We will also delve into the primary literature to evaluate strategies aimed at preventing disease, treatments and future therapeutic possibilities.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
S. Compton
Prereq: BIOL-230 (or BIOL-210 and BIOL-220).

BIOL-321ME Conference Course: 'Molecular Ecology'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Over the past quarter century, molecular genetic methods have become increasingly important in ecological research. In this course, we will examine contemporary molecular genetic tools and learn how they can be used to answer ecological questions. Topics will include: reconstruction of ancestral relationships; measuring the size, diversity, and spatial structure of populations; characterization of migration and dispersal patterns; and identification of sensitive or threatened species and populations. We will explore these themes through foundational texts and current scientific literature, and we will analyze molecular genetic datasets in class to gain familiarity with available techniques.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive; Writing-Intensive
J. Andras
Prereq: BIOL-230 (or BIOL-210), and BIOL-223 or BIOL-226.

BIOL-321RB Conference Course: 'Race and Biology'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 2
Description: In this student-centered, discussion-based seminar, we will explore current hypotheses about the evolution of human variation, trace the history of how biology has been used in the construction of racial ideologies, and delve into the impacts of racial categorization on human health. We will investigate these themes through readings, videos, class discussions, student expert panels, and research papers. Students taking this course will improve their ability to: engage constructively in scholarly discussions; use verbal and written discourse to explore themes in science; use new knowledge to understand current issues; critically evaluate media information using evidence from scientific studies; and communicate new knowledge.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
R. Brodie
Prereq: 4 credits of Biological Sciences at the 200 level.

BIOL-323 Plant Growth and Development
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course is a study of the higher plant, its structure, organization, and development. We will examine the endogenous and environmental factors influencing plant growth and reproduction. Topics include anatomy, hormones and their mode of action, tropisms, photomorphogenesis, and flowering.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. Frary
Prereq: Two courses from BIOL-200, BIOL-223, BIOL-226, or BIOL-230.

BIOL-325 Plant Diversity and Evolution
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course explores the tremendous diversity of the plant kingdom, emphasizing the local flora. Evolutionary relationships are discussed on the basis of comparisons of reproductive biology, morphology, anatomy, cell structure, and molecular biology.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. Frary
Prereq: 2 courses from BIOL-200, BIOL-210, BIOL-223, BIOL-226, or BIOL-230.; Coreq: BIOL-325L.
Notes: offered alternate years

BIOL-326 Ocean Blues: State of the World's Oceans
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Ocean ecosystems are of tremendous ecological importance and provide many billions of dollars worth of services annually, yet our marine systems face serious threats due to overfishing, climate change, ocean acidification, pollution, and the spread of invasive species. Conservation and management strategies aim to protect our remaining marine resources and restore those that have been lost or damaged. In this course, we will study the scientific evidence documenting the most pressing threats to marine ecosystems and examine available strategies for mitigating these threats. We will also explore cultural, economic, and political issues relevant to marine conservation and management.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive; Writing-Intensive
J. Andras
Instructor permission required? Y
Prereq: Any 200-level science.
Advisory: Preference will be given to juniors and seniors who are participating in the Coastal and Marine Sciences certificate program.
Notes: Ocean Blues can be applied to any of the course categories required for the Coastal and Marine Sciences certificate.

BIOL-327 Microbiology
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: We share planet Earth with an unimaginable number of "invisible" microbial life forms. In this course we will explore the structure, metabolism, genetics, and ecology of microbes, most prominently bacteria. Other microbes, including archaea, eukaryotic microbes, and viruses will also be considered. Whenever possible, the relationship between microbes and humans will be highlighted. Other goals will be for students to become comfortable with scientific primary literature and to hone their communication skills through discussions and written assignments. Finally, the laboratory portion of this course will highlight classic and modern techniques in microbiology.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. Camp
Prereq: BIOL-230 or both BIOL-210 and BIOL-220.; Coreq: BIOL-327L.

BIOL-328 Human Physiology
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: A consideration of the physiological processes involved in the control of human body functions. We will study the mechanisms for regulating individual organ systems and how these mechanisms respond to changing needs of the individual. Our examination of the physiological controls will include an analysis of the underlying cellular and molecular processes that drive the mechanisms and integrate the activities of the different systems.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
S. Bacon
Prereq: BIOL-220 or BIOL-230 or BIOCH-311.; Coreq: BIOL-328L.

BIOL-331 Theory and Application of Conservation Biology
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course focuses on advanced ecological theory applied to conservation. Class will combine lectures and discussions of primary scientific literature. Labs will include field trips to collect observational and experimental data and indoor exercises to explore the concepts of rarity, coexistence, and population viability with mathematical models. A community-based learning aspect is possible for the final project in this class.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. Hoopes
Prereq: BIOL-223, BIOL-226, BIOL-315, or ENVST-200.; Coreq: BIOL-331L.

BIOL-332 Macroevolution
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course presents the science of biological form and its relation to adaptation, development, and the modes of evolutionary change. Emphases include primary theoretical literature, whole organisms, and the emerging field of evolutionary developmental biology.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
S. Rachootin
Prereq: BIOL-226.
Notes: Biology majors who arrange a lab project in this class can count this course as a lab course.

BIOL-333 Neurobiology
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: We will study the electrical and chemical signals underlying the generation of the nerve impulse and synaptic transmission. We will then explore neuronal circuits underlying learning and memory, movement, and sensory perception.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. White
Restrictions: This course is limited to seniors.
Prereq: BIOL-200 and BIOL-220, or BIOL-230. Also take 4 credits from Chemistry or Physics.; Coreq: BIOL-333L.
Notes: preference given to seniors

BIOL-337 Symbiotic Interactions
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: From mutualism to parasitism, symbiotic interactions are a universal feature of life. In this seminar we will study the mechanisms underlying symbiotic interactions and consider their significance for the ecology and evolution of organisms. Through foundational texts and current scientific literature, we will explore some of the most spectacular and important examples of contemporary symbioses - from coral reefs, to infectious diseases, to the vast communities of microbes that live on and in our bodies - and we will learn how symbiosis is responsible for major milestones in the history of life, such as the origin of the eukaryotic cell, the emergence of land plants, and the evolution of sex.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive; Writing-Intensive
J. Andras
Prereq: BIOL-223 or BIOL-226.

BIOL-338 Evolution and Human Sexual Behavior
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: We will discuss patterns and variations of human sexual behavior and the likely role that evolution has played in shaping some of these patterns. We will discuss the evolution of sex, gender differences, principles of sexual selection, physiology, cultural differences in sexual behavior, mating systems, etc. We will follow a recently published book on this topic, and add readings from the primary literature. Students are expected to write one major research paper on any aspect of human sexual behavior of their choosing and to be ready to present their findings to the class towards the end of the semester.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
P. Brennan
Prereq: BIOL-226.

BIOL-339 Mechanisms of Hormone Action
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: What are the molecular mechanisms by which hormones direct cellular processes? In this course, we will examine the nature of chemical communication between and within cells. We will study hormones, receptors, and signal transduction pathways, and the ways in which these signaling systems regulate development, programmed cell death, inflammatory responses, and other biological processes.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
C. Woodard
Prereq: BIOL-230 or both BIOL-210 and BIOL-220.;
Coreq: BIOL-339L.

BIOL-340 Eukaryotic Molecular Genetics
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course we will examine the role of molecular genetic analysis in the study of phenomena such as human disease (e.g., breast cancer), animal development, and gene regulation. We will also discuss new techniques for genomic analysis, including the science as well as the health, legal, ethical and moral issues involved. There will be group discussions of original research articles and review articles.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
C. Woodard
Prereq: BIOL-200 and BIOL-230 (or BIOL-210).

Course can be repeated for credit.

BIOL-399 Journal Club / Data Hub
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 1
Description: Reading and understanding research reports from the primary scientific literature is an essential skill for any scientist. Likewise, critiquing experimental proposals and freshly-minted data is one of the core components of the pursuit of science. Using the Biology Department Seminar series as a springboard, this course seeks to familiarize students with the process of understanding, appreciating, and critiquing scientific manuscripts. Additionally, drawing on projects being proposed and executed under the auspices of Biology 395, this course seeks to help students develop comfort discussing ‘fresh’ scientific data. This course will provide a valuable way to connect with active scientists, both developing and experienced, from within and beyond Mount Holyoke.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
R. Lijek, The department
Prereq: 8 credits in Biological Sciences.
Notes: Repeatable for credit. Credit/no credit grading only. Reading materials will be drawn primarily from research and review articles in the primary scientific literature. Data will be presented by students actively engaged in research projects. We will discu
Course can be repeated for credit.
Chemistry

CHEM-101 General Chemistry I
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course provides introduction and development of fundamental concepts including stoichiometry, reactions in aqueous solutions, thermochemistry, atomic structure, chemical bonding, and acid-base reactions. The laboratory emphasizes basic skills, quantitative chemical measurements, and principles discussed in lectures.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
J. Ashby, A. van Giessen
Coreq: CHEM-101L.

CHEM-160 Integrated Introduction to Biology and Chemistry
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This 8-credit course serves as a gateway to both the biology and chemistry core curricula. The course introduces and develops fundamental concepts in chemistry while also exploring the diverse range of strategies adopted by living systems to survive in different environments. This course prepares students for further study in chemistry (Chemistry 201) and/or biology (Biology 200).
Students must register for both Biology 160 and Chemistry 160 as well as a single lab section (listed under Chemistry 160). Recommended for students interested in completing pre-health requirements or advanced study in biochemistry or neuroscience.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Broaders
Restrictions: This course is limited to first-year students.
Coreq: BIOL-160 and CHEM-160L.
Notes: Students must co-enroll in Biology 160 and Chemistry 160 for a total of 8 credits; three 50 minute lectures, three 75 minute lectures, and one three-hour laboratory per week.

CHEM-199 Introduction to Research
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This seminar is for first-year students who have a strong interest in the chemical sciences and will help to prepare them for scientific research. Students will be exposed to various research topics through reading, discussing, presenting, and writing about primary literature and attending selected department seminars. Throughout the semester students will carry out one research-style project in order to gain experience with the multifaceted nature of scientific inquiry. To jump start their research career on campus, each student will arrange meetings with at least two science faculty followed by a presentation and a written description on the faculty members' research topics.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Reqmt
W. Chen
Instructor permission required? Y
Restrictions: This course is limited to first-year students.
Advisory: Students must take Chemistry 201 concurrently.

CHEM-201 General Chemistry II
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course provides background in basic principles of physical, analytical, and inorganic chemistry essential to the study of all chemical phenomena. Topics include elementary principles of molecular electronic structure, quantitative treatment of chemical equilibrium with applications to solubility, acid-base, and electron transfer reactions, introduction to chemical kinetics and thermodynamics, and the chemistry of coordination compounds. Laboratory experiments will include classical analytical and kinetic techniques, preparation of inorganic compounds, and an introduction to ab initio electronic structure calculations.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. Gomez, A. van Giessen
Restrictions: This course is limited to First-year and Sophomore students.
Prereq: CHEM-101 or CHEM-160 with C or better grade.; Coreq: CHEM-201L.

CHEM-202 Organic Chemistry I
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Introduces organic chemistry, emphasizing the principles governing broad classes of reactions. Topics include stereochemistry, nucleophilic substitution and elimination reactions, the chemistry of alkanes, alkenes, alkynes, alcohols, and ethers, and an introduction to infrared and nuclear magnetic resonance spectroscopy. Laboratory work includes synthesis, practice in the techniques of distillation, crystallization, chromatography, molecular modeling, and identifying unknown organic compounds by chemical and spectroscopic means. Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

D. Hamilton
Prereq: CHEM-201 with grade of C or better.; Coreq: CHEM-202L.

CHEM-208 Introduction to Materials
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course provides an introduction to different types of materials, including metals, ceramics, polymers and composites, emphasizing structure and property relationships. The principles behind the design and implementation of materials as well as advances in materials in the areas of nano-, bio- and electronic technology will be presented. Class time is split among lecture, discussion and laboratory. Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

W. Chen
Prereq: CHEM-202, PHYS-110, and MATH-101.; Coreq: CHEM-208L.

CHEM-212 Chemistry of Biomolecules
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: An examination of the major ideas of biochemistry from the point of view of the chemical sciences rather than the life sciences. Structures of important biomolecules. The role of energetics and reaction dynamics in biochemical processes. Major metabolic pathways are considered, including those of proteins, carbohydrates, lipids, and nucleic acids. Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

K. McMenimen
Notes: This course is not intended for Biochemistry majors, who must complete Biochemistry 311 and 314. First priority will be given to sophomores and juniors.

CHEM-223 Analytical Chemistry
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course serves as an introduction to quantitative analytical chemistry, with a combined emphasis on both classical analysis tools and fundamental instrumentation for the analytical chemist. Topics to be covered include figures of merit, statistical and error analysis, volumetric and gravimetric titrations, as well as commonly used sample preparation and analyte separation methods. In the laboratory, students will apply techniques covered in lecture to quantitation of analytes commonly seen in pharmaceutical, forensic, chemical and biological settings, as well as learn the fundamentals of method development and optimization. Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

J. Ashby
Prereq: CHEM-201.; Coreq: CHEM-223L.

CHEM-224 Lab in Analytical Chemistry

CHEM-224AR Lab in Analytical Chemistry: 'Art Analysis'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 1
Description: This course introduces concepts of analytical chemistry under the theme of 'Chemistry in Art'. The topics of quantitative chemical analysis and instrumental analysis are discussed through hands-on observation based experiments in collaboration with the Mount Holyoke College art museum. Experimental techniques -- such as gas chromatography, mass spectrometry, X-ray fluorescence, UV visible spectroscopy, infrared spectroscopy, and scanning electron microscopy -- are incorporated for the analysis of paintings and art objects. Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

H. Jayathilake
Instructor permission required? Y
Prereq: CHEM-201 or 202 previously or concurrently.

CHEM-226 Poisons: Death by Chemistry
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will look at the effect of poisons at the molecular, cellular, and physiological levels from the chemistry and biochemistry perspective. We will discuss: the classification of poisons and the common structural elements of the molecules within each class; the interaction of toxic molecules with proteins and nucleic acids present in the cell; the physiologic effect of toxins on different systems of the body; dosage effects and pharmacokinetics; the mechanisms by which antidotes work; and the analytical techniques that toxicologists use to determine which poisons are present in the body. The different classes of proteins will be discussed in the context of historical case studies.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. van Giessen
Instructor permission required? Y
Prereq: CHEM-201 with grade of C or better.
Advisory: When emailing the instructor to request permission for this class, be sure to include your class year.

CHEM-231 Inorganic Chemistry
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: An introduction to the chemistry of elements. Topics include atomic structure and periodicity, symmetry, bonding theory, chemistry of the main-group elements and coordination chemistry. Laboratory introduces computational, preparative, and spectroscopic techniques.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
D. Cotter
Prereq: CHEM-201.; Coreq: CHEM-231L.

CHEM-295 Independent Study
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 1-4
Other attributes: Independent Study
The department
Instructor permission required? Y
Notes: Note: Students conducting an independent laboratory research project for course credit in a department, program, or laboratory covered by the College's chemical hygiene plan must participate in a safety training session before beginning research. Course can be repeated for credit.

CHEM-302 Organic Chemistry II
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: A continuation of Chemistry 202 that addresses the chemistry of aromatic compounds, the carbonyl group, and a number of other functional groups. Examples drawn from compounds of biological interest. The laboratory includes organic synthesis and the identification of unknown compounds by chemical and spectroscopic means.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. McMenimen, D. Hamilton
Prereq: CHEM-202 with grade of C or better.; Coreq: CHEM-302L.

CHEM-304 Advanced Organic Chemistry Laboratory
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 1
Description: This half-semester course, starting after spring break, applies and builds upon the techniques and tools of synthetic organic chemistry acquired during previous laboratory classes. Experiments will be selected to provide exposure to contemporary synthetic methods, to offer examples of the application of sophisticated reagents, to afford practice in modern separation and purification approaches, and provide scope for hands-on acquisition of Nuclear Magnetic Resonance (NMR) spectra.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
The department
Instructor permission required? Y
Coreq: CHEM-302.
Notes: Second half of semester

CHEM-307 Chemical Thermodynamics
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: A consideration of the contribution of thermodynamics to the understanding of 'driving forces' for the physical chemical changes and the nature of the equilibrium state.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
W. Chen
Prereq: MATH-102, PHYS-110, and CHEM-202 with grade of C or better.

CHEM-308 Chemical Thermodynamics with Lab
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: A consideration of the contribution of thermodynamics to the understanding of the 'driving forces' for physical chemical changes and the nature of the equilibrium state.
CHEM-311 Protein Biochemistry and Cellular Metabolism
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course is a rigorous introduction to the study of protein molecules and their role as catalysts of the cell. Topics include general principles of protein folding, protein structure-function correlation, enzyme kinetics and mechanism, carbohydrate and lipid biochemistry, and metabolic pathways (catabolic and anabolic) and their interaction and cross-regulation. Biological transformation of energy is considered in light of the principle of thermodynamics.
Crosslisted as: BIOCH-311, BIOL-311
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Berry
Restrictions: This course is limited to Biochemistry majors only.
Prereq: BIOL-230 (or BIOL-210) and CHEM-302.; Coreq: CHEM-311L.
Advisory: Biological Sciences 230 can be taken concurrently

CHEM-314 Nucleic Acids Biochemistry and Molecular Biology
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course is an in-depth examination of DNA and RNA structures and how these structures support their respective functions during replication, transcription, and translation of the genetic material. Emphasis is on the detailed mechanisms associated with each step of gene expression. Discussions incorporate many recent advances brought about by recombinant DNA technology.
Crosslisted as: BIOCH-314, BIOL-314
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Berry
Restrictions: This course is limited to Biochemistry majors only.
Prereq: BIOCH-311, BIOL-311, or CHEM-311.; Coreq: CHEM-314L.
Advisory: Chemistry 302 can be taken concurrently

CHEM-316 Chemical Biology
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: The field of chemical biology applies chemical perspectives and tools to the study of biological systems. In this course, we will examine the ways that synthetic chemistry has provided techniques that support, complement, and expand on those used in biochemistry, drug discovery, and molecular and cell biology. Topics may include solid phase biomolecule synthesis, combinatorial chemistry, bioconjugation, molecular probes, protein engineering, drug delivery, and synthetic biology.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Broaders
Prereq: CHEM-302 and any other 300-level chemistry or biochemistry course.

CHEM-317 Principles of Polymer Chemistry
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: An introduction to the study of molecules of high molecular weights with emphasis on synthetic rather than naturally occurring polymers. Topics include polymerization, structures, molecular weight determination, molecular weight distribution, chain configurations, rubber elasticity, and thermodynamics and statistical mechanics of polymer solutions.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
W. Chen
Notes: offered once every three years

CHEM-325 Atomic and Molecular Structure with Lab
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course is an introduction to experimental and theoretical approaches to the determination of the structure of atoms, molecules, and chemical bonds. Classroom work provides background in the theory of atomic and molecular structure and an introduction to quantum mechanics and spectroscopy.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. Gomez
Prereq: MATH-203 or PHYS 205, and CHEM-202, all with grade of C or better.; Coreq: CHEM-325L.
Advisory: MATH-203 is recommended.

CHEM-328 From Lilliput to Brobdingnag: Bridging the Scales Between Science and Engineering
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: The performance of many engineered devices is dependent on macroscopic factors (pressure, temperature, flow, conductivity). As a result, engineers often model devices macroscopically considering atomistic level details only through fixed parameters. These parameters do not always capture the full atomistic level picture. More accurate multi-scale approaches for modeling macroscopic properties use basic atomistic level chemistry at key points in larger scale simulations. This course is an introduction to such approaches focusing on fuel cells as a concrete example. Basic scientific principles will be developed alongside basic engineering principles through project/case studies.
Crosslisted as: PHYS-328
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
M. Gomez
Prereq: MATH-102 and PHYS-201.

CHEM-334 Advanced Inorganic Chemistry
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The implications of molecular symmetry as expressed in the language of group theory are explored in some depth. Group theory provides the context for a discussion of the structural and spectroscopic properties of inorganic compounds, particularly those of the transition metals.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
D. Cotter
Prereq: CHEM-302 and CHEM-325. (CHEM-325 may be taken concurrently with this course. Apply for instructor permission in this case.)
Notes: offered every other year

CHEM-336 Organic Synthesis
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course emphasizes recent developments in synthetic organic chemistry and deals with general synthetic methods and specific examples of natural product synthesis. It covers such topics as new methods of oxidation and reduction, stereospecific olefin formation, ring-forming reactions, and methods of carbon-carbon bond formation. The application of these reactions to the synthesis of naturally occurring compounds is examined. A general strategy for the synthesis of complex molecules is also presented.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
D. Hamilton
Prereq: CHEM-302.

CHEM-339 The Organic Chemistry of Biological Pathways
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course explores the underlying organic chemistry of biological pathways and thereby seeks to build a framework for understanding biological transformations from the perspective of mechanistic organic chemistry. Beginning with common biological mechanisms, and drawing parallels with their sophomore organic chemistry counterparts, a broad overview will be constructed of the pathways by which the key classes of biological molecules—lipids, carbohydrates, amino acids, nucleotides—are manufactured, modified, and consumed. Several specific biosyntheses will also be dissected from a mechanistic perspective. These case studies will include antibiotics, an alkaloid, and heme.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
D. Hamilton
Instructor permission required? Y
Prereq: CHEM-302.

CHEM-344 Physical Chemistry of Biochemical Systems
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course provides an overview of the fundamental principles of physical chemistry with an emphasis on their application to the study of biological molecules and processes. Topics will include quantum mechanics, statistical mechanics and thermodynamics. Discussion of applications will relate commonly used experimental techniques -- such as spectroscopy and calorimetry -- to the fundamental principles on which they are based. In addition, students will gain experience and confidence in the use of mathematical models to describe biochemical systems.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. van Giessen
Prereq: CHEM-202, MATH-102 and PHYS-110 with a grade of C or better.

CHEM-346 Physical Chemistry of Biochemical Systems With Lab
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course provides an overview of the fundamental principles of physical chemistry with an emphasis on their application to the study of biological molecules and processes. CHEM-349 Food Chemistry: the Science of the Kitchen
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Food Chemistry is an integrated lecture/lab course that focuses on the molecular bases of chemical phenomena that dictate the behavior of foods. We will examine topics such as trans fats, baking soda as a leavening agent in baking, the chemical basis for ripening of fruit, pectin as a cellular glue, artificial sweeteners, GMOs, and enzymatic and non-enzymatic browning of foods. The emphasis is on the major food components (water, lipids, proteins, and carbohydrates) and their behavior under various conditions. Content will be discussed using a variety of contexts including primary scientific literature, mainstream media, and food blogs. Laboratories provide opportunities for students to observe, manipulate, and explore topics in food chemistry under conditions of particular relevance to food processing.

CLASS-205 Cleopatra: "The Not Humble Woman"
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course Cleopatra will be considered both as a political figure of importance in her own right and also as an enemy queen, representing a presumptuous challenge to the political hegemony and cultural values of the Romans. She may serve, therefore, as a lens through which one may view social and political tensions within Roman society over the nature of authority and empire. Readings include Vergil, Horace, Propertius, Lucan, Caesar, Sallust, Plutarch and the plays of Shakespeare and Shaw, where she is ambivalently portrayed as a woman who desires power or, contrariwise, as a romantic idealist who scorns temporal powers in fulfillment of private desires.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
B. Arnold
Notes: Taught in English.

CLASS-211 Gods and Mortals: Ancient Greek and Roman Myth
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: We will accompany Odysseus on his return from Troy, retrieve the Golden Fleece with Jason, and race with Ovid through his witty -- and often troubling -- retelling of Greek myths from a Roman perspective. This course examines how Greek and Roman authors and artists from very different periods used myth to explore questions about life, art and politics. Works may include: Homer, Odyssey; Apollonius of Rhodes, Argonautica; Ovid, Metamorphoses and Heroides; Greek tragedy, and ancient images representing myths.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
P. Debnar
Restrictions: This course is limited to First-year and Sophomore students.
Advisory: Juniors and seniors should contact the professor for permission.
Notes: Taught in English. Optional screenings of films related to ancient myth.

CLASS-212 Greek Tragedy, American Drama, and Film
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the critical influence of the three most important Athenian dramatists, Aeschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides, on the works of modern dramatists and filmmakers, including Eugene O'Neill, Tennessee Williams, Arthur Miller, Roman Polanski, Woody Allen, Ridley Scott, Jules Dassin, Theodoros Angelopoulos, and others. Attention is given to the different concepts of tragedy underlying the genre, such as the tragedy of self-knowledge and illusion, the tragedy of desire, the tragedy of sin and redemption, and tragedy as protest against social injustice.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
B. Arnold

CLASS-215 Classical Political Thought
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Through the works of such thinkers as Aeschylus, Thucydides, Plato, Aristotle, Augustine, Aquinas, Seneca, and Pizan, this course explores the broad themes of ancient and medieval political thought. We will pay particular attention to the ways these writers characterized the relationship between the individual and community; the roles knowledge, reason, emotion, and rhetoric play in political life; the link between gender and citizenship; and the various forms political community can take.

CLASS-226 Bread and Circuses: The Politics of Public Entertainment in Ancient Rome
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Bread and circuses (panem et circenses) was a catchphrase in the Roman empire that described the political strategy of controlling an unruly populace through free bread and public entertainment. Against a backdrop of Roman social and political institutions, this course focuses on the imperial ideology, aristocratic ethos, and cultural practices that underpinned this catchphrase, as well as questions concerning the careers of entertainers-- gladiators, charioteers, and actors—who were at once celebrities and social outcasts; the rules of spectatorship at the games; the use of these games as a form of social control; and the logistics of feeding the city population.

CLASS-227 Ancient Greece
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course will trace the emergence and expansion of Greek civilization in the Mediterranean between the Bronze Age and Alexander the Great. Among themes to be explored are political structures, trade, slavery, gender relations, and religion, as well as the contributions of ancient Greeks to literary genres (drama, rhetoric, historiography, philosophy) and to the visual arts. Throughout we will consider how the history of the ancient Greeks can speak to modern concerns. Sources will include works of ancient Greek literature and history (e.g., Homer, Herodotus, Thucydides, Aristophanes, Plutarch) as well as archaeological and epigraphic evidence.

CLASS-228 Ancient Rome
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Ancient Rome and its empire can be viewed both as a measure of human achievement and a cautionary tale of the corrupting effects of unbridled power. This course covers the history of Ancient Rome from its mythologized beginnings (753 BCE) to the rise and spread of Christianity under the Emperor Constantine (312 CE). Topics include the creation and development of Rome's republican form of government as well as its eventual transition to monarchy, the causes and consequences of the acquisition of empire, the role of the army in administering the provinces and defending the frontiers, the image of emperor, the economy, and religion.

Crosslisted as: HIST-228

CLASS-229 The Tyrant and Gladiator: Bad Roman Emperors from Caligula to Commodus
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Caligula was a god (or so he thought); Nero fiddled while Rome burned; Commodus dressed as a gladiator and fought man and beast in the arena. The history of the Roman empire is replete with scandalous stories about eccentric and even insane emperors whose reigns raise questions about the nature of the emperor's power and his role in administering the empire. In this course a close study of Roman imperial biography and historiography—the source of so many of these stories of bad emperors—will be weighed against documentary and archaeological evidence in order to reveal the dynamic between the emperor, his court, and his subjects that was fundamental to the political culture of imperial Rome.

CLASS-230 The City of Rome From Romulus to Constantine
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: A detailed survey of the archaeology of the city of Rome from its origin in the early Iron Age to the beginning of the fourth century CE. The principal monuments and architectural development of the ancient city will be discussed against a broader cultural and historical background, with an emphasis on the powerful families and individuals responsible for the shaping of the urban landscape, and the specific social and political circumstances that gave the monuments meaning.

CLASS-231 The City of Athens from Theseus to Alaric
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: A detailed survey of the principal surviving monuments and overall architectural development of the city of Athens from its origins in the Bronze Age to the end of the 4th century C. E.
The archaeological evidence will be discussed against a broader cultural and historical background, with an emphasis on the specific people and events that helped to shape the city and the general social and political circumstances that gave the monuments meaning.

CLASS-232 War and Imperialism in the Ancient World
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Ancient Greeks and Romans viewed warfare as an abiding part of the human condition.
The literature and artwork of the ancient world are filled with images of the two faces of war: it conferred great glory on the combatants but at the cost of tremendous horror and suffering. In this course we will examine warfare from archaic Greece and the rise of the city-state (ca. 800 B.C.E.) to the fall of the Roman Empire in the west (ca. 476 C.E.).
We will consider such topics as the culture and ethics of war and imperialism, logistics and strategies of warfare, as well as armor, weaponry and battlefield tactics.

COLL-110 Science in the World
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 1
Description: This 1-credit seminar is especially designed for students transferring to Mount Holyoke to pursue a major in the sciences or mathematics. The course will connect new transfer students to people and resources that will help them to fully engage in the sciences at Mount Holyoke and provide a space to practice the modes of discourse common to upper-level science and math courses. We explore interdisciplinary topics such as the biology of stress, and learn about science opportunities (including internships) and effective strategies for excelling in science and math courses. We use the primary literature as a text, and gain practice with analytical writing in a setting specifically designed for transfer students. The curriculum is guided by research-based best practices and is designed in consultation with former transfer students.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

COLL-225 Topics in Leadership

COLL-225LP Topics in Leadership: ‘Leadership and Public Impact’
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 1
Description: What does leadership in the public sphere look like? What does it mean to be an influential leader as an elected official, a policy advocate, or a public servant? In this six-week course, we will examine research literature and case examples, and hear from speakers from different aspects in the public service realm. Topics will include leadership capacities, issue advocacy, working with constituents, women’s experiences, and effective mentoring and networking. Students will complete one project relevant to public impact.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
B. Packard
Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors
Notes: Repeatable for credit. Credit/no credit grading. Half-semester course.
Course can be repeated for credit.

 COLL-115 Global Challenges

COLL-211 Reflecting Back: Connecting Internship and Research to Your Liberal Arts Education
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 2
Description: Learn to speak with confidence and clarity about your summer internship or research project. Connect it to you academic coursework. What have you learned? How is it useful? What are your next steps? Students will reflect on their experience and collaborate with others to generate useful knowledge. Required for the Nexus but open to all students. For more information, email nexus@mtholyoke.edu.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
E. Townsley
Notes: Class meeting dates: 9/17, 9/24, 10/1, 10/15, 10/22. All students will present at LEAP Symposium on 10/19.
COMSC-100 An Introduction to Computer Science
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: An introduction to basic computer science concepts with a focus on Python programming to manipulate images and sounds. Lectures will cover topics such as the origins of computing, computer architecture, artificial intelligence, and robotics. Programming exercises will use the Python language to do image and sound manipulation.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
J. Slocum
Notes: Students may not take this course after Computer Science 100, 106, or 151.

COMSC-103 Networks
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: How do opinions, fads, and political movements spread through society? What makes food webs and financial markets robust? What are the technological, political, and economic forces at play in online communities? This course examines connections between the social, technological, and natural worlds through the lens of networks. Students will learn basics of graph theory and game theory and apply them to build mathematical models of processes that take place in networks.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
The department

COMSC-106 Fundamentals of Applied Computing
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Have you ever used Google's image search tool and wondered how the search results were found? Why is it so difficult for a computer to "see" as we do? Computer scientists are actively researching how to approach this challenge of "computer vision." This course will introduce the fundamentals of applied computing using computer vision as a motivating theme. Students will learn foundations of programming (in the Python programming language) before working with computational tools more independently.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. St. John

COMSC-109 iDesign Studio
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Designers are continually innovating ways of incorporating technology into today's world, from projections of butterflies on Grammy performance dresses to "smart" purses that sense when your wallet is missing. The recent emergence of low-cost, user-friendly components is making this new world of design accessible to a broad community. In this course, students will think critically about products already in the marketplace and will be given the tools to create their own designs. A sequence of hands-on workshops on electronics basics and microcontroller programming will provide the surprisingly minimal level of comfort and background in technology required to produce prototypes of these designs.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
P. Klemperer, The department

COMSC-132 Engineering for Everyone
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Engineers change the world we live in every day by developing and improving nearly every aspect of our lives. In this course, we will study the interaction of technology and society and how the engineering design process helps shape the world we live in. Engineering comprises many disciplines, but one common theme is the engineering design process: research, problem definition, feasibility, conceptualization, prototyping, and testing. In this class, students will learn the engineering design process through application to contemporary technological and societal issues put into practice with pitch presentations, design reviews, prototypes, and written reports.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
P. Klemperer
Advisory: This course has no prerequisites and is recommended for all students interested in COMSC-151 Introduction to Computational Problem Solving

COMSC-151AA Introduction to Computational Problem Solving: 'Algorithmic Arts'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Introduction to the field of computer science with a computer art theme. Introduces students to algorithms, basic data structures, and programming techniques. Explores computation as an artistic medium, examining a range of computational art practices. By combining aspects of a studio art course, a media art survey, and an introductory computing lab, course participants will develop a solid foundation in computer programming approaches and techniques as they pertain to art production as well as an understanding of their emerging importance in the contemporary art world.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
E. Mendelowitz
Coreq: COMSC-101AAL.

COMSC-151AR Introduction to Computational Problem Solving: 'Artificial Intelligence'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Introduction to the field of computer science with a theme of artificial intelligence. Introduces students to algorithms, basic data structures, and programming techniques, and basic methods from artificial intelligence. Includes discussion of foundational papers in AI. Programming exercises will explore what is necessary in order to get computers to operate in ways that seem intelligent such as in game play or solving puzzles.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
V. Barr
Coreq: COMSC-101ARL.

COMSC-151DS Introduction to Computational Problem Solving: 'Data Science'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Introduction to the field of computer science with a data science theme. Introduces students to algorithms, basic data structures, and programming techniques. Also introduces the skills, techniques, and tools needed to collect, prepare, analyze, and visualize data to quantitatively ask and answer questions. Through readings, discussions, case studies, and projects, students will explore a breadth of subjects including programming for data manipulation, the presentation and representation of data, statistics and machine learning, "Big Data," and the ethics of working with data at scale.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
E. Mendelowitz
Coreq: COMSC-101DSL.

COMSC-151HC Introduction to Computational Problem Solving: 'Humanities Computing'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Introduction to the field of computer science with a theme of humanities computing. Introduces students to algorithms, basic data structures, and programming techniques. Students will explore solving problems that arise in humanities disciplines: various forms of text analysis, image manipulation, animation, and sound manipulation.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
V. Barr
Coreq: COMSC-101HCL.

COMSC-151MD Introduction to Computational Problem Solving: 'Computers in Medicine'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Introduction to the field of computer science with a theme of computing in medicine. Introduces students to algorithms, basic data structures, and programming techniques. Students will explore solving problems that arise in areas such as bioinformatics, robotic prosthesis, and analyzing bioelectric signals.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
J. Slocum
Coreq: COMSC-101MDL.
COMSC-201 Advanced Problem-Solving and Elementary Data Structures
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course builds on the basic programming concepts learned in Computer Science 101. Emphasis is on developing the skills needed to write more sophisticated programs. This includes strategies to aid in assuring the correctness of programs through the use of assertions and unit testing as well as advanced Java features such as inheritance, polymorphism, and network programming. We will also introduce some widely used data structures such as vectors and linked lists. This course is programming-intensive.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
H. Pon-Barry, A. St. John
Prereq: COMSC-101 with a grade of C or better.; Coreq: COMSC-201L.
Notes: Students must select a lab with the same instructor as the lecture.

COMSC-205 Data Structures
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course builds on the basic programming concepts learned in Computer Science 151, shifting the focus to the organization of data in order to improve efficiency and simplicity of programs. Topics include the study of abstract data types and data structures (such as linked lists, stacks, queues, and binary trees). This course is programming-intensive and introduces the Java programming language.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
The department
Prereq: COMSC-101 or COMSC-151 with a grade of C or better.; Coreq: COMSC-205L.
Advisory: This course cannot be taken by students who have completed COMSC-211.

COMSC-211 Advanced Data Structures
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Using Java. Solving problems with computers is accomplished by writing programs that operate on data to produce a desired result. The way data is organized and presented to the program can significantly affect its efficiency and simplicity and can sometimes determine whether or not a program can be written to solve the problem at all. This course presents ways of organizing data into 'data structures' and analyzes how structuring the data can improve program performance. This course is programming intensive.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. St. John, The department
Prereq: COMSC-201.

COMSC-215 Software Design
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Building large software systems introduces new challenges to software development. Appropriate design decisions early in the development of large software can make a major difference in developing software that is correct and maintainable. In this course, students will learn techniques and tools to help them address these problems and develop larger software projects, improving their skills in designing, writing, debugging, and testing software. Topics include design patterns, UML, designing for maintainability, software architecture, and designing concurrent and fault tolerant systems. Programming intensive.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
The department
Prereq: COMSC-201.

COMSC-221 Introduction to Computing Systems
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course looks at the inner workings of a computer and computer systems. It is an introduction to computer architecture. Specific topics include assembly language programming, memory, and parallelism. This course is programming intensive.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
L. Ballesteros, J. Slocum
Prereq: COMSC-201.; Coreq: COMSC-221L.

COMSC-225 Programming Paradigms and Software Development
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Computational approaches to problems follow an iterative design process, refining an abstract solution to a final implementation. This includes identifying or creating an abstract model for the problem, choosing appropriate data structures and algorithms or heuristics and working within the constraints of a particular programming paradigm or environment. In this course, students will put this design process into practice through programming projects, using additional tools beyond those in COMSC-151 and COMSC-205. This course is programming intensive.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
E. Mendelowitz
Prereq: COMSC-205.

COMSC-226 Engineering Robotic Systems
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This intermediate-level course presents a hands-on introduction to robotics. Each participant will construct and modify a robot controlled by an Arduino-compatible microcontroller. Topics include kinematics, inverse kinematics, control-theory, sensors, mechatronics, and motion planning. Material will be delivered through one weekly lecture and one weekly guided laboratory. Assignments include a lab-preparatory homework, guided lab sessions, and out-of-class projects that build upon the in-class sessions. Participants will use the Makerspace facilities to fabricate and demonstrate their robots.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
P. Klemperer
Instructor permission required? Y
Prereq: COMSC-109 or COMSC-201.

COMSC-243 Topic

COMSC-243EM Topic: 'Embodied Interaction'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This class will expose students to programming techniques used in computer-based interactive art including real-time graphics, data visualization, human-computer interaction, sensor networks, computer vision, and physical computing through analysis of existing computational art and synthesis of original works. The course will place particular emphasis on embodied interaction -- interaction that uses sensors to react to the whole body. Weekly assignments and reading will serve to reinforce concepts from lectures, build technical skills, and develop a personal aesthetic.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
E. Mendelowitz
Prereq: COMSC-211.

COMSC-295 Independent Study

COMSC-311 Theory of Computation
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Are there any limits to what computers can do? Does the answer to this question depend on whether you use a PC or a Mac? Is C more powerful than PASCAL? This seminar explores these questions by investigating several models of computation, illustrating the power and limitations of each of these models, and relating them to computational problems and applications. Topics include finite state automata, pushdown automata, grammars, Turing machines, the Universal Turing Machine, and computability.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
The department
Prereq: COMSC-201 and MATH-232.

COMSC-312 Algorithms
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: How does Mapquest find the best route between two locations? How do computers help to decode the human genome? At the heart of these and other complex computer applications are nontrivial algorithms. While algorithms must be specialized to an application, there are some standard ways of approaching algorithmic problems that tend to be useful in many applications. Among other topics, we will explore graph algorithms, greedy algorithms, divide-and-conquer, dynamic programming, and network flow. We will learn to recognize when to apply each of these strategies as well as to evaluate the expected runtime costs of the algorithms we design.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
D. Sheldon
Prereq: COMSC-211 and MATH-232.
COMSC-322 Operating Systems
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: An introduction to the issues involved in orchestrating the use of computer resources. Topics include operating system evolution, file-handling systems, memory management, virtual memory, resource scheduling, multiprogramming, deadlocks, concurrent processes, protection, and design principles. Course emphasis: understanding the effects of operating system design on computer system performance. This course is programming intensive.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
V. Barr, B. Lerner
Prereq: COMSC-211 and COMSC-221.

COMSC-334 Artificial Intelligence
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Artificial Intelligence, as a field, has grown from its humble beginnings in science fiction to become one of the broadest fields in computer science, encompassing an incredibly wide array of topics. One of the common threads between these topics is "How do we build computer systems which exhibit logic and reason?" or rather "How do we build systems which can solve problems intelligently without resorting to brute force?" We'll cover a few major topics in this course, most notably search, logical reasoning, and planning as well as game playing/theory, uncertain reasoning, and graphical models. This course is programming intensive.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
L. Ballesteros
Prereq: COMSC-211 and MATH-232.

COMSC-335 Machine Learning
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: How does Netflix learn what movies a person likes? How do computers read handwritten addresses on packages, or detect faces in images? Machine learning is the practice of programming computers to learn and improve through experience, and it is becoming pervasive in technology and science. This course will cover the mathematical underpinnings, algorithms, and practices that enable a computer to learn. Topics will include supervised learning, unsupervised learning, evaluation methodology, and Bayesian probabilistic modeling.
Students will learn to program in MATLAB or Python and apply course skills to solve real world prediction and pattern recognition problems. Programming Intensive.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
The department
Prereq: COMSC-211, MATH-232, and a Calculus course (MATH-101, MATH-102, or MATH-203).

COMSC-336 Intelligent Information Retrieval
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Introduces the basic concepts, methodologies, and research findings in information retrieval. Special topics include Web searching, cross-language retrieval, data mining, and data extraction. Completion of this course will provide the necessary foundation to work in today's business environment where competitive advantage is obtained by retrieving needed information.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
L. Ballesteros
Prereq: COMSC-211.

COMSC-341 Topics

COMSC-341DC Topics: 'Distributed Systems Engineering'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: How does Google respond to search queries so quickly? How does the power grid maintain stability when a tree falls on a wire? Distributed systems solve big problems by facilitating cooperation between independent agents towards a common goal. This course covers major principles of distributed systems: resource contention, concurrent action, scheduling, and communicating. Students will put theory into practice designing, implementing, and debugging distributed systems. This course is programming intensive.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
P. Klemperer
Prereq: COMSC-211.

COMSC-341NL Topics: 'Natural Language Processing'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This seminar provides an introduction to natural language processing, the discipline of getting computers to understand human language. We will cover core ideas and algorithms relevant to both speech processing and text processing, with emphasis on applications in human-computer natural language interaction. Students will design and complete an open-ended final project.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
H. Pon-Barry
Prereq: COMSC-211.

COMSC-341SP Topics: 'Computer Security & Privacy'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Data security is an everyday concern for people but also for high-profile targets like the United States Director of National Intelligence, the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation, Target and Home Depot. In the course we will study the security vulnerabilities that make attacks possible and actions that can be taken to mitigate them. This course will introduce a variety of security topics: identifying software security vulnerabilities, malicious software, cryptography, authentication, access-control, networking, risk-analysis, usability, and ethics. Students will complete readings, in-class discussions, and hands-on programming activities.

COMSC-343 Programming Language Design and Implementation
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Ever wonder why there are so many semicolons in Java programs, or what it would mean for a language to not be object-oriented? In this course, we will explore issues related to the design and implementation of programming languages. Along the way, we will discover answers to these questions and more. Topics will include syntax, semantics, runtime support for languages as well as an introduction to functional programming.

Critical Social Thought

CST-149 Topics in Critical Social Thought
Description: Over the last century, religionists have labored to discover the meaning of African dispersal beyond the continent and its accompanying spiritual lineages. What theories of encounter sufficiently adjudicate the synthetic religious cultures of African-descended persons in North America, South America, and the Caribbean? What are the cross-disciplinary methodologies that scholars utilize to understand African religious cultures in the Western hemisphere? Firstly, this course will introduce the field of Africana religious studies. This background will inform the second and primary objective of the course: thematizing and exploring West and Central African religious traditions housed in the Americas.

CST-149AD Topics in Critical Social Thought: 'Introduction to African Diaspora Religions'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Over the last century, religionists have labored to discover the meaning of African dispersal beyond the continent and its accompanying spiritual lineages. CST-200 Foundations in Critical Social Thought
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This class introduces students to the interdisciplinary field of Critical Social Thought. Students will learn to interrogate and challenge structures of social, cultural, and political power from a variety of theoretical traditions, such as Marxism, critical ethnic studies, queer and gender critique, critical race theory, media studies, performance studies, disability studies, history of science, the Frankfurt school, and settler colonial and postcolonial theory. Developing skills in theoretical and social critique to address pressing social issues, students will be equipped with an interdisciplinary toolbox to pursue independent projects.

CST-248 Science, Revolution, and Modernity
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Introduces critical analysis of science and technology by tracing the historiography of the Scientific Revolution. The significance of this extended intellectual episode has been assessed in radically different ways throughout the intervening centuries. As such, it provides a fertile ground on which to pose and answer important questions about science and its role in society. What does it mean to regard science as ‘revolutionary’? How are scientific developments shaped by, and how do they shape, the social, economic, and political worlds in which they are embedded? How is our contemporary understanding of science and technology influenced by the stories we tell about the past?

CST-249 Topics in Critical Social Thought

CST-249AE Topics in Critical Social Thought: 'Afro-Asian Encounters: Literatures, Cultures, Activisms'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course explores historical and contemporary connections between African American and Asian American communities -- the moments of solidarity as well as tension that have made their mark on literary and expressive culture. Looking to literary narratives, historical documents, film, and performance, we will consider how these groups have been defined in relation to one another, and explore how the categories of "Black" and "Asian" have come to be defined in the US context. In addition to our exploration of cultural objects, we will also study comparative ethnic frameworks — like women of color feminisms and queer of color critique — that read across and through the partitioning of ethnic American groups. This course ultimately aims to get students to think critically about the making of racial meaning, and to consider the centrality of literature and culture to social justice movements.

CST-249AN Topics in Critical Social Thought: 'Aliens, Anti-Citizens, and Identities'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: The course will examine marginal and "alien" citizenship statuses in the United States. Whereas the Declaration of Independence asserts that "all men are created equal," we will interrogate that statement by studying identities and personages that are explicitly treated unequally in the law and society. From immigrants to gang members, from tipped workers to queer persons, from presumed terrorists to disenfranchised ex-cons, we will examine the deliberate incorporation and maintenance of people in society into lower classes and statuses.

CST-249CC Topics in Critical Social Thought: 'Cults, Conspiracies, and Moral Panics'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Using case studies such as the Eugenics Movement, Jonestown, and the Kennedy Assassination, this course will examine how distrust of the government, originally motivated by logical concerns, has transformed the way people think about power in the postmodern era. The class will explore the difference between rational questioning of authority and blind distrust that leads to questionable claims. Through topics such as the War on Drugs, this class shows how the powerful are able to use biases and public fears to carry out their own, often counterproductive, measures. These cases studies have issues like race and class at their core. We will examine how certain social issues have managed to endure.

CST-249CP Topics in Critical Social Thought: 'Trap Doors and Glittering Closets: Queer/Trans* of Color Politics of Recognition, Legibility, Visibility and Aesthetics'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: In 2014, Time magazine declared the "Transgender Tipping Point" as a popular moment of transgender people's arrival into the mainstream. Using a queer and trans* of color critique, this course will unpack the political discourses and seeming binaries surrounding visibility/invisibility, recognition/misrecognition, legibility/illegibility, belonging/unbelonging and aesthetics/utility. How might we grapple with the contradictions of the trapdoors, pitfalls, dark corners and glittering closets that structure and normalize violence for some while safeguarding violence for others? This course will center the 2017 anthology Trap Door: Trans Cultural Production and the Politics of Visibility.

CST-249CT Topics in Critical Social Thought: 'Cognitive Theory and Literary Studies'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: A survey of philosophical, scientific, and theoretical approaches to the relation between cognition and representation. For as long as we have told stories, we have thought about how they work in conjunction with the mind. This course charts the many ways in which cognitive theory has shaped literary studies over the ages. How does fiction reflect the way we think? How in turn does it shape how we behave? What happens in the brain and body when we read? Starting in antiquity and working through history towards contemporary neuroscience and cognitive psychology, we will consider such matters as action and imitation; reality and fantasy; reason and imagination; aesthetics, empathy, and affect.

CST-249DD Topics in Critical Social Thought:
"Diversity, Inclusion, and Daily Democracy in US History"
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: How have Americans -- and those contending with America -- envisioned and reached for more just and inclusive communities? What historical circumstances have opened opportunities for more robust democratic forms to emerge in the face of oppression? We will consider structural barriers to meaningful inclusion, involving racism, wealth, poverty, property, citizenship, gender, sexuality, disability, and dissent, as well as efforts to overcome them through concerted action and cultural struggle in the arts and public humanities. What public stories shape our connections with one another? What can we learn about the possibilities for sustaining democracy through daily life and culture?

CST-249EM Topics in Critical Social Thought:
'Embodiment in Theory: Precarious Lives from Marx to Butler'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: We examine the writing of major nineteenth, twentieth, and twenty-first century theorists, such as Marx, Nietzsche, Freud, Dubois, Arendt, Fanon, Foucault, Butler, and others through the lens of embodiment. Rather than read theory as an abstract entity, we explore how theory itself is an embodiment of actual lives in which human beings experience life as precarious. What are the social conditions that create vulnerable bodies? How do thinkers who lived or are living precarious lives represent these bodies? Through a series of case studies based on contemporary examples of precarity, we examine the legacy and materiality of critical social thought.

CST-249FA Topics in Critical Social Thought:
'Fascism in Plain Sight'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines fascism from a visual perspective. Students learn about the history of the phenomenon through the lenses of cinema, television, and performance. The course begins with an overview of fascism that spans from 1920s Europe to the present. What exactly is fascism? What is its relationship to newly emergent populisms (often called "fascist") and their own emphasis on spectacle? How does fascism visualize race, immigration, gender, sexuality, and violence? The course focuses mainly on fascism's manifestations throughout the Spanish-speaking world. That is, what do Latin America and Spain teach us about its malleability and adaptability?

CST-249FD Topics in Critical Social Thought: 'Eating Asian America: Thinking through Food in Literature and Culture'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
This course will focus on 20th and 21st century Asian American literature and culture through the critical lens of food: as medium of representation, crucible of memory, site of labor, and material trace of history. Through analyses of pop culture, literature, film, and cultural history, we will examine the intimate association of Asian American subjects with food, eating and cooking, as well as food's relationship to anti-immigrant sentiment, cultural assimilation, multiculturalist celebration, and U.S. empire. This course will further situate food within an intersectional framework, through which we consider the co-articulation of race with gender, sexuality, class, and nation.

CST-249FM Special Topics in Critical Social Thought: 'Frames of Mind: Tracking Power/Knowledge'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: A frame of mind typically refers to a mood or perspective. However, such dispositions also reflect a certain regulation of thought and thus behavior. In other words, something "frames" our minds in the first place. This course explores these ideas by interrogating the history of commonplace assumptions regarding issues such as freedom, race, prison, sexuality, government, and insanity. Authors include Giorgio Agamben, Wendy Brown, Michel Foucault, Friedrich Nietzsche, Edward Said, Ann Laura Stoler, and others.

CST-249LR Topics in Critical Social Thought: 'Latina/o/x Urbanism'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the relationship between the urban and Latina/o/x placemaking, identities and culture(s). Urban scholars have long studied the "evolving" city-this course explores the changing city in relation to Latina/o/x populations and urban social change movements. We examine historical and contemporary conditions and cover a broad range of topics including: urbanization, urban planning, "new urbanism," placemaking, gentrification, migration/immigration, segregation, and more. The readings in this course aim to provoke a consideration of the dynamic between space and place, as well as how urban life, culture, and form impacts Latina/o/x populations and vice versa.

CST-249NT Topics in Critical Social Thought: 'Black, Jewish, and Muslim Cultures in Germany: Intersectionalities of Othering'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: As much as German culture is riddled with extreme examples of persecution and nationalism, the presence of those deemed non-German, such as Black Africans, African Americans, Jews, and Muslims, shaped cultural expression and cultural exchange. In this seminar we explore the expression of otherness as portrayed in literature, film, and art from the eighteenth through twenty-first Centuries. Drawing from critical race theory, critical ethnic studies, and gender studies, we consider work by non-Germans as well as the representation of others in German canonical and popular cultural production.

Description: This course analyzes the concepts of race and racism from an interdisciplinary perspective, with focus on Latinas/os/x in the United States.
States. It explores the sociocultural, political, economic, and historical forces that interact with each other in the production of racial categories and racial "difference." In particular, we focus on racial ideologies, racial formation theory, and processes of racialization, as well as the relationship between race and ethnicity. The course examines racial inequality from a historical perspective and investigates how racial categories evolve and form across contexts. The analysis that develops will ultimately allow us to think rigorously about social inequality, resistance and liberation.

CST-249TJ Topics in Critical Social Thought: Culture: 'Transforming Justice and Practicing Truth to Power: Critical Methodologies and Methods in Community Participatory Action Research and Accountability'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will offer an overview of select methodologies and methods from Community-based Participatory Action Research (CBPAR), Participatory Action Research (PAR), collaborative ethnography and other social justice research interventions such as radical oral history, grassroots research collectives, experimental digital archives, research and data justice networks and organizations. We will center on questions of "accountability"; that is, to whom, for whom, and to what end do processes of accountability serve those already in power? Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will investigate knowledge/cultural production produced by trans* communities, particularly those multiply impacted by categories of race, gender, sexuality, class, ability, citizenship and location. To understand the critical feminist genealogy/insurgency in which transgender studies/activism have become a field/site of political discourse, we will explore the overlaps and tensions between women/queer/trans* of color activism and theory. Using experimental and multimedia archives of affect, grief, desire, love, liberation and identitarian contradictions, we will ask how counter genealogies as process can transform how we relate to and inhabit power, futurity and memory.

Description: We will explore the cultural and political impact of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001. The media's role in constructing meanings will be a main organizing focus of the course. Using readings, discussions, assignments, and films, the course will allow students to form a picture of how 9/11 changed America and beyond. Course topics include: the way the mainstream media constructed 9/11 and alternate ways they could have; how popular culture and the Public Sphere responded; complex historical factors leading up to 9/11; reasons the attackers say they committed the attacks; ways the event changed culture and politics in the world; conspiracy theories.

CST-256 Rethinking (Under)Development in Latin America
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: When and how did the notion of "development" emerge and spread? Why does nearly every country now aspire to it? What stigmas and hierarchies does the term "under-development" imply? Throughout Latin America, such terms prove highly problematic not only with respect to the material reality they purport to describe but also as a framework for understanding place, time, and selfhood. In this course, students rethink conventional wisdom about "underdevelopment" through the study of writers, filmmakers, and painters from Latin America working at different historical junctures of the twentieth century.

CST-258 Existentialism
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Does human life have meaning (purpose)? Can religion or spirituality provide it? If not, is human life 'absurd'? How can we attain or create meaning in the face of the 'absurdity' of human life? What is genuine human freedom? Are other people in the world obstacles to, or also sources for, our attempt to attain or create meaning in our lives? What is existential commitment and 'authenticity'? Is existentialist ethics possible at all? We will examine the central themes of existentialism in readings from Kierkegaard, Dostoyevsky, Nietzsche, Sartre, Camus, de Beauvoir, and Fanon (among others). We will also end the course by considering some significant criticisms of existentialism.

CST-339 The Visual Culture of Protest
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines social protests from the perspective of the visual. Examining cultural productions from 1948-2015 we will focus on the geographical specificity of planned and spontaneous protests that have mobilized people into action. We will use a black studies framework to engage the possibilities present in resisting disparate power structures of race, gender, sexuality, class, and region. Artists, musicians, activists, writers, and grassroots organizers of social movements have been ever cognizant of the role of the visual in subverting power structures. We will use this opportunity to place visual culture at the center of a conversation concerning resistance, human rights, political agency, citizenship, and freedom.

CST-346 Irish Gothic
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This advanced seminar will study the gothic as a genre and as a malleable yet persistent discursive site in Irish literary and political tradition. From the eighteenth century to the present, the gothic has been used to explore aspects of Irish history, in particular colonialism. The course will focus on texts that engage with three primary problems that the Irish gothic is used to explore: violence and terror, famine, and vampirism as a political metaphor. We will read novels, short fiction, poetry, and archival newspaper writing, including work by Maturin, Edgeworth, Lady Wilde, Mangan, LeFanu, Stoker, Joyce, Bowen, Enright, Deane, Boland, and Heaney.

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Dragon ladies, lotus blossoms, geisha girls--the U.S. cultural imaginary is saturated with myths regarding Asian sexuality and gender. This interdisciplinary course intervenes into this dominant imaginary by exploring feminist and queer frameworks derived from Asian-American contexts: immigration, labor, racial stereotyping, militarization, citizenship, and so-called "terrorism." Through a mix of scholarly, creative, activist, and media texts, we will challenge preconceived notions about Asian Americans as regressive, repressed, or hyper-sexual, as well as examine the powerful counter-imaginaries offered within Asian American literature and culture. CST-349BT Advanced Topics: 'The Body Toxic: Narratives of Race, Disability, and Illness'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the intersections of race, disability, illness, and health using literature and culture as primary sites of engagement. Looking to writers like Audre Lorde, Anna Deavere Smith, Mia Mingus, Harriet Jacobs, and Indra Sinha, it asks how structures of racial, environmental, and economic inequity transform the category of disability, which critics have primarily defined in terms of whiteness. It also considers alternate conceptions of health—models that do not align with mandates of productivity or normative embodiment—offered by the texts under consideration, and asks what political/social liberation might look like when able-bodiedness is no longer privileged.

CST-349CF Advanced Topics: 'Survived, Punished and (Un)Deserving: Feminist Participatory Action Research Against Carceral Feminisms'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course will consider the critical intervention of #SurvivedAndPunished, and the idea of "survivor defense as abolitionist praxis." Using principles and case studies from feminist and critical race action research, we will investigate the concepts of transformative justice, carceral feminism and anti-violence alongside the binaries of deserving/undeserving and good-victim/non-victim criminal. How does this relate to the corrective notions of rehabilitation, redemption and restitution? What does the criminalization of survivors of violence (i.e., gendered, racial, intimate partner, sexual and state violence) tell us about our limited views of justice and collective healing from harm?

CST-349FM Advanced Topics: 'Latina Feminism(s)'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: What is Latina Feminism? How does it differ from and/or intersect with "other" feminisms? In this seminar, we will explore the relationship between Latina feminist theory, knowledge production, and social change in the United States. This interdisciplinary course explores Latina feminism in relation to methodology and epistemology through a historical lens. This will help us to better understand how Latina feminist approaches can inform our research questions, allow us to analyze women's experiences and women's history, and challenge patriarchy and gender inequality. We will explore topics related to knowledge production, philosophies of the "self," positionality, inequality, the body, reproductive justice, representation, and community. Our approach in this class will employ an intersectional approach to feminist theory that understands the interconnectedness between multiple forms of oppression, including race, class, sexuality, and ability. Central to seminar discussions and student learning is a substantial community-based learning requirement that will facilitate a deeper engagement and analysis of the relationship between the concepts we explore in the course. Our goal is to develop a robust understanding of how Latina feminist methodologies and epistemologies can be tools for social change.

CST-349MR Advanced Topics: 'The Medieval Mirror: Freedom, Gender and Resistance in Contemporary Arabic Literature'
 Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
 Description: Setting their historical novels in the Middle Ages, contemporary Arab writers such as Radwa Ashour, Jurjy Zaydan, Gamal al-Ghitani and Bensalem Himmich have reflected into the past the problems of present Middle-Eastern societies. Writing from Egypt, Lebanon and Morocco, they revisited with nostalgia the extraordinary medieval heritage of the Arab-Islamic world, educating their readers while taking them on journeys to Medieval Andalusia, to the last years of the Baghdad of the caliphs, and to Cairo on eve of the Ottoman conquest. By looking into the medieval mirror, these authors challenged conservative readings of this heritage. In doing so, they contributed to the modernization of their countries and were able to escape censorship, uphold feminist values, and to criticize Western imperialism and oppressive Arab rulers. In this course, we will read their works in valuable English translations, while discussing their extraordinary lives as twentieth-century writers, intellectuals, and activists.

CST-349MC Advanced Topics: 'Latinas/os/x and Housing: Mi Casa Is Not Su Casa'
 Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
 Description: Housing is closely tied to quality of life and the health of neighborhoods and communities. As a main goal of the "American Dream," homeownership has important significance on an individual and societal level. For immigrants, this goal is often out of reach as a result of racism and discriminatory housing policies. This interdisciplinary seminar explores Latinas/os/x relationship to housing and homeownership by examining: 1. the history of housing policy in the United States; 2. national identity, assimilation, and housing; and 3. discriminatory housing policies/programs and housing inequality. We explore topics including immigration, housing policy, public housing, segregation, gentrification, the suburbs, homelessness, eviction, affordability, and community building. Exploring this range of topics will help us develop a clearer understanding of why housing is one of the most pressing issues for Latinas/os/x today.

CST-349MS Advanced Topics: 'Multi-Species Justice? Entangled Lives and Human Power'
 Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: How can we change animal exploitation and re-situate the human more equitably with other species? Through animal rights? Justice? Abolition? Dismantle human exceptionalism? Animal emancipation? Companionship? Co-existence? Stewardship? What are the uses and limits of the discourses from which critical animal studies borrows conceptually, for example: antiracism, feminism, disability studies, nationalism, transformative justice, and so on. We will explore different scenarios of human-nonhuman entanglements, such as training, rescue, the animal industrial complex, the politics of extinction, hunting, infection, predation, breeding/reproduction and others.

CST-349MW Advanced Topics: 'Memory (of) War'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The medium of cinema has shown persistent concern with war and memory, and has constituted a heated battleground for remembrance and erasure of the past. Through cinema, in other words, we most clearly see both memories of war and subsequent wars among competing memories. The Spanish Civil War (1936-1939), the repressive military regime of Francisco Franco (1939-1975), and recent attempts to "re recuperate" memory all dramatize these dynamics and raise a number of larger questions. How do destruction and devastation register through the visual? What happens when we attempt to police memory (through censorship, propaganda, etc.)? What and why do people choose to remember or forget?

CST-349NT Advanced Topics: 'Entangled Sexuality: Violence, Resistance, Crime, Punishment And Survival'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Sexuality via current US law is largely conceived of as a singular identity axis, existing independently of other categories and social phenomena. Through critical queer, critical race and settler colonial theory, this course will study the concepts of sexual citizenship/respectability in relation to criminality of "deviant" sexualized, racialized, colonized bodies. In turn, we will explore recent modes of LGBT legal reform -- or rather "carceral feminisms" and "pink-washing." Lastly, we will focus on the unprecedented rate in which women/queer/trans people of color experience violence from the criminal justice system and its law enforcers, even in cases of survival and self-defense.

CST-349PW Advanced Topics: 'Once More With Feeling: Intimacies and Affects in a Posthuman World'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Affect theory offers a varied and rich critical language to explore how emotion circulates within and among human bodies-and nonhuman ones as well. If emotions operate through bodily changes and chemical exchanges, then animals and nonhumans might similarly be seen as bodies replete with affective materials in motion and at rest. In this course we will read through an array of affect theory from cognitive science, animal studies, and posthumanist debates on the affect of objects. We will consider how humans know what they feel (and when), how animals love, how forests think, and how affects might cross human and nonhuman boundaries.

Advanced Topics: 'Body and Gender in Religious Traditions'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Do bodies matter in religious traditions? Whose bodies matter? How do they matter? By studying religious body ideals and practices, we examine the possibilities and problems different kinds of bodies have posed in religious traditions. Topics include religious diet, exercise, and dress; monasticism, celibacy, and sexuality; healing rituals, and slavery and violence. We pay special attention to contemporary challenges to problematic body ideals and practices coming from feminist, disability, postcolonial, queer, and trans theorists and activists.

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will investigate the racialization of masculinity (and the masculinization of race) as undergirded by heteropatriarchy, settler colonialism, militarized borders and imperialism. This course will center perspectives from various "Third World Solidarity" diasporas in order to challenge Western, hegemonic and inherent legacies of masculinity as modernity's (hu)man. Using critical race theory, feminist, queer/trans* of color critique (e.g., Wynter, Fanon, David Eng, José Muñoz), we will ask how whiteness (white supremacist masculinity) shapes and colors masculinity -- whether as exemplar, visible, illegible, failed, deviant and even toxic -- and what then falls outside of such a frame?

Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The course provides an historical and topical overview of Latina/o migration to the United States. We will examine the economic, political, and social antecedents to Latin American migration, and the historical impact of the migration process in the U.S. Considering migration from Mexico, Central America, and the Caribbean, we will discuss the social construction of race, the gendered nature of migration, migrant labor struggles, Latin American-U.S. Latino relations, immigration policy, and border life and enforcement. Notions of citizenship, race, class, gender, and sexuality will be central to our understanding of the complexity at work in the migration process.

CST-349WC Advanced Topics: 'Writing Capitalism's Ruins'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: There's a low buzz; we feel nervous. Is this capitalism's end? Have zombie silhouettes hit the horizon yet? Keep checking. Anthropology narrates collective feelings, gives form to the ambience. But what's the ambience of late industrialism; what's it feel like to collapse? As we watch factory buildings crumble, we wonder whether the tap water’s clean. The question of how to write the world (anthropologically-speaking) must also be a question of how to survive, thrive, and even flourish. Archaeologists have long explored decadence, collapse, and ruins. Cultural anthropologists now find themselves in the archaeologists’ shoes. Drawing from archaeology, cultural anthropology, ecology, and literary theory, this course will be an open-ended, writing-oriented examination of contemporary experiences of ruins and ruination.

CST-391CT Pivotal Political Ideas: 'Capitalism'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: After reviewing the classic defense of capitalism as an engine of freedom, progress, and productivity, we will examine major shifts in the critique of capitalism from the early 19th to the early 21st century. This critical conceptual history will range over successive claims that capitalism foments labor exploitation and class inequality, imperialism, instrumentalism, the commodification of culture, the privatization of the commons, and the re-making of subjectivities to suit market imperatives. The course will conclude with Pope Francis's charge that the global capitalist system endangers 'whatever is fragile, like the environment' and devours everything

CUSP-100 Engaging the Pioneer Valley: Community-Based Learning (CBL) Theory and Practice
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 2
Description: This course will equip students to enter communities effectively and responsibly as learners, researchers, volunteers, and citizens. Successful community-based learning depends on familiarity with communities and methods to study and assess conditions in them, and on familiarity with the history, politics, policies and practices of campus-community partnership. Students will analyze and interact with nonprofit and civic organizations, issues, and leaders to refine personal interests and skills for social justice advocacy. Students will identify and prepare to address critical needs and opportunities via community partnerships through readings, discussions, panel sessions and assignments.

Description: The Middle East is a region full of diverse, beautiful, and nuanced styles of dance. Among these is bellydance, or Raqs Sharqi, derived from a wide variety of folkloric influences, and known primarily for hip and torso isolations and fast-paced shimmies. This class focuses predominantly on the American style (which primarily combines Turkish, Lebanese, and Egyptian styles with some elements of Western stylization) and modern Egyptian style methods of movement. Students will become familiar with famous classic Middle Eastern songs, modern pop music, and some of the basic Arabic rhythms crucial to the dance form. The class will begin with the fundamental movements of Raqs Sharqi taught through muscular breakdowns and attention to proper style-specific form. Students will also be required to read assigned articles to engage with concepts of defining dance, debates about appropriation, and historical aspects of the dance form. They will write three brief responses that reflect upon this information.

DANCE-377 Advanced Studies

DANCE-377MB Advanced Studies: 'Mobilizing Belonging: Race, Gender and Sexuality in Caribbean Performance'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: How can we engage performance as a site to study creative forms of Caribbean resistance and survival? What forms of embodied practice produce, sustain, and promote Caribbean ways of knowing and being? In this upper-level seminar, students will explore a diversity of Caribbean dance and performance practices for the ways in which they mobilize forms of belonging. Paying critical attention to racial, gendered, and sexual formations, we will examine how performance has been leveraged to variously perform and contest the nation, revision power, and engender bodily freedoms. Course reading, writing, research and discussion will be supplemented with movement practice, live performance and guest artists.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives

DANCE-377NM Advanced Studies: 'New Millennium Choreography'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course looks at the vast and diverse cultural and aesthetic landscape of dance performance in the millennium and the new breed of choreographers making cutting-edge works that pursue radically different methods, materials and strategies for provoking new ideas about dance, the body and corporeal aesthetics. Taking in the vast spectrum of new-age performance, we will ask such questions as: How does non-narrative dance focus on the body as an instrument with unlimited possibilities? How do heterosexuality, homosexuality and androgyny constitute a gender spectrum in new works? How do you evaluate dances from culturally specific traditions?
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
DANCE-387 Rhythmic Analysis II: Performance
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: A continuation of Dance 287. The focus now shifts specifically to performance and the notation of complex rhythmic structures. Working as an ensemble, the class will create a music/dance suite, using body music, movement, vocal work, and music visualization as our inspiration. Emphasis will be placed on odd and mixed meters and rhythmical accuracy. Students will contribute both movement and musical material. Class time will be run like a professional rehearsal. Outside work will focus on musical research, choreography, and music notation. This suite will be performed at Blanchard Campus Center at a date to be determined.

Prereq: Not open to first-year students in their first semester.

ECON-207 Special Topics
Description: This 200-level course investigates a particular topic in economics at some depth without presupposing prior knowledge of economics. Many students may find one or more of these courses useful complements to majors and minors other than economics.

ECON-207BF Special Topics: 'Behavioral Economics and Finance'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Empirical research has located serious flaws in the concept of rational economic decision making and efficient markets. The evidence indicates that actual decision makers and markets deviate from expected rational outcomes frequently enough to require rethinking of the way decision makers think and markets behave, including unexpected market crashes and sustained market bubbles. This course is designed to examine new theoretical work that seeks to provide more accurate predictions of market behavior, improved assessments of underlying risk to portfolio holders, and better estimates of the underlying value of securities.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
S. Gabriel
Prereq: Not open to first-year students in their first semester.

ECON-207FM Special Topics: 'Economics in Popular Film'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: An introduction to political economy using a wide range of popular films as the object of analysis. Films are analyzed as representations of real world social relationships, including market behavior. The goal of the course is for students to learn the basic concepts and logic deployed in economic theories, orthodox and heterodox, and the language of contemporary social scientific debates over income distribution, agency, class, market efficiency, externalities, economic incentives, and equity. ECON-218 International Economics
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The first part of the semester investigates reasons why nations trade and factors that determine trade patterns, focusing on examples of agricultural and food trade. Using the basic tools of microeconomics, it considers the welfare and distributional impacts of free trade among countries. Further topics include barriers to trade, reasons for limiting trade, international food and agricultural policy, and current trade policy issues. The second part introduces the students to basic models in international finance and studies applications of current policy issues such as fixed exchange rates and the Euro.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
The department
Prereq: ECON-110.
ECON-219 Environmental Economics
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this class, we will use the lens of economic analysis to examine how environmental problems arise and what can be done to resolve them. This will include an assessment of relevant environmental policies (e.g., carbon tax & cap-and-trade programs), how these policies function, and what impacts they have on people and the economy.
Topics include market failures and externalities, pollution, climate change, management of renewable and nonrenewable resources, sustainability, biodiversity, and others.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
T. Gilliland
Prereq: ECON-110.

ECON-220 Introduction to Econometrics
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: A study of statistical methods applied to economic and social data. Measures of central tendency and dispersion, point and interval estimation, hypothesis testing, simple correlation, and simple and multiple regression analysis.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt T. Gilliland
Prereq: ECON-110 and MATH-101.; Coreq: ECON-220L.
Notes: Not open to students who have taken college-level statistics, including IB courses with a statistics component.

ECON-236 Economic History
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course provides an overview of important themes in the economic history of the United States and other countries. The goals of this course are to examine reasons for economic growth over time, to use economic analysis to understand history, and to study how history shapes economic institutions today. Topics covered include the Industrial Revolution, slavery, and changes in women's earnings.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
J. Norling

EDUST-250 Special Topics in Educational Studies
EDUST-250ED Special Topics in Educational Studies: Philosophy of Education
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The purpose, goal and shape of educational institutions, policies and methods have been central preoccupations for millennia. This course considers a variety of questions concerning education that are related to different parts of philosophy: epistemology (What kind of 'knowledge' should be taught at different educational levels? How do we differentiate 'truth' and 'education' from 'propaganda' and 'indoctrination'?), ethics (What is 'moral virtue'? Can it be taught? If so, is this an appropriate educational goal?), and social and political philosophy (What is the relationship between schools and the broader society? Should education be a fundamentally subversive activity?)

ENGL-202 Introduction to Journalism
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: The finest journalists are professors to the people. They educate citizens so as to facilitate reasoned, fact-based dialogue on subjects as diverse as politics, poverty, war, science, and the arts. We will look at journalism's role in the culture with a particular view to some of the profession's failings and foibles. Students are expected to leave the comfortable confines of the classroom as they try their hand at covering an event, writing a profile, and reporting on an issue of local significance. Throughout the term we will employ the journalistic skills of interviewing, research, and thoughtful analysis to produce snapshots of the world inside and outside the College gates. Curiosity leads. Mastery follows.

ENGL-231 British Romanticism: Revolution and Reaction
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This class will examine the ways Romantic-era writers figured revolution and the reaction against it, in the wake of the French Revolution's spectacular but failed promises of liberty, fraternity, and equality for all. We will pay special attention to how British writers envisioned their own versions of freedom and equality, extending them to women, slaves, and the poor. Likewise we will explore how this project for social change was necessarily related to revolutions in language and aesthetics. Authors may include Burke, Wollstonecraft, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Smith, Barbauld, Blake, Austen, Keats, Percy and Mary Shelley, Byron, and Hemans.

ENGL-234 Topics in Theatre Studies

ENGL-234SP Topics in Theatre Studies: 'Shakespeare in Performance: Case Studies in Stage Production History'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: To what purpose(s) have Shakespeare's plays been staged, and how has staging practice changed and developed? Our focus will be broad, covering such matters as acting, directing, design, history/criticism/dramaturgy. Units will include period/modern-dress Shakespeare, anti-realist staging, changing acting styles, "historically accurate" productions, "global Shakespeare," topical/political productions, and gender/race in casting. Several key plays will form the core: Midsummer Night’s Dream, Macbeth, Hamlet, and The Winter’s Tale. The course will involve some attendance at live performance (likely a group trip to New York).

ENGL-235 Modern British Poetry
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This introduction to modern British poetry pays special attention to the emergence, consolidation, and dismantling of modernist poetry and poetics. It will link this literary history with, amongst other things, the loss of faith, the two world wars, and the relationship between monumental aesthetics, utopian poetics, and totalitarian politics. Writers will include Hardy, Yeats, Eliot, H. D., and Auden.

ENGL-239 Novels of the Later Eighteenth Century: 'Worthy Hearts and Saucy Wits'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Eighteenth-century England witnessed the birth of the novel, a genre that in its formative years was both lauded for its originality and condemned as intellectually and morally dangerous, especially for young women. We will trace the numerous prose genres that influenced early novelists, including conduct manuals, epistolary writing, conversion narratives, travelogues, romance, and the gothic. In doing so, we will concomitantly examine the novel's immense formal experimentation alongside debates about developing notions of gender and class as well as the feeling, thinking individual. Authors may include Richardson, Fielding, Sterne, Walpole, Burney, and others.

ENGL-242 Topics in American Literature
ENGL-242AE Topics in American Literature: 'The American Essay'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Throughout the history of the United States, the essay has been a vital literary genre. From religious and confessional essays to personal, political, and satirical ones, American authors have explored their passions and hatreds in this flexible form. We will read essays from the nineteenth century to the present, with the opportunity to write essays of our own. Authors may include Thoreau, Baldwin, Didion, and Maggie Nelson, along with international writers, such as Woolf and Zadie Smith, who have influenced American essayists.

ENGL-251 Contemporary African American Literature II
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course will examine African American literature and culture in the postwar period as American identities are coalescing around the concept of the US as a world power. Specifically, our task during the semester will be to discuss the myriad ways black authors and artists attempt to interrogate the structure of racial hegemony by creating poetry and prose meant to expand notions of culture and form. We will also examine music, visual art, and advertisements from this era to have a greater sense of the black experience through various cultural representations. Writers will include James Baldwin, Toni Morrison, Ralph Ellison, Michael S. Harper and bell hooks.

ENGL-268 Cognitive Theory and Literary Studies
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: A survey of philosophical, scientific, and theoretical approaches to the relation between cognition and representation. For as long as we have told stories, we have thought about how they work in conjunction with the mind. This course charts the many ways in which cognitive theory has shaped literary studies over the ages. How does fiction reflect the way we think? How in turn does it shape how we behave? What happens in the brain and body when we read? Starting in antiquity and working through history towards contemporary neuroscience and cognitive psychology, we will consider such matters as action and imitation; reality and fantasy; reason and imagination; aesthetics, empathy, and affect.

ENGL-276 Mapping Jewish American Generations
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course sets canonical Jewish American literature in creative dialogue with contemporary Jewish American writers, filmmakers, and performance artists to explore how early twentieth-century figures (Abraham Cahan, Anzia Yezierska, and Henry Roth) continue to influence -- inspire--a rising generation of authors. The key mediating figure in this generational dialogue is Philip Roth, whose work we will examine as well. Topics to be explored include "immigrant" writing then and now; the uses of nostalgia; genealogies of standup comedy and popular culture in general; the emergence of "hipster" Judaism and its various modes of expression (above all via social media).

ENGL-301PR Studies in Journalism: 'The Press and the Presidency'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: In this course, we will pinpoint six moments in American history when great journalism focused on the presidency has driven the national story. We will augment that study of the past with a steady examination of the present, seeking to understand how the 45th president's assault on the press has prompted many to reconsider -- and to reaffirm -- the role of a vigorous, questioning media in the success of a democratic republic. Students will do both historical analysis and contemporary journalism, employing the tools of strong reporting, graceful prose and pithy analysis to shed light on the presidency in a time of peril.

ENGL-301RE Studies in Journalism: 'Reporting Lab: Holyoke, Massachusetts'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: In this course, students will learn the skills of journalism by applying themselves to extensive reporting projects focused on the city of Holyoke. Long known as the "Paper Capital of America," Holyoke was historically the home to some of the nation's busiest industrial wool and paper mills, which were supported by an elaborate system of municipal canals. The canals are still there and so are many of the original mill buildings, but today Holyoke faces challenges familiar to the post-industrial age, even as it makes strides toward a new life centered around high tech and the service
Working in text, video, still photography, and other media, students will examine this transition and the lives of the people of Holyoke.

ENGL-312 Shakespeare

ENGL-312SF Shakespeare: 'Shakespeare and Film'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: We will read plays by Shakespeare, watch films based on those plays, and study the plays, the films, and the plays-as-films. 'Shakespeare' comes first, of course, both historically and as the source/inspiration for the films. Yet each film has its own existence, to be understood not just as an 'adaptation,' but also as the product of linked artistic, technical, and economic choices. Considering Shakespeare's plays as pre-texts (rather than pre-scriptions), we will look at early and recent films, both those that follow closely conventionalized conceptualizations of 'Shakespeare,' and those that tend to erase or emend their Shakespearean sources.

ENGL-317 Studies in Renaissance Literature

ENGL-317MD Studies in Renaissance Literature: 'Early Modern Drama'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: All the world's a stage. This course surveys the era of literary history that invented this powerful idea. The drama of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries is obsessively self-conscious, bursting with disguises, confidence tricks, cross-dressers, masques, and plays-within-plays. Reading several playwrights, we will situate Shakespeare among his rivals and peers: Marlowe, Jonson, Webster, and others. More generally, we will explore early modern notions of performance and theatricality, considering how they were entwined in conceptions of desire, evil, gender, and politics.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

ENGL-317MJ Studies in Renaissance Literature: 'Marlowe, Jonson, Middleton'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: A seminar on three major early modern dramatists--Christopher Marlowe, Ben Jonson, and Thomas Middleton--focusing on the range of genres, characters, conflicts, and aspirations explored in their plays. These playwrights, along with their contemporary Shakespeare, shaped the late sixteenth and early seventeenth century theatre into a site for performing authority and conquest, national and individual identity, trickery and carnival, desire and sexuality, and complex unfoldings of revenge. Readings of several plays by each of the three dramatists will be supplemented by recent studies of early modern theatricality.

ENGL-317TR Studies in Renaissance Literature: 'Trauma in the Premodern World'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: When told that his wife's madness cannot be cured, Macbeth asks: 'Canst thou not minister to a mind diseased?' Although the term 'trauma' was not used to describe a psychological state until the nineteenth century, Macbeth's query suggests that premodern subjects both understood and experienced the sorts of psychic injury the term denotes. This course will explore how trauma was discerned, expressed and represented in premodern European culture. Readings will include contemporary theoretical explorations of trauma, as well as works by Shakespeare, Marlowe, Aphra Behn, and Daniel Defoe.

ENGL-319 The Renaissance

ENGL-319CR The Renaissance: 'The Cunning Renaissance'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: In Renaissance English, "cunning" meant many more things than it does today: guile, but also wisdom, imagination, strategic sense, inventiveness, skill. This very diverse set of abilities is on display throughout early modern literature, in which we meet all sorts of sages, schemers, illusionists, and fools. What does it mean to be smart? What forms of knowledge are privileged above others? How is the idea of intelligence culturally constructed, how inflected by religion, gender, and class? Reading widely in the period and drawing also on modern thought, we will cover such topics as mental disability, moral knowledge, social dexterity, politicking, and artificial and animal intelligence.

ENGL-319SR The Renaissance: 'Literature and Science, 1516-1674'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This seminar traces intersections between literary art and scientific knowledge at the dawn of modernity, when the difference between "art" and "science" was anything but clear. We will read prominent works of English Renaissance literature (Shakespeare, Donne, Milton) alongside various scientific and philosophical writings (Lucretius, Bacon, Descartes) as well as major milestones of the Scientific Revolution (Vesalius, Copernicus, Galileo). In so doing, we will ponder what connects aesthetic and empirical forms of truth. Topics will include magic and the occult, alchemy, astronomy, anatomy and medicine, atoms and theories of matter, the scientific method, natural history, and technology.

ENGL-321 Studies in Nineteenth-Century British Literature

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: William Wordsworth and George Eliot grew up in a revolutionary age: the American Revolution, the French Revolution, the Haitian Revolution, wars of independence and of imperial conquest, and, behind it all, the social transformations arising from the industrial revolution. Both Wordsworth and Eliot wrestled with how to adapt their art to these new realities: he introduced dramatically new content into poetry and experimented with a startling variety of poetic forms; she transformed the various prose genres to construct a novelistic form able to represent the totality of British society. By so doing, they forged a revolution in literary forms with the emergence of the modern lyric and the realist novel.

ENGL-325 Victorian Literature and Visual Culture
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will examine literary texts that represent new forms of visuality in nineteenth-century Britain as well as examples of visual culture that provide a framework for reading Victorian culture in innovative ways. We will study nineteenth-century photography—portraiture, prison photography, imperial photographs, and private and popular erotic images—as well as novels and autobiographical writing that engage with new photographic technology and its transformation of the ways in which Victorians understood identity, politics, aesthetics, and representation. The course will take a similar approach to painting, literary illustration, political cartoons and caricature, and advertising.

ENGL-339 The Visual Culture of Protest
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines social protests from the perspective of the visual. Examining cultural productions from 1948-2015 we will focus on the geographical specificity of planned and spontaneous protests that have mobilized people into action. We will use a black studies framework to engage the possibilities present in resisting disparate power structures of race, gender, sexuality, class, and region. Artists, musicians, activists, writers, and grassroots organizers of social movements have been ever cognizant of the role of the visual in subverting power structures. We will use this opportunity to place visual culture at the center of a conversation concerning resistance, human rights, political agency, citizenship, and freedom.

ENGL-346 Irish Gothic
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This advanced seminar will study the gothic as a genre and as a malleable yet persistent discursive site in Irish literary and political tradition. From the eighteenth century to the present, the gothic has been used to explore aspects of Irish history, in particular colonialism. The course will focus on texts that engage with three primary problems that the Irish gothic is used to explore: violence and terror, famine, and vampirism as a political metaphor. We will read novels, short fiction, poetry, and archival newspaper writing, including work by Maturin, Edgeworth, Lady Wilde, Mangan, LeFanu, Stoker, Joyce, Bowen, Enright, Deane, Boland, and Heaney.

ENGL-347 Modern Urban British Novel
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: As London and the British novel enter the new millennium, both are sites of competing histories, traditions, and agendas. This course will map the city's progress from the center of an empire to a node in the global world's economy, and chart the twentieth-century novel's movement from realism to postmodernism and beyond. Beginning by contrasting the realist London of Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes with Virginia Woolf's modernist version in Mrs. Dalloway, we will go on to trace the development of the post-1945 British novel.

ENGL-349 Cosmopolitanism

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4

Description: Nothing that is human can be alien to me. This is the motto of cosmopolitanism, a philosophy first formed by the Greeks, which emphasizes our common status as citizens of the world and urges us to value the universal as highly as the local. Today, this view can seem naïve: is it advisable, even possible, to privilege absent strangers and lofty ideals above the needs of those nearby? This course considers the promise and perils of cosmopolitanism through the lens of contemporary transnational literature-through representations of immigration, asylum, transnational capital, tourism, terrorism, and environmentalism. Authors may include Rushdie, Naipaul, Coetzee, Adichie, Hemon, and Bulawayo.

ENGL-350 Studies in African American Literature

ENGL-350TM Topics in African American Literature: 'Toni Morrison'

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

Description: This course will examine the work and the centralized black world of the last American Nobel laureate in literature, Toni Morrison. Morrison is the author of eleven novels and multiple other works, including nonfiction and criticism. In a career that has spanned over forty years and has informed countless artists and writers, Morrison's expansive cultural reach can hardly be measured accurately. In this course we will endeavor to critically analyze the arc and the import of many of Morrison's writings.

Readings include: The Bluest Eye, Sula, Song of Solomon, Jazz, Playing in the Dark, Paradise, and A Mercy.

ENGL-351 Sex, Race, and the Visual

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

Description: This course examines categories of race, gender, sex, and sexuality through the lens of the visual. Using contemporary literature, photography, performance art, film, and theories of the visual, our task is to investigate the import and utility of embodiment. How do race, gender, and sexuality function in the artistic imaginary? What can we glean from cultural productions that engage the viewer/reader in ways that challenge ideas about conformity, fluidity, belonging, and self-reflection?

More than a linear literary or theoretical trajectory, this course will provide a template for all the mechanisms of the visual—psychological and ocular, interpretive, rhetorical and performative.

ENGL-353 Readings in Literary Biography

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4

Description: Biography is both a literary genre and a mode of literary scholarship. This course will explore some varieties of the biographical impulse in both fiction and nonfiction. We will begin with eighteenth-century British models: Samuel Johnson's Lives of the English Poets and James Boswell's Life of Johnson. Then we will turn to ideas of biography and literary portraiture in the work of Henry James and Gertrude Stein. We will explore the shift associated with the advent of Freud and the Bloomsbury innovations of Lytton Strachey and Virginia Woolf, and with close attention to recent experiments in biography by writers such as Janet Malcolm, Rachel Cohen, and Richard Holmes.

ENGL-354 Vindicated: The Wollstonecraft-Shelley Circle
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: The dynamic mother-daughter duo of Mary Wollstonecraft and Mary Shelley is often read as part of the "Godwin-Shelley circle," a cadre of writers circulating around their respective literary husbands. This course will place them at the center of literary innovation, examining their expansive work in multiple genres. Asking what it means to be ardent and provocative women writers during this period, we will discuss their radical politics, their gender theories, and their ideas about literature intervening in the public sphere. We will also consider short pieces by others in their circle, potentially including Godwin, P. Shelley, Mary Hayes, Mary Robinson, Claire Claremont, and Byron.

ENGL-361 Advanced Creative Writing Topics

ENGL-361EX Advanced Creative Writing Topics: 'Beyond Measure: Experiments in the Music of Poetry'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: The workshop will examine the overlapping impulses of poetry, music, and sound-making. Through the work of a variety of artists, such as LaMonte Young, John Cage, Mahalia Jackson, Beethoven, Gertrude Stein, Webern, Meredith Monk, Laurie Anderson, Phillip Glass, Nathaniel Mackey, Tracie Morris, Clark Coolidge, Fred Moten, Dylan Thomas, Allen Ginsburg, Harmony Holiday, and others, we will investigate the realm between language and music. We will explore how voice, rhythm, song, repetition, phrasing, musical form, and the management of time are vital to a poem's semantic content. This will be a generative writing workshop, with an emphasis on new composition.

ENGL-361PM Advanced Creative Writing Topics: 'Poetry and Image: Formations of Identity'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: With an emphasis on producing creative texts, the course will examine the parallel and often overlapping impulses of poetry and image-making (photography, painting, and other visual arts). We will explore concepts of identity through the work of artists such as Alice Neel, Mikalene Thomas, Claude Cahun, Cindy Sherman, Kehinde Wiley, Glenn Ligon, Catherine Opie, Kara Walker, Diane Arbus, Vivian Maier, and Nan Goldin. Writers will include Ocean Vuong, Danez Smith, Sherwin Bitsui, Robert Seydel, Ari Banias, Safia Elhillo, Gloria Anzaldúa, Morgan Parker, Layli Longsoldier, Judy Grahn, Audre Lorde, Ronaldo Wilson, Shane McCrae, Adrienne Rich, David Wojnarowisz, Eileen Myles, and others.

ENGL-362 The Bloomsbury Group
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This seminar will examine the Bloomsbury Group, the most important British cultural formation in the first half of the twentieth-century. The group included artists, art critics, biographers, economists, literary critics, novelists, philosophers and translators such as Vanessa Bell, E. M. Forster, John Maynard Keynes, George Moore, Bertrand Russell, Lytton Strachey, and Virginia Woolf. We will emphasize the ways in which they sought to dismantle the artistic, political, and sexual repressions of the Victorian period and to replace them with new forms of art, community, and society.

ENGL-366 Love, Sex, and Death in the Anthropocene, or Living Through the Age of Climate Disaster
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The "Anthropocene" has been defined as the era when humans exert change on the earth's climate, but this term has become a dynamo for theories, political discussions, and art about man's anthropocentric relation to the nonhuman world. This course will read theories of the Anthropocene alongside artistic contemplations of the shifting, ethical relations among humans, animals, and other beings of the world. How are we to live, die, and reproduce ourselves in a time when we have egregiously affected the earth? How does the critique of anthropocentrism shift our understanding of sex, gender, race, and the nonhuman? Finally, how does art speak within political conversations of climate change?

ENGL-373 Women in American Literature

ENGL-373DH Women in American Literature: 'Desperate Housewives in 19th- through early 20th-century American Literature'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will explore visual and literary images of nineteenth through early 20th-century marriage and motherhood. Discussion of Virginia's Woolf's 'A Room of One's Own' and Barbara Welter's essay 'The Cult of True Womanhood' will serve as the springboard for our focus on representations of women in the home. We will incorporate a visit to the art museum, and will analyze film adaptations of some of the texts we

ENGL-373NT Women in American Literature: 'A Landscape of One's Own: (Nineteenth-Twentieth Century)'

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

Description: This course will focus on portrayals of women in nineteenth through mid-twentieth century America, particularly in the context of nature and landscape. We will explore how women, often objectified in visual images of the period, appropriated established devices or developed new images and structures to represent womanhood in their own terms. Texts will include selected poetry, sketches, autobiographical essays or memoirs, short stories, novels, paintings, films, and photography. With Thoreau as our springboard, we will focus on women who told the stories of their lives in the context of islands, deserts, prairies and forests of the United States.

ENGL-374 Hitchcock and After

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4

Description: This course will examine the films of Alfred Hitchcock and the afterlife of Hitchcock in contemporary U.S. culture. We will interpret Hitchcock films in a variety of theoretical frames, including feminist and queer theories, and in shifting historical contexts, including the Cold War. We will also devote substantial attention to the legacy of Hitchcock in remakes, imitations, and parodies. Hitchcock films may include Spellbound, Strangers on a Train, Rear Window, Vertigo, North by Northwest, Psycho, The Man Who Knew Too Much, Mamie, and The Birds; additional works by Brooks, Craven, and De Palma. ENGL-382 Topic

ENGL-382PW Topic: 'Once More With Feeling: Intimacies and Affects in a Posthuman World'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Affect theory offers a varied and rich critical language to explore how emotion circulates within and among human bodies-and nonhuman ones as well. If emotions operate through bodily changes and chemical exchanges, then animals and nonhumans might similarly be seen as bodies replete with affective materials in motion and at rest. In this course we will read through an array of affect theory from cognitive science, animal studies, and posthumanist debates on the affect of objects. We will consider how humans know what they feel (and when), how animals love, how forests think, and how affects might cross human and nonhuman boundaries.

ENGL-394 Advanced Topics in English

ENGL-394MN Advanced Topics in English: 'Music and the Irish Novel'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Music and the Irish Novel introduces students to Irish novelists from the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. In these novels music plays a significant role, as a thematic, formal, or aesthetic inspiration. Traditional, opera, ballads, jazz, classical, pop, and contemporary music; all play a role in this literature. What do we mean when we say that a language, or a piece of literature, is "musical"? Why do writers of contemporary historical fiction favor musical references? This intertextual link will lead to inquiries into the role of music in prose fiction, and in particular in the Irish novel.

Environmental Studies

ENVST-100 Introduction to Environmental Studies
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course introduces students to the field of environmental studies and to some of the scientific, historical, political, economic and cultural aspects of environmental concerns. Through interdisciplinary lenses, we explore the complexities of many issues and problems such as climate change, threats to biodiversity, and toxic environments. In addition to fostering an understanding of their origins, the course focuses on potential solutions.

ENVST-104 Renewable Energy
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: We will examine the feasibility of converting the entire energy infrastructure of the US from one that is dependent on fossil fuels to one that utilizes mostly renewable sources of energy. We will examine the potential scale of energy production and the associated costs, natural resource requirements and land usage needs for both renewables, such as solar, wind and biofuel, and non-renewables, such as coal, natural gas, petroleum and nuclear. By applying extensive use of basic algebra and an elementary understanding of the physical processes underpinning each energy technology, we will arrive at a number of urgent conclusions about the challenges facing our energy infrastructure.

ENVST-150 Introductory Topics in Environmental Studies

ENVST-150DV Introductory Topics in Environmental Studies: 'Introduction to the Histories and Theories of Development'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: What is so compelling about the idea of development? Why does it fail much of the global south? Do colonialism and capitalism have anything to do with it? Why do hunger, poverty, inequality, unemployment, and ecological crises persist in the so-called developed world? What are the parameters of the proposed solutions to underdevelopment such as neoliberal market reforms versus those of alternative models? What are the connections between development and environmental issues? development and war? Can development be sustainable? Are gender and race incidental or central to these issues? This course engages these questions through readings, lectures, discussions, and writing assignments.

ENVST-200 Environmental Science
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Most of the environmental challenges we face are complex and interdisciplinary in nature. This course introduces students to the scientific principles, concepts, and methodologies required to both understand the interrelationships of the natural world, as well as to identify and analyze environmental problems and think critically about alternative solutions for addressing them. Key concepts from ecology, biogeochemistry, and other scientific fields inform our study of climate change, water resources, soil sustainability, food production, and other topics. Fundamental and emerging issues are examined using regional case studies, hands-on problem solving, and field and laboratory experiments.

ENVST-210 Political Ecology
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will explore the historical, political, economic, social, and cultural contexts in which human-environment interactions occur. We will cover critical topics and trends in the field of political ecology, from its early manifestations to more recent expansions. Using case studies from the global south and north, we will discuss factors that shape social and environmental change across scales from the personal to the global, and we will examine the role of gender, race, class, and power in struggles over resources. Students will become familiar with the academic debates in which political ecologists are engaged, and they will apply the concepts discussed in a case of their choice.

ENVST-233 Topics in Environmental Studies

ENVST-233AE Topics in Environmental Studies: 'Philosophical Issues Concerning Animals'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Who are non-human animals? In this course, we will think about this question and others - specifically about the ethical relationship "human animals" have to these beings. We will ask such questions like: What are the philosophical -- especially the ethical -- implications of the scientific research on non-human animals? What determines the quality of life of any animal -- human or nonhuman? What obligations do we have to non-human animals? Our answers to these questions will have implications for human businesses, our diet, our pets, our legal system, and, ultimately, how we think about ourselves as 'human animals.' The course format consists of lecture, discussion, regular writing and the possibility of a class presentation.

ENVST-237 Native American History Through 1865
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course surveys Native American history from ancient times through the U.S. Civil War, tracing the ways that tribal communities have shaped North America. Beginning with the diverse indigenous societies that inhabited the Americas millennia before Columbus's arrival, it discusses the cultural complexity of Native peoples, nations, and worldviews rooted in particular ecosystems and homelands. It moves through the early modern era of European scientific exploration and "discovery" of a New World, and the pivotal violences of the "Indian Wars" of the seventeenth, eighteenth, and early nineteenth centuries.

ENVST-240 The Value of Nature
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Through this seminar, students develop an in-depth knowledge of and articulate vocabulary for the significant and diverse ways that humans value the natural world - utilitarian, scientific, aesthetic, naturalistic, symbolic, ethical, and spiritual. We use these different typologies of human environmental values as frameworks for readings and discussion, extending our examination to historical and cultural variations in values, competing perspectives of the natural world, and other value concepts, including intrinsic and transformative value. We examine the concept of biophilia and probe the role values play in the concern over losses of biological diversity and its implications.

ENVST-241 Environmental Issues
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course, we will explore the different facets of numerous environmental policy issues and review the substantive aspects, legal themes, and regulatory structure of the major federal environmental laws. The laws covered in this course include the National Environmental Policy Act, the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, the Endangered Species Act, and others. The course objectives are for the student to learn the basic regulatory characteristics of the major laws and to become well-versed in the current environmental issues which we will focus upon throughout the semester, such as global climate change, ocean degradation, energy resources, and biodiversity loss. ENVST-242 Global-Local Inequality and the Environment
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will engage students in thinking about the dynamic relationship between inequality and the environment. We will examine some of the major theories, paradigms, concepts, policies, and programs that analyze, explain, predict or attempt to affect change in the global South. As we discuss the evolution of development theories and practices over time, we will reflect on how its theoretical underpinnings help us to understand policy and programmatic "successes" and "failures." The first part of the course introduces students to philosophical and theoretical debates about inequality and resource access, drawing on development theory to explore evolving approaches to integrate environment and development. We will consider complementary and contrasting perspectives about the causes of and solutions to global poverty and environmental degradation and reflect on how our assumptions shape what we "see" in specific sites, how we frame particular problems and what we suggest as solutions. As we trace approaches to sustainable development from global environmental politics to site-specific case studies, the second half of the course connects through a series of virtual conversations about inequality and the environment with the Mount Holyoke College program in Costa Rica.

ENVST-301 History of Energy
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: We live in an age of energy crises, in which the future of energy is questioned in countless headlines and Twitter feeds. Often our energy agony accompanies other assumptions about energy's past, in particular the idea that social change invariably follows the discovery of new energy technologies. From food to fuel cells, this colloquium charts a more complicated and interesting history, a history in which people have continually shaped and made meaningful the energies that fuel the modern world. ENVST-315 Research, Ethics and Policy in Environmental Studies
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Designed to promote curriculum-to-career, this hands-on course prepares students for independent research, research internships, or research careers. Student pick topics of interest and share weekly assignments. Over the course of the semester, we examine methods for designing research and for gathering and analyzing information, and we discuss using data to inform policy. We speak with Mount Holyoke alumnae who have conducted research during internships, for honors theses and independent study, or for policy institutes after graduating. Finally, we consider ethical issues, from gendered experiences to cross-cultural research, and students prepare institutional review board proposals. Students from various

ENVST-316 Restoration Ecology
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: A key test of our ecological knowledge is whether we can successfully apply it to create or restore ecosystems that have been damaged or destroyed. As we take on the role of restoration ecologists this semester, we will use principles and methods of ecology, conservation biology, hydrology, soil science, and related disciplines to learn about the theory, practice, and politics of ecosystem restoration. This course emphasizes fieldwork, interdisciplinary teamwork, and ecological planning to evaluate and design restoration projects in our surrounding communities and regional landscapes. ENVST-317 Perspectives on American Environmental History
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: We explore the history of human-environment interactions in North America from precolonial times to the present from different cultural perspectives. How have such human activities as migration, colonization, and resource use depended on or modified the natural world? How have different cultural perceptions of and attitudes toward environment shifted through time and helped to reshape American landscapes? Case studies include ecological histories of Native America and Euro-America, slavery and land use, wilderness and conservation, and environmental racism and social justice. Our approach entails historical review of scientific studies, literature, visual records, and oral tradition.

ENVST-321CP Conference Courses in Environmental Studies: 'Political Economy of the Environment: Capitalism and Climate Change'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Can an economic system predicated on infinite growth achieve sustainability on a finite planet? This question will likely define the twenty-first century. This course aims to grapple with this paradox, examining the relationships and tensions between the globally dominant form of economy - capitalism - and global climate change. We will explore the interwoven rise of capitalism and emergence of fossil fuel energy, as well as the global expansion of capitalism and the connections between resources, economic growth, and political power. We will engage with various theoretical approaches to capitalism-environment relations, such as metabolic rift theory, the second contradiction of capitalism, and the production of nature thesis. These theories provide insight into recent forms of capitalism (i.e. neoliberalism) and the increasing degradation and commodification of the environment. We end by studying contemporary debates, examining institutions and policies seeking to manage climate change from within liberal-capitalist frameworks, the emergence of the "green economy", and the politics of climate denialism, concluding with alternatives economies and the climate justice movement. This course will provide students with theoretical knowledge and analytical skills for understanding economy-environment relationships.

ENVST-321TX Conference Courses in Environmental Studies: 'Toxic Entanglements: Environmental (In)Justice in the United States'

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Toxic water in Flint, Michigan. Oil pipelines through sacred sites in North Dakota. These manifestations of environmental injustice and inequality are only the most recent incarnations of larger legacies. Environments are never simply natural or given: they are imbued with unequal entanglements of gender, race, class, and power. Environmental justice asks questions about the ways in which environments are produced, and the relations of risk, harm, benefit, access, privilege, domination, oppression, and liberation therein. In this course, we will study the theory and practice of environmental (in)justice in the United States. We will briefly explore histories of environmental injustice in the U.S. (from colonization and slavery, to industrialization and pollution); past and current struggles over the siting of production facilities, toxic waste, and pollution; and recent events around water (be they floods, toxicity, or protection): Hurricane Katrina, Flint, and Standing Rock. We will pay particular attention to questions of food and justice, examining gender, race, and class in agricultural labor, corporate power in agribusiness, food deserts, food access/health and white privilege, and gender in alternative community food movements.

ENVST-337 Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Environment and Development

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course will engage students in interdisciplinary thinking about the dynamic relationship between environment and development. Focusing on specific case studies, we will consider complementary and contrasting perspectives about the causes of and solutions to global poverty and environmental degradation. We will examine how development theories and practices have changed over time, and we will reflect on how our assumptions shape what we "see" in specific sites, how we frame particular problems and what we suggest as solutions. The course is designed as a curriculum-to-career course in which students build practical skills for international development careers.

ENVST-338 History, Race, and the American Land

Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Environmental justice is a key concern today. Yet ties between "race" and environment in what is now the U.S. have existed for centuries. In this research seminar we will explore how this country’s still-unfolding history, and ideas of race and nature, have marked the land, this society, and each of us as individuals. We will consider Indigenous, colonial European, and African senses of Earth; origins of placenames; contested terrains; migration and displacement; and other topics revealing the place of race. We’ll examine often-unrecognized connections, such as the siting of the nation’s capital and the economic motives of slavery. None of these links is coincidental and all touch us today.

ENVST-341 Science and Power in Environmental Governance

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

Description: This course applies concepts from political ecology to study how governance, broadly defined, works in relation to the environment. Using case studies of international environmental issues, we will explore how people make decisions about the environment in a policy realm. We will discuss the role of various agents, such as governments, scientific bodies, and nongovernmental organizations, in the decision-making process. We will reflect on who has access to decisions; how scientific data is used; how environmental ideas become powerful; and how policies are legitimated. Armed with this information, we will consider how to advocate for global environmental sustainability and social equity.

ENVST-342 Living in the Anthropocene: Development, Technology, Futures

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

Description: The concept of the Anthropocene (the "human epoch") signifies that human activity has become the dominant physical force on the planet. Mainstream narratives envision three phases of the Anthropocene: industrial origins (1800 - 1950); global expansion and the nuclear age (1950 - 2000+); and an emergent third phase marked by massive shifts in land-use and biodiversity. This course undertakes a critical examination of the Anthropocene concept. We will analyze debates over geological demarcation, the term itself and the "anthropos" it embodies, and eco-modernist conceptions of a "good" Anthropocene. We aim to historically contextualize the socio-technical phases of the Anthropocene (industrial revolution, post-WWII global expansion, and contemporary globalization), situating them as processes emerging within a specific political-economic context (capitalism). Finally, we examine struggles over the socio-ecological entanglements shaping its future directions: urbanization, industrialized agriculture, genetic technology, and geoengineering/Earth System management. This course explores what it means to live in an era where a subset of one species can determine the conditions of possibility for life on the entire planet.

ENVST-373 Nature and Gender

ENVST-373WN Nature and Gender: 'a Landscape of One's Own: Nature and Gender in American Literature'

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

Description: This course will focus on portrayals of women in nineteenth through mid-twentieth century America, particularly in the context of nature and landscape. We will explore how women, often objectified in visual images of the period, appropriated established devices or developed new images and structures to represent womanhood in their own terms. Texts will include selected poetry, sketches, autobiographical essays or memoirs, short stories, novels, paintings, films, and photography.
With Thoreau as our springboard, we will focus on women who told the stories of their lives in the context of islands, deserts, prairies and forests of the United States.

ENVST-377 Cartography and Exploration in Early North America
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the history of mapping: what maps show, and what places the practice of cartography tends to erase, distort, or conceal. It focuses on the landscapes of early North America, where the representation and use of space was hotly contested by Natives, European settlers, and Africans. The course’s topics include indigenous mapping traditions and concepts of sacred space, European navigational strategies during the ‘Age of Discovery,’ early urban planning, and scientific/military depictions. The course will teach strategies for employing maps as primary sources, and ways of understanding the historical and ideological circumstances of their production and circulation.

Entrepreneurship, Organizations, and Society

EOS-210 Opportunities and Impacts
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: In this foundation course, the class will select and confront four major global problems having local instances from a list of possible subjects such as aging, health care, education, food and housing security, employment, poverty, sustainability and environmental health, and crime. Students working in teams will then learn to analyze those problems, assess the opportunities for solutions that emerge, design initial solutions, and configure projects that allow for the implementation of those solutions. Students work in teams, developing and learning about solutions with local organizations engaged in addressing similar global/local problems. The course will utilize texts, short lectures and discussions, video, guest presentations, in-class ideation exercises, and team presentations.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
Other attributes: Community-Based Learning; Speaking-Intensive; Writing-Intensive
R. Feldman
Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors

EOS-229 Enterprise Startups and Social Entrepreneurship
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This is a project-based experiential learning course teaching entrepreneurial teams to rapidly build, test, and cycle through models on the way to discovering and implementing an organization, designing and providing a product or service, and offering a solution to a global-to-local problem. Students will learn about and engage in the creation and building process, while exploring and discovering key issues in social impact, organizations and groups, creative solutions, economics, and finance. The course will adapt the Lean LaunchPad methodology, involve case-studies, and provide research and analytical articles.

EOS-239 Fundamentals of Business Organizations and Finance
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Students will create and manage organizations, learn from topical lectures, readings and case studies, and hear from guest speakers. The course will cover core organizations: not-for-profits, "C" corporations, "S" corporations, partnerships, and the LLC (limited liability company) plus special variations like workers cooperatives and social venture variations known as benefit corporations and L3C companies. Students will also learn how to analyze and present financial information and gain competency with basic spreadsheets and analytical tools. Finally, students will consider organizations in their social contexts, discussing the relationship of organization types to social issues at global and local scales.

EOS-249 Ethics in Entrepreneurship and Business
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: What are the special challenges of obligation and responsibility that individuals, businesses and other organizations face in a complex global environment? We explore these questions using applied philosophical ethics from the traditional approaches to moral philosophy (studying the ethical character of both actions themselves and the results of those actions) and the more recent ethics of care. We apply these ethical considerations in different cases and contexts of individual decision-making and the choices and dilemmas that businesses and other organizations face.

FLMST-201 Introduction to Film
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course teaches the basic concepts, vocabulary, and critical skills involved in interpreting film. Through readings and lectures, students will become more informed and sophisticated observers of the cinema, key examples of which will be screened weekly. While the focus will be on the form and style of narrative film, documentary and avant-garde practices will be introduced. The class will also touch upon some of the major theoretical approaches in the field.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
R. Blaetz
Notes: 2 meetings (75 minutes), 1 screening (2 1/2 hours)

FLMST-202 Talking Pictures: An Introduction to Film
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Some of the best feature-length films of the past century have commanded our attention and imagination because of their compelling artistry and the imaginative ways they tell stories visually and verbally. This course closely studies narrative films from around the world, from the silent era to the present, and in the process it introduces students to the basic elements of film form, style, and narration. Some of the films to be considered are: Broken Blossoms, Battleship Potemkin, Citizen Kane, Contempt, The Bicycle Thief, Ugetsu, Rear Window, Woman in the Dunes, The Marriage of Maria Braun, Days of Heaven, and Moulin Rouge.

FLMST-212 History of World Cinema Through 1960
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course offers an historical survey of the cinema as a developing art form and a means of communication. We will examine the history of this international medium from its 19th-century beginnings through the mid-20th century. The national and thematic focus of the course shifts through the semester. For example, we will focus on U.S. film in studying the earliest developments in film technology and narrative, and on Soviet and French films to study the formal and social experimentation of the 1920s. The course provides a background for understanding film history and pursuing further studies in the field.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

FLMST-213 Global Film and Media After 1960
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines films and topics central to the study of global cinema since 1960. Special emphasis will be placed on the transnational organization of global film culture throughout this period. In addition to viewing films made in diverse national contexts (Thailand, France, Iran, the U.K., Japan), we will also analyze films and cultural formations that complicate cinema's relation to national boundaries, including works of exilic and diasporic cinema, international co-productions, and global film festivals.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

Prereq: FLMST-201, FLMST-202, or FLMST-203.

FLMST-215 Film Theory
Description: This course offers a consideration of one or more of the methods through which the medium of film is understood aesthetically and/or culturally.

FLMST-215CC Film Theory: 'Cinema and the City'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course offers an historical survey of film theory, from the work of its earliest authors and practitioners at the birth of the 20th century (who first struggled to define the medium), to those who are working still to elucidate the place of the cinema in relation to new media in its ever-evolving and ever more complex place in culture. As a way of focusing the discussion of the various theoretical positions, we will watch and discuss films that represent that most modern of phenomena--the city.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
R. Blaetz
Prereq: FLMST-201, FLMST-202, or FLMST-203.

FLMST-220 Special Topics in Film Studies

FLMST-220AG Special Topics in Film Studies: 'American Gothic'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: An examination of the gothic--a world of fear, haunting, claustrophobia, paranoia, and monstrosity--in American literature and culture, with an emphasis upon issues of race and gender. Topics include slavery and the gothic; gothic sexuality; Southern, Northern, and national gothic; freakishness and grotesquerie; and visual gothic. Focus on fiction, with some film and photography. Authors, filmmakers, and artists may include Alcott, Arbus, Browning, Crane, Dunbar, Dunn, Elmer, Faulkner, Gilman, Hitchcock, Kubrick, McCullers, Morrison, O'Connor, Oates, Parks, Poe, Romero, Turner, and Wood.

FLMST-220MD Special Topics in Film Studies: 'Introduction to Media Studies'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course introduces students to the critical study of media, focusing on electronic media, digital technologies, and network cultures. We will analyze the aesthetics, politics, protocols, history, and theory of media, paying attention to the ways they create and erase borders; affect how we form and articulate identities; invade privacy while providing a platform for exploration; foster hate speech and progressive movements alike; and participate in capitalist economies and the acceleration of climate change. While tracing the global flows of media creation, distribution, and consumption, we will also consider the different issues that arise in diverse national and local contexts.

FLMST-220MU Special Topics in Film Studies: 'Music and Film'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course is for all who stay to the end of the credits, purchase soundtracks, and argue over who should have won the Oscar for Best Score, along with anyone else interested in the undervalued importance of music to the general effect of a motion picture. We will explore and discuss the myriad ways in which these two media interact. The course will focus on classic scores by Herrmann, Morricone, and Williams, as well as the uses of pre-existing music in films of Kubrick and Tarantino.
Crosslisted as: MUSIC-220
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

Prereq: MUSIC-100, MUSIC-102, MUSIC-103, or MUSIC-131.

FLMST-220NC Special Topics in Film Studies: 'Social Media: Networked Cultures'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Social media connect communities, inform us about friends' lives, and give us a platform on which to share ideas and form identities. Beyond that, social media play an increasingly conspicuous role in national and transnational politics, from Arab Spring to the viral spread of fake news around the 2016 US election. While social media connect people across the globe to an unprecedented degree, this course will explore how they also reveal divisions and borders, as well as alarming transgressions of borders, that complicate any utopian visions of a "global village." Throughout, we will be attuned to how corporate and governmental interests shape and are shaped by social media communities.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives

Prereq: FLMST-201, or FLMST-202, or FLMST-203.

FLMST-220RA Special Topics in Film Studies: 'Reel America: History and Film'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course is an introduction to the social and cultural history of the American film industry since the 1890s. The course surveys the evolution of Hollywood cinema from the silent era through the so-called classical period and through the post-World War II breakup of the studio system.
Crosslisted as: HIST-283RA

FLMST-220SW Special Topics in Film Studies: 'Screenwriting: The Shape of Stories'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: The screenplay is a unique and ephemeral form that exists as a blueprint for something else: a finished film. How do you convey on the page a story that will take shape within an audio-visual medium? The screenwriter must have an understanding of both the language of narrative film as well as the general shape and mechanics of film stories. This course will analyze both the language of film and the shape of film stories by looking at two modes of writing that are often at odds with each other: the three-act screenwriting as exemplified by Hollywood and the more elastic possibilities of the so-called 'art film.'

FLMST-260 Film Genres
Description: This course offers a critical, historical, and theoretical approach to a specific film genre. Some examples of genres that might be studied are: the science fiction, horror, melodrama, musical, Western, detective, or gangster film.

FLMST-270 National and Transnational Cinema

Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Indian popular film, known commonly as Bollywood, is usually understood to have weak storylines interrupted with overblown cinematic spectacles and distracting dance numbers. The course explores the narrative and visual structure of Bollywood for what scholar Lalitha Gopalan has called a "constellation of interruptions." We will analyze a selection of films closely, read scholarly articles, participate in debates, write guided assignments, and pursue independent research papers. We will learn to develop provocative historical and theoretical approaches to Indian films both, as a vibrant cultural form as well as intelligent filmmaking that challenges us and contributes to our understanding of world cinema.

FLMST-270FA National/Transnational Cinema: 'Fascism in Plain Sight'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines fascism from a visual perspective. Students learn about the history of the phenomenon through the lenses of cinema, television, and performance. The course begins with an overview of fascism that spans from 1920s Europe to the present. What exactly is fascism? What is its relationship to newly emergent populisms (often called "fascist") and their own emphasis on spectacle? How does fascism visualize race, immigration, gender, sexuality, and violence? The course focuses mainly on fascism's manifestations throughout the Spanish-speaking world. That is, what do Latin America and Spain teach us about its malleability and adaptability?

FLMST-270FM National/Transnational Cinema: 'American Films That Matter'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Certain American films stand out as works of art by combining strong narrative structure with striking visual presence. Ten of those films, from the silent era to the present, will be studied. In addition to weekly discussion, students will be responsible for analyzing opening sequences. Among the films to be considered are: The Grapes of Wrath, It's a Wonderful Life, Sunset Boulevard, Touch of Evil, Vertigo, Chinatown, Blade Runner, Do the Right Thing, and Beasts of the Southern Wild.
Crosslisted as: ARTH-290FM
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

Prereq: A previous Film Studies course.

FLMST-275 Documentary Film
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the history, theory, and practice of the genre called Documentary Film. Between studying the "actualités" of the cinema's first practitioners and the self-reflexive postmodern works of contemporary filmmakers such as Errol Morris, we will investigate ethnographic film, cinema verité, direct cinema, activist media, personal essay films, docudramas, and "mockumentaries." We will examine the formal structures through which these films make meaning and explore theoretical questions concerning notions of truth, ethics, and politics.

Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
R. Blaetz
Prereq: FLMST-201 or FLMST-202.

FLMST-280 Film Authorship
Description: This course offers a critical, historical, and theoretical approach to a specific cinematic author. While most courses focus on a director or group of directors, courses may also focus on designers, technicians, performers, producers, or some combination.

FLMST-285 Experimental Film
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines some aspect of the history and aesthetics of cinema made outside of the narrative practice of the classical Hollywood model. Some areas of focus include: surrealism and the cinema, American avant-garde cinema, or women's experimental cinema.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
R. Blaetz
Prereq: FLMST-201 or FLMST-202.

Description: An advanced course in the theory and practice of film/video production as an art form. Topics for the seminar will vary from year to year.

FLMST-310CP Special Topics in Media Production: 'Advanced Projects in Video Production'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: In this class, we will take the skills and insights gained in introductory production courses and develop them over the length of the semester through the creation of one short project, 10 minutes long. You may work individually or in pairs. We will learn by making work as well as by researching, reading, and watching films related to our projects. We may take this opportunity to delve into and learn the conventions of our chosen form. Or we may decide that our content demands formal experimentation and risk-taking. The course will be structured by the projects each student brings to it.

FLMST-320CM Seminar in Film Studies: 'Cinematic Masculinities in Contemporary American Film, 1970-present'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Film critics Manohla Dargis and A.O. Scott contend that "movies may be male dominated, but images of men are surprisingly narrow." This course explores postmodern masculinity as portrayed and disseminated through contemprorary film, and seeks to understand some of what is at stake (culturally, ideologically, economically) in perpetuating certain cinematic archetypes. Of particular relevance to our investigation are the ways in which film yokes masculinity to race, gender, and class. Films include The Deer Hunter, The Godfather, The Big Lebowski, Boyz in the Hood, Paris is Burning, Fight Club, and Moonlight.

FLMST-320ME Seminar in Film Studies: 'Media and Surveillance' Film, 1970-present'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: With corporations using data to anticipate our desires and counterterrorism units tapping into our communications, we are increasingly embedded in a surveillance society. This course considers practices of surveillance across media platforms, from smartphones, fitness trackers, and baby monitors to the biometric technologies that determine who may cross borders. We will explore how different governments, corporations, and individuals use new media to surveil others, as well as the ways racism and transphobia are inscribed in surveillance practices. We will also discuss and try out protective measures and various subversive practices of "sousveillance."

FLMST-320RC Seminar in Film Studies: 'Reflexivity in the Cinema' Film, 1970-present'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Some of the most compelling films in the history of the moving image have been those that make the viewer aware of the processes of their own production. Breaking away from the tradition of what Robert Stam calls the "art of enchantment," they call attention to themselves for reasons that range from the playful to the philosophical to the political. Some of the directors whom we will consider include: Chantal Akerman, Wes Anderson, Julie Dash, Rainer Werner Fassbinder, Federico Fellini, Jean-Luc Godard, William Greaves, Buster Keaton, Spike Lee, David Lynch, Fanta Régina Nacro, and Preston Sturges.

FLMST-360MH Genre: 'Film Melodrama and Horror''
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: An examination of classic and contemporary works in two important film genres, melodrama and horror. Topics of particular interest: affinities as well as contrasts between genres; feminist analyses and uses of genre; normative and alternative representations of sexualities; genre and the representations of race; spectatorship and the production of affect - tears and screams - by these genres. Extensive readings in film studies and cultural theory. Directors may include Almodóvar, Cronenberg, Curtiz, DePalma, Hitchcock, Kent, Lee, Onwurah, Polanski, Ray, Romero, Sirk, Vidor, and Whale.

FLMST-370BC Topics in National/Transnational Cinemas: 'Bollywood: A Cinema of Interruptions'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: How are we to respond to Indian popular film, which is notorious for its distracting song and dance numbers, meandering story line, and visually overblown spectacles? This seminar will develop historical and theoretical approaches to Indian films as what scholar Lalitha Gopalan calls a 'constellation of interruptions.' Students will examine feature films in class, write critical papers on scholarly essays, and pursue independent research projects on various aspects of Indian film.

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: How do labor relationships and the social construction of what work means affect our lives as well as our communities? How do they contribute to shape our identities? In which ways can our gender, sexual orientation, race, social class or migratory status define our working possibilities? How do the concepts of marginality and informality emerge to identify the precarious Latin American labor conditions? Through Latin American films, students will problematize the idea of service, worker, industry, classic and non-classic work, sexual and affective work, and child labor, among others.

FLMST-370MW Topics in National/Transnational Cinemas: 'Memory (of) War'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The medium of cinema has shown persistent concern with war and memory, and has constituted a heated battleground for remembrance and erasure of the past. Through cinema, in other words, we most clearly see both memories of war and subsequent wars among competing memories. The Spanish Civil War (1936-1939), the repressive military regime of Francisco Franco (1939-1975), and recent attempts to "recuperate" memory all dramatize these dynamics and raise a number of larger questions. How do destruction and devastation register through the visual? What happens when we attempt to police memory (through censorship, propaganda, etc.)? What and why do people choose to remember or forget?

FLMST-380HA Topics in Film Authorship: 'Hitchcock and After'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will examine the films of Alfred Hitchcock and the afterlife of Hitchcock in contemporary U.S. culture. We will interpret Hitchcock films in a variety of theoretical frames, including feminist and queer theories, and in shifting historical contexts, including the Cold War. We will also devote substantial attention to the legacy of Hitchcock in remakes, imitations, and parodies. Hitchcock films may include Spellbound, Strangers on a Train, Rear Window, Vertigo, North by Northwest, Psycho, The Man Who Knew Too Much, Mamie, and The Birds; additional works by Brooks, Craven, and De Palma. Readings in film and cultural theory; screenings at least weekly.

FLMST-380PA Topics in Film Authorship: 'Natural's Not in It: Pedro Almodóvar'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course studies the films of Pedro Almodóvar, European cinema's favorite bad boy turned acclaimed auteur. On the one hand, students learn to situate films within the context of contemporary Spanish history (the transition to democracy, the advent of globalization, etc.) in order to consider the local contours of postmodern aesthetics. On the other hand, the films provide a springboard to reflect on larger theoretical and ethical debates. For instance, what can a weeping transvestite teach us about desire? What happens when plastic surgery and organ transplants become metaphors? Under what circumstances, if any, can spectators find child prostitution cute?

FLMST-380SF Topics in Film Authorship: 'Shakespeare and Film'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: We will read plays by Shakespeare, watch films based on those plays, and study the plays, the films, and the plays-as-films. "Shakespeare" comes first, of course, both historically and as the source/inspiration for the films. Yet each film has its own existence, to be understood not just as an "adaptation," but also as the product of linked artistic, technical, and economic choices. Considering Shakespeare's plays as pre-texts (rather than pre-scriptions), we will look at early and recent films, both those that follow closely conventionalized conceptualizations of "Shakespeare," and those that tend to erase or emend their Shakespearean sources.

FLMST-385AV Topics in Experimental Film: 'American Avant-Garde Cinema'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the history of American avant-garde film, paying special attention to the alternative cultural institutions that have facilitated experimental cinema's emergence and longevity in the U.S. since the 1940s. We will consider how the avant-garde's interest in creating an alternative cinema necessitated a dramatic reorganization of existing modes of filmic production, distribution, exhibition, reception, and preservation. Students will analyze the major artistic tendencies that have defined the postwar American avant-garde, as well as the broader institutional practices involved in the production and maintenance of experimental film culture.

FREN-311 Period Courses
Description: The usual periodization of French literature and culture is by century. Some period courses focus on the characteristics of specific centuries. Others focus on artistic or intellectual movements: gothic, Renaissance, romantic. All period courses, whatever their conceptual framework, integrate texts and historical contexts.

FREN-321 Genre Courses
Description: This interdisciplinary seminar will focus on a comparative study of Romance languages or literatures. Topics will vary from semester to semester. Seminar discussions will be conducted in English, but students wishing to obtain language credit are expected to read works in at least one original language. Papers will be written in either English or the Romance language of the student's choice.

FREN-321RL Genre Courses: 'Topic: History of Romance Languages'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the structural evolution of Romance languages from Vulgar Latin to contemporary forms. A chronological account will be organized around themes of persistence (inheritance from Latin) and innovation (structural change). We will begin by exploring different theories about linguistic change. Then, using concrete examples, we will analyze the main stages of development of Romance languages by focusing on different features at all linguistic levels and relating them to historical and sociological factors.

FREN-351VR Courses on Women and Gender: 'Viragos, Virgins, and Visionaries'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course, we will study the three most celebrated French female saints: Jeanne d'Arc, Thérèse de Lisieux and Bernadette de Lourdes. Their stories are similar: ordinary young women to whom extraordinary things happened, who became symbols of France and inspired a rich verbal and visual iconography. Yet they are profoundly different: Joan was a warrior,
Thérèse a memoirist, Bernadette a visionary. We will study the facts of their lives, in their own words and those of others, but also the many fictions, semi-fictions, myths and legends based on those lives. We will analyze a number of films and visual images as well as literary and non-literary texts in our attempt to understand these cases of specifically female, specifically French sainthood.

FYSEM-110BR Breakfast in the Americas
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Have you ever thought about the origins of the sugar, coffee, bananas, and chocolate that we consume at the breakfast table? Who cuts the sugar cane? Who owns the coffee plantation? What are the social and environmental costs of bananas? This interdisciplinary course examines some of the cultural, historical, social, political, and economic issues surrounding these Latin American commodities. We will explore the lives of company owners, laborers, producers, and consumers as we trace the role sugar, coffee, bananas, and chocolate have played in the historical and cultural development of Latin America. We will also learn how these products are represented in art, literature, and film.

FYSEM-110CL Representative Works of Modern Chinese Literature
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
The twentieth century started with the downfall of the Chinese monarchy, numerous humiliations at the hands of Western countries, and the establishment of the Republic of China in 1911. In the spirit of reform and renaissance, a group of young writers, educated in both China and the West, spearheaded a new direction in Chinese literature. This group of writers abandoned the classical Chinese language, was keenly interested in social development and betterment, attacked Confucian tradition, and adopted Western ideals. The class will read representative works of these writers and try to understand their sociopolitical impact, while appreciating the artistic qualities of these writings.

FYSEM-110CM Coming of Age on Screen
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: In this course we will trace the representation of teenage girls in television and film from the 1950s to the present as a way to better understand how moving images shape culture. We will look closely at the notion of "entertainment" and at the ways in which moving image texts create ways of seeing and meaning.

FYSEM-110CW Goodbye, Conventional Wisdom
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: One of the hallmarks of a liberal arts education is to draw on a broad base of knowledge in order to interrogate common assumptions. No one exemplifies this critical approach better than French philosopher Michel Foucault. One of the most influential thinkers of recent times, Foucault revolutionized several academic disciplines and even questioned the very notion of a discipline itself. He did so by revealing the history and transformations of ideas now viewed as self-evident. This first-year seminar invites students to develop similar analytical skills. Following Foucault's lead, the course pays special attention to preconceptions about government, freedom, identity, and sexuality.

FYSEM-110CY Cyberpunks in the Digital Age
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: For several decades now, journalists, artists, and scholars have attempted to articulate the ways the Internet and digital culture has transformed how we live and think. Examining novels, movies, blogs, and other digital media, we will consider how the digital age shapes our understandings of gender and sexuality and how notions of femininity might help us define 'being digital.' As we develop reading and writing skills, we will also experiment in groups with new digital tools such as distant reading, advanced searching, and media remixing. Topics may include the Internet and brain science, avatars and fembots, virtual relationships, as well as cyber-bullying, hacking, and networking.

FYSEM-110EM Emily Dickinson at Mount Holyoke
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Drawing on archival records and other documents, including Dickinson's letters and poems, students in this seminar will explore what Dickinson's year at Mary Lyon's Mount Holyoke might have meant to her as student and poet. We will also examine Lyon's vision of women's education, as well as contrasting visions of education in 'Old New England' from such writers and thinkers as Emerson, Thoreau, and Stowe.

FYSEM-110FF The Once and Future Family Farm? A Social History of Small-Scale Agriculture
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Small-scale agriculture fed the world until the middle of the 20th century, and the majority of the world’s population farmed small plots in rural areas until the last decade. What role will family farms play in the world we are creating? We examine how small scale agriculture has changed over the past 200 years in East and West Africa, the Andes, China, India, and in the United States, and consider its future. Using recent and classic scholarship, autobiographies, memoirs, archives, and oral histories, we will develop skills in analysis, critical reading, and academic writing. We will visit local farms and interact with farmers on other continents using social media.

FYSEM-110FR The Meaning of Friendship
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will explore the history, meaning, and significance of friendship. Students will engage with multiple texts that explore the relationship between social and personal identities related to friendship. Current research and trends regarding the study of friendship, particularly intersectional dimensions for friendship will be explored. Students will be encouraged to apply the theories and practices learned in this course as they build community at Mount Holyoke.

FYSEM-110GF God, Free Will, and Morality
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This first year seminar is a critical thinking boot camp. Students will learn to charitably interpret, logically reconstruct, and critically evaluate arguments. The arguments come from classic and contemporary readings in philosophy about God, free will, and morality. We will focus on questions such as: Does God exist? Is it rational to believe in God? What should I do if I want to do the right thing? When is it ok to criticize other cultures? How much do I owe to others? Do we have free will? Can we ever be held responsible for anything? Students will come out of the class better thinkers, better writers, and better equipped to tackle difficult questions like these with rigor and care.

FYSEM-110GP Gender and Power in the History of Mount Holyoke College
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Mary Lyon, founder in 1837 of Mount Holyoke Female Seminary, held out to her students the possibility that they might transform the world around them -- a tall order for young women who were excluded from proper citizenship and political power. Duty, discipline, and economy would make it possible. What transformations ensued? And what can we learn from them about the complexities of gender and power in worlds shaped by racism, colonialism, capitalist development, national aspirations, Protestant dominance, and normative regimes of gender, sexuality, and bodily comportment? This course will introduce students to the richness of the College Archives and the possibilities of historical thinking.

FYSEM-110MA Exploration of Mars
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Exploration of Mars is an ongoing effort that has greatly expanded our knowledge of the Red Planet and changed our vision of its surface. We will examine the history of the investigation and exploration of Mars. We will also plan future observations from orbiting spacecraft, engage with scientists involved in current missions, and imagine the best ways to explore Mars in upcoming decades. Developing physical intuition and analytical skills in astronomy, geology, physics and other sciences will be emphasized, as well as speaking and writing ability.

FYSEM-110LG Slang: Community/Power/Language
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Language is a living system. It grows and changes, despite efforts to preserve it. This course examines how slang participates in these changes. What separates slang from standard language, and who sets the standard? Through readings in linguistics and literature, this course examines how we use language to connect, create, and control.

FYSEM-110MN Medical Narratives
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: A study of writing by and about patients, those who diagnose and treat them, and the communities and cultures that shape their stories. Readings will be drawn from essays, plays, memoirs, short stories, and novels that tell real or constructed tales of getting worse and getting better.
MAPping the World, the Mind, the Self
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Maps are essential tools for understanding the world around us. But do our maps show us the world as it is, or do they allow us to choose the world we will see? Texts for the course may include poetry by Elizabeth Bishop, Thomas Hardy and others; short fiction by Borges, Faulkner and others, and visual art from the College Art Museum.

Politics of Inequality: Social Movements in the U.S.
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The course explores comparative racial and ethnic politics in the U.S. during the twentieth century. We will analyze the creation and maintenance of structural inequalities through laws and policies targeted at persons of color in the areas of healthcare, transportation, immigration, labor, racial segregation, and education. Through readings, lectures and films, we will discuss critical histories of community struggle against social inequality, registering the central impact that race, class, gender, sexuality, and citizenship have had on efforts toward social justice.

Self-Portraiture
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: How do we represent ourselves? How can the self -- that is to say, subjective experience, private life, identity, consciousness -- be translated into written form? How, in turn, does writing fashion and construct the self? Throughout history, authors and thinkers have engaged these questions in countless texts and textual forms -- in essays, confessions, autobiographies, and poetry. This seminar will sample influential and innovative works of literary self-portrayal from around the world, exploring how a wide variety of writers have rendered themselves in language, narrative, and text. Authors may include Augustine, Shakespeare, Wordsworth, Joyce, Nabokov, and Plath.

FYSEM-110PY Anthropology of Play

Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: We associate play with childhood, a time of spontaneous and creative activity, in contrast to the boring routine of adult responsibilities. And yet play is more than just fun and games. It is through play that children develop lasting cognitive and social skills. For adults too, there can be serious play—play that has real consequence—play that shapes the intimate lives of individuals, as well as entire social formations. In this course, we will explore play cross culturally, from the Balinese cockfight to American football, from gambling to role playing. We will design games based on the anthropological readings in order to appreciate the game-like qualities of many domains of life.

FYSEM-110RA Our America? Social Movements in Latin America: Latin American Cultural Studies

Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This interdisciplinary course provides an introduction to the political and cultural landscape of Latin America through the lenses of some of its social movements. It focuses on some of the region’s most recent polemics and political innovations in order to establish the foundation for a deeper understanding of contemporary Latin America while interrogating its geopolitical boundaries. Some themes are the impact of social movements on national policy shifts, the significance of indigenous groups for political discourse, or the use of human right agendas in local contexts.

FYSEM-110RM Confronting Power and Authority in Ancient Rome

Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Romans hated kings, and when they founded their Republic they did so on principles of shared governance and popular sovereignty in order to prevent the rise of monarchy. Yet in times of crisis Romans tolerated and even promoted leaders with absolute power. How did this ideal of popular sovereignty square with the need for dictators? What happened when populism confronted authoritarianism? How did Romans represent power and authority—in literature, ceremony, architecture, and art? This course will consider these and other related questions through the careers of Julius Caesar and Augustus, who oversaw the transformation of Roman political culture from Republic to monarchy.

FYSEM-110RR Remembering as Reconciliation in the Wake of Violence

Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: We explore how memorialization and reconciliation take place in societies that have experienced extreme violence. How do survivors, perpetrators and their descendants record the experience of atrocity through testimonials and memorials in ways that contrast with 'official' national narratives of the past? In what ways does memorialization end cycles of violence without re-triggering trauma? How does restorative justice, for example, address feelings of despair or guilt that get passed down from one generation to another? Our transnational study will include examples from Germany, Japan, Rwanda, and Cambodia primarily, with other examples included based on student interest.

FYSEM-110TG Transgressive Music
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: The seminar will introduce and discuss various musical works and genres that fall under rock critic Ann Powers' definitions of 'Violator Art,' exploring them within the context of their wanton and disturbing appeal, as well as their often scandalous social impact. Topics will include the Second Viennese School, free jazz, protest music, punk rock, hip-hop, works such as J. S. Bach's 'Cantata No. 179,' Strauss's 'Salome,' Stravinsky's 'Le Sacre du printemps,' Billie Holiday's 'Strange Fruit,' George Crumb's 'Black Angels,' and artists such as Frank Zappa, Donna Summer, Prince, and Nirvana.

FYSEM-110TS The Work of Translation
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Mount Holyoke's mission is "purposeful engagement in the world" but in a multilingual world, our goal can only be achieved with the help of translators and interpreters. As the US Bureau of Labor Statistics predicts a 46% increase in translation work 2012-2022, we consider it as a scholarly, professional and lay activity. Challenging stereotypes of translation as derivative or faulty, we reflect on the wealth of languages and cultures at Mount Holyoke College and how the curriculum depends on the work of translation. Students discuss what is gained, lost or simply transformed in translation. This introduction to translation studies is especially valuable to students with a background or interest in languages.

FYSEM-110VH Volcanoes and Volcanic Hazards
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: We have a love/hate relationship with volcanoes. We go out of our way to visit volcanoes; to witness eruptions and to bag a high peak. But, often volcanoes turn deadly killing hundreds of people and making life difficult for many more. Volcanic eruptions pose both significant local threats and often global concerns (e.g. climate change). Volcanoes occur on every continent, yet they tend to occur in tectonically predictable settings. Less predictable, however, is the timing and magnitude of specific volcanic eruptions. In this course we will investigate why volcanoes occur where they do, the type of lava that is associated with different volcanoes and the hazards associated with volcanic eruptions. We will study past and present volcanoes and volcanic eruptions as case studies. Students will be actively involved in class presentations and discussions and will research and write a number of papers throughout the semester.

FYSEM-110VT Jack the Ripper and the Making of Late-Victorian London
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: In the summer and fall of 1888, a series of gruesome murders captured the attention of Londoners and brought questions of class, gender, race and social-economic change to the forefront of public debate. Though the culprit was never identified, Jack the Ripper became synonymous with the perceived dangers of late-Victorian London. Using newspapers, periodicals, police archives, and other sources from the period, this course will set students on an historical investigation of the "Whitechapel Murders," seeking to understand the event, its historical context, and the way historians have interpreted its meaning.

FYSEM-110WP How Words Change Worlds: Writers, Politics, and Power
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Jean Paul Sartre tells us words are like 'loaded pistols.' They have the power to transform worlds and inspire revolutions. Focusing on the power of language and the ideas they carry, we will look at writers as agents of social and political change. How do governments and society react to their work (censors, the media, readers?). We have two goals: to examine the interaction between aesthetics and politics, and the relationship between writers and governments. We will include some of the 'greats' such as Rousseau, Swift, Orwell, Sartre, Andrei Platonov, Solzhenitsyn, Rushdie, and Chinua Achebe.

FYSEM-110WT Writing About Pictures
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: True, pictures are worth a thousand words, but how do we know which thousand words to use? In this seminar, we will read a range of art criticism, art history, and fiction in order to examine the work of language in relation to pictures. We will explore a basic question: Why do pictures compel us to use words? We will learn to distinguish among different kinds of writing, visit the Mount Holyoke College Art Museum regularly, and learn to craft thoughtful words of our own about original works of art. We will work on collaborative projects, and cultivate leadership skills by actively listening to peers, and writing and speaking critically about art.

Geography

GEOG-105 World Regional Geography
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course surveys the major geographic regions of the world in terms of environmental features and resource distributions, economic mainstays, population characteristics, cultural processes, social relationships, and patterns of urbanization and industrial growth. In addition to these topical foci, we use various sub-fields of geography to animate different regions. This approach provides a sense of depth while we also pursue a breadth of knowledge about the world.

GEOG-208 Global Movements: Migrations, Refugees and Diasporas
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The voluntary and involuntary movement of people around the globe is the focus of this course on migrations, refugees, and diasporas. Questions of borders, nativism, transnationalism, the global economy, and legality thread through this course as we consider the many social, cultural, environmental, economic, and political factors shaping decisions to leave a home or homeland. Historical and contemporary case studies, compelling theoretical texts, and geographic perspectives on these topics collectively animate our discussions.

GEOG-213 Sustainable Cities
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Based on present estimates, for the first time in human history, more people now live in urban than rural areas, and population growth projections for the next century indicate that most growth will take place in urban areas. Given this context, this course examines the social, economic, and environmental dimensions of urban sustainability. Topics explored in the course include urban and ecological systems, air and water quality, green design, energy and transportation systems, demographic trends, climate change impacts, and the role of technology in promoting urban sustainability.

GEOG-224 Atmosphere and Weather
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course provides a detailed introduction to the earth's atmosphere with particular emphasis on the troposphere extending from the surface to 10km in elevation. Topics include the earth's solar energy budget, atmospheric pressure and wind systems, global and local meteorological processes, and weather forecasting. The class will make significant use of meteorological data and satellite imagery taken from NOAA's National Weather Service to study seasonal weather patterns, rain and snow events, and catastrophic hurricanes.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
T. Millette
Prereq: Any 100-level natural science course.
Advisory: Students who have taken high school earth science but not a college-level natural science course are welcome to request instructor permission to enroll.

GEOG-230 Environmental Soil Science
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Introduction to the physical, chemical, and biological properties of soils and their relationship to environmental quality, agricultural production, and land management. This course will also describe the processes of origin and development of soils as natural entities and how they affect the different ecosystems where they are located. Some field work required.
E. Marcano

Course can be repeated for credit.

GEOG-304 Planning and the Environment

GEOG-304UP Planning and the Environment: 'Urban Planning’
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines in detail the fabric of urban and suburban settlement and commerce in the pre and post WW II U.S. Field trips to the greater Springfield area are used to allow students to develop firsthand understanding of interactions between urban and suburban areas and to recognize the major changes to the human landscape driven by suburbanization and urban abandonment. This class will examine the section of Springfield slated for the MGM Casino Development.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
T. Millette
Prereq: Any 200-level Geography course.

GEOG-312 Seminar
Description: These seminars present selected topics in geography that reflect contemporary problems, current geographical ideas, philosophical and methodological trends in geography, and/or the history and development of geographical thought.

GEOG-313 Third World Development
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Offers an interdisciplinary perspective on social, economic, and political features of contemporary development in Africa, Asia, and Latin America, regions referred to as the Third World or the South, and provides an introduction to the theoretical origins and definitions of economic growth, development, and underdevelopment. It then addresses more specific aspects of development such as trends in population growth, migration, and urbanization; agrarian change; livelihood strategies and aspects of social welfare such as health, education, and shelter; poverty and the environment; and social justice. The latter part of the course draws extensively on selected case studies.

GEOG-320 Research with Geospatial Technologies
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Geographic Information Systems (GIS) and remote sensing are essential tools for geographic analysis in both the biophysical and social sciences. This course uses a semester-long project that includes field and laboratory instruction to allow students to develop hands-on skills with spatial data and analysis software. Students will be able to present potential employers with a portfolio containing examples of their ability to develop and execute a GIS/remote sensing application project.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
T. Millette
Prereq: GEOG-205.

GEOG-325 Conflict and Displacement in Africa
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course provides an analytical approach to the study of civil/armed conflicts and displacement in post-independent Africa. Using cases from West Africa, Horn of Africa, and the Great Lake region, the course examines geographic, political and economic contexts in which armed conflicts occur by identifying and evaluating competing explanations of the underpinnings of civil conflicts. It analyzes the role of some of the widely debated features of Africa’s civil conflicts, including systems of governance, impact of natural resources, questions of sovereignty and self-determination, construction and manipulation of ethnic/cultural identities, impact of religion, and regional inequalities.

GEOG-328 Climate Migration
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This seminar focuses on climate change-induced human migration from both theoretical and applied perspectives. It examines the predicted scope of this population movement and considers international instruments that could shape responses to this growing category of migrants. A set of contemporary case studies from around the world animate our investigation into what it means to adapt to an altered environment and inform our questions about responsibility for climate change. Throughout the semester, students will grapple with the complex environmental, economic, cultural, and political intersections of migration and Earth’s changing climate system.

Geology

GEOL-103 Oceanography
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Because more than seventy percent of our planet is covered by oceans, the study of marine systems is crucial to our understanding of Earth History and life on the planet. We will examine chemical, physical, geological, and biological processes in the oceans at a variety of scales in time and space. We will explore how the Earth's oceans formed, how they provided the foundations for life, and how they continue to affect weather and climate, stabilize global chemical cycles, erode coastlines and provide access to resources. We will conclude the semester with a discussion of the human impact on the ocean environment including sea level rise, acidification, coral bleaching and overfishing.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. Werner
Advisory: Potential Environmental Studies and Geology majors should consider taking GEOL-123 concurrently with this course.

GEOL-107 Environmental Geology
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The only planet known to sustain life, Earth, as a result, has a strange geology unlike that of any other known planet. In this course we will examine the interrelations between life processes and Earth’s crust and atmosphere, and how these relationships interact to generate the geology of the planet. By means of hands-on analysis of rocks and fossils, we will study the origin and evolution of life, the diversification of complex life forms, the appearance of large predators, and the causes and consequences of oxygenation of the atmosphere.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. McMenamin
Advisory: Potential Environmental Studies and Geology majors should consider taking GEOL-123 concurrently with this course.

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Are we running out of drinking water? Is fracking safe? When is peak oil? This course is a basic geology course that focuses on two earth materials we use every day: fresh water and fossil fuels. We cover where groundwater is found and why, the depletion and contamination of groundwater, and some major aquifers. We will also explore the formation, worldwide distribution, and extraction of coal, oil, and natural gas. This course introduces students to physical and historical geology, focusing particularly on plate tectonics and sedimentary basins, with attention to current events and illustrations from around the world.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

Advisory: Potential Environmental Studies and Geology majors should consider taking GEOL-123 concurrently with this course.

GEOL-109 History of Life
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Life forms have inhabited the surface of our planet for most of its history. Earth, as a result, has a strange geology unlike that of any other known planet. In this course we will examine the interrelations between life processes and Earth’s crust and atmosphere, and how these relationships interact to generate the geology of the planet. By means of hands-on analysis of rocks and fossils, we will study the origin and evolution of life, the diversification of complex life forms, the appearance of large predators, and the causes and consequences of oxygenation of the atmosphere.

GEOL-123 Methods in Earth Science
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 2
Description: This course provides a hands-on introduction to earth science and methods in geology. Students will learn the fundamental tools of the trade and explore local geology on field trips. Interactive laboratory work will include projects on groundwater contamination, landfill siting, geologic hazards, and earth materials. Students will also develop skills in reading topographic and geologic maps.

Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Reqmt
M. Markley, P. Taylor
Advisory: This is an excellent stand-alone introduction to the geosciences, and also works very well if taken concurrently with any 100-level geology course.
Notes: Several field trips are required.

GEOL-126 The Cambrian Explosion
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: The origin of animals was arguably the most important event in earth history. In this course we will review the history of earth, learn basic geology, and then examine the problem of the origin of animals by studying Mount Holyoke College's superb and unique collection of Proterozoic and Cambrian fossils. The emergence of animals has been called the Cambrian explosion. We will examine what this means for our understanding of evolution as we evaluate hypotheses proposed to explain the relatively sudden appearance of more than half of known animal phyla during the Cambrian event.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

GEOL-131 Introduction to Hydrology: A Data Perspective
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Understanding hydrology (the distribution and movement of water at the earth's surface) is critical for resource management and climate modeling. With an eye toward these applications, we will use observational data to explore the components of the water cycle (precipitation, evapotranspiration, soil moisture, and streamflow) and the physical processes that govern them. Lectures and hands-on computer exercises are aimed at students with interests in earth and environmental science or data science. No previous experience is necessary. Students will receive an introduction to statistics, computer programming, data visualization techniques, and available environmental data sources.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

GEOL-133 Mass Extinction, Dinosaurs and Ecological Recovery
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Beginning in Precambrian time over a half billion years ago, mass extinctions have periodically decimated earth's biota and left the biosphere in ruins. For example, both the Permo-Triassic and the End-Cretaceous mass extinctions reshaped life on earth and initiated new geological eras. In this course we will examine why mass extinctions occur and study the ways in which the biosphere recovers from mass extinction events. We will also evaluate the claim that we humans are causing a mass extinction and examine proposals regarding the steps we might take to hasten biospheric recovery.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive; Writing-Intensive

Prereq: Any one course in biology, chemistry, environmental studies, geology, or physics.

GEOL-141 Making the Past: Geosciences in the Makerspace
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: The great German paleontologist Dolf Seilacher once remarked that "drawing enforces careful observation." As a consequence, Seilacher drew all of the illustrations for his influential scientific publications. Taking Seilacher's insight into three dimensions, in this course we will utilize Mount Holyoke's Makerspace to reconstruct ancient organisms. Studies have shown that well-crafted reconstructions of ancient creatures contribute substantially to improved scientific interpretation of their functional morphology, behavior and paleoecological role(s). We will use Makerspace resources, Pixologic's Sculptris, 3D printing and other tools to improve our understanding of the morphologies and activities of ancient organisms, while gleaning information derived from the rock record to analyze their ancient morphologies and behaviors.
GEOL-201 Rocks and Minerals
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: In this course you will learn to recognize the common rock-forming minerals and principal rock types, and to understand their origins, properties, associations, and geological significance. Observational skills and hand sample identification will be emphasized in lab and on field trips. Students must have either a one-year high school earth science class or any 100- or 200-level geology course or Geography 107. One or more field trips required.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
S. Dunn
Coreq: GEOL-201L.

GEOL-202 History of Earth
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course explores the evolution and interaction of life, rocks, oceans, and air during the past 4 billion years of earth history. Some topics covered are: ice ages and greenhouse atmospheres, continental drift, extinctions and radiations of flora and fauna, the early evolution of earth, absolute and relative dating of rocks, and the geologic time scale. Oral presentations and writing assignments focus on the design and testing of earth science hypotheses, critical analysis of recently published research on earth history, and proposal writing. The final exam involves memorization of the geologic time scale and significant events in earth history.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive; Writing-Intensive

Prereq: GEOL-123. May be taken concurrently with permission of instructor.

GEOL-203 The Earth's Surface
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: The surface of the Earth is a history book of past environmental change. Every hill and valley, every erosional feature and every deposit is the result of processes acting at the Earth's surface.
In this course we study these processes (e.g. glaciers, rivers, slopes, coastlines, arid regions, frozen ground, cave formation, soil development and groundwater) to understand how they work and to understand the resulting landforms and deposits. With this understanding we can then observe different landforms and deposits and infer past processes (environments of deposition). Field work and trips allow students to explore first-hand the processes that have created and modified the Earth's surface.

Prereq: GEOL-123.

GEOL-210 Plate Tectonics
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Plate tectonic theory explains the origins of volcanoes and earthquakes, continental drift, and the locations of mountain belts and oceans. This course focuses on the geometry of plate tectonics. Topics include mid-ocean ridge systems, transform faults, subduction zones, relative plate motion, earthquake analysis, triple point junctions, and stereographic projection. Work includes individual research projects on active plate boundaries.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive; Writing-Intensive
M. Markley
Advisory: Comfort with geometry and trigonometry required.

GEOL-211 Uranium
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: From the A-bomb to zircon, uranium has revolutionized humanity's destructive potential and wisdom about time. Uranium is the planet's heaviest naturally occurring element, and it transforms by both radioactive decay and nuclear fission. This course uses computer modeling to explore these two transformations and what we make of them, specifically: the age of the earth, high-precision dating of recent geologic and climate events, nuclear power, nuclear weapons, and radiation and health. Writing and reading assignments focus on science communication for a general audience.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. Markley
Prereq: One course in Chemistry, Geology, Math, or Statistics.

GEOL-224 Sedimentary Geology
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Sedimentary rocks provide us with repositories of fresh water, hydrocarbons, and other critical raw materials, as well as geological evidence for the history of planet earth. This course will introduce students to the study of sedimentary rocks and their environments of deposition, with a focus on the varied processes of sediment accumulation. We will employ the principles of stratigraphic analysis and correlation to interpret ancient environments, paleoclimate, and paleogeography, and use these tools to probe the characteristics of sedimentary basins. Field trips will introduce a variety of analytical techniques used to study sedimentary rocks.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. McMenamin
Prereq: Any one course in biology, chemistry, environmental studies, geology, or physics.

GEOL-227 Groundwater
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The demand for and the contamination of groundwater resources are major environmental concerns. To better understand the dynamics of the groundwater system, we will cover topics including the hydrologic cycle, surface and subsurface hydrology, groundwater resource evaluation, and groundwater geotechnical problems. Students are required to prepare weekly problem sets/labs, a term paper, and an oral presentation.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. Werner
Prereq: One 100-level Geology course.; Coreq: GEOL-227L.

GEOL-240 Geological Resources and the Environment
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course surveys the geology and exploitation of important mineral deposits and energy resources. We will discuss factors that govern the economics of their production and the environmental implications of their extraction and use.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
S. Dunn

GEOL-241 Topics in Geology

GEOL-241RV Topics in Geology: 'Rivers and Society'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course, you will think like a river scientist, evaluate societal issues related to rivers, and learn to communicate these points to a general audience. The course is organized around broad topics in river science: river migration, floods, deltas, groundwater, river ecology, and dams. Case studies will look at specific dam removals, recent destructive floods, and water rights and disputes across borders.
Crosslisted as: ENVST-233RV

Prereq: Any science, math, or geography course.

GEOL-247 Environmental Modeling & Statistics
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Models are simple representations of the real world, which can be used to convey information, generate and test hypotheses, and make predictions about what will happen in the future. This course introduces students to the art and science of modeling natural systems, as well as their mathematical and statistical foundations. Students will gain experience in asking research questions, creating hypotheses, collecting and arranging data, and designing computer models (in R) to address a variety of environmental problems. This course will include lecture and hands-on computer exercises and is aimed at students with interests in earth and environmental science or data science.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

GEOL-251 Snowball Earth and Extreme Climate
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Policy proposals regarding what to do about contemporary climate change are hampered by the fact that we do not fully understand the potential for extreme climate events. Climate feedback and "Gaian mechanisms" seem to provide stabilizing feedback, but we know from the study of earth history that at times in the past earth's climate has careened into states of extreme hot or extreme cold. Compounding the problem, in some instances the two extremes are juxtaposed. In this course we will study the Snowball Earth events, the Shuram Excursion, the Paleocene-Eocene Thermal Maximum (PETM) and the Pleistocene glaciations as a means to understand the potential for extreme climate fluctuation. Of particular interest will be what role, if any, the biosphere itself (via Vernadskian mechanisms) plays in generating these events. We will consider ways to reduce the impact of climate fluctuation as a means of avoiding an extreme climate event.

GEOL-316 Scanning Electron Microscopy
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 2
Description: Includes theory and operation of the scanning electron microscope and preparation of biological and geological materials for observation. The versatile use of the microscope will be emphasized and will include low magnification, high resolution, and back scattered (reflected) electron modes of operation as well as operation at different pressures. Energy dispersive X-ray microanalysis will be introduced.

GEOL-326 Seminar: Global Climate Change
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Earth's dynamic climate system is rapidly changing. This course will introduce you to the science behind climate change predictions as they apply to past, present, and future changes in our earth's climate. We will also discuss how, over the course of time, we adapted to these changing conditions with a specific focus on water resources and natural disasters, including floods, droughts, and hurricanes that have been predicted to intensify in response to ongoing climate change.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

Prereq: One Geology or Environmental Studies course at the 200-level.

GEOL-333 Structural Geology and Orogenesis
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course covers the basic techniques of field geology and structural analysis. Lectures concentrate on field techniques, stress, strain, faulting, folding, rock strength, deformation mechanisms, and multidisciplinary approaches to mountain building (orogenesis). Many labs are field trips that involve data collection. Weekly writing assignments focus on presenting original research and distinguishing between observations and interpretations. During the final weeks of the semester, oral presentations emphasize fluency in the published literature of structural geology using a case study from Death Valley, California. Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences M. Markley Prereq: GEOL-123 and GEOL-201. GEOL-201 may be taken concurrently.; Coreq: GEOL-333L.

GEOL-342 Seminar in Geology
Description: Seminars offer directed study and discussion of one or more selected topics in geology. Topics vary from year to year. Consult the department for information about future seminars.

GEOL-342DV Seminar in Geology: 'Death Valley Field Course'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This seminar will cover selected topics on the geology of Death Valley region, California. We will meet for two hours per week up until spring break, then embark on a nine-day field trip to Death Valley National Park, March 2019. A participation fee is required. Students will be responsible for researching particular topics and presenting a final report.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt S. Dunn, A. Werner

Gender Studies

GNDST-101 Introduction to Gender Studies
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course is designed to introduce students to social, cultural, historical, and political perspectives on gender and its construction. Through discussion and writing, we will explore the intersections among gender, race, class, and sexuality in multiple settings and contexts. Taking an interdisciplinary approach to a variety of questions, we will consider the distinctions between sex and gender, women's economic status, the making of masculinity, sexual violence, queer movements, racism, and the challenges of feminist activism across nations, and possibilities for change. We will also examine the development of feminist theory, including its promises and challenges.

GNDST-133 Introductory Topics in Feminist and Queer Studies

GNDST-201 Methods and Practices in Feminist Scholarship
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This is a class about doing research as a feminist. We will explore questions such as: What makes feminist research feminist? What makes it research? What are the proper objects of feminist research? Who can do feminist research? What can feminist research do? Are there feminist ways of doing research? Why and how do the stories we tell in our research matter? Some of the key issues and themes we will address include: accountability, location, citational practices and politics, identifying stakes and stakeholders, intersectionality, inter/disciplinarity, choosing and describing our topics and methods, and research as storytelling. The class will be writing intensive and will culminate in each student producing a research portfolio.

GNDST-204 Women and Gender in the Study of Culture

GNDST-204CP Women and Gender in the Study of Culture: 'Trap Doors and Glittering Closets: Queer/Trans* of Color Politics of Recognition, Legibility, Visibility and Aesthetics'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: In 2014, Time magazine declared the "Transgender Tipping Point" as a popular moment of transgender people's arrival into the mainstream. Using a queer and trans* of color critique, this course will unpack the political discourses and seeming binaries surrounding visibility/invisibility, recognition/misrecognition, legibility/illegibility, belonging/unbelonging and aesthetics/utility. How might we grapple with the contradictions of the trapdoors, pitfalls, dark corners and glittering closets that structure and normalize violence for some while safeguarding violence for others? This course will center the 2017 anthology Trap Door: Trans Cultural Production and the Politics of Visibility.

GNDST-204CW Women and Gender in the Study of Culture: 'Androgyny and Gender Negotiation in Contemporary Chinese Women's Theater'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Yue Opera, an all-female art that flourished in Shanghai in 1923, resulted from China's social changes and the women's movement. Combining traditional with modern forms and Chinese with Western cultures, Yue Opera today attracts loyal and enthusiastic audiences despite pop arts crazes. We will focus on how audiences, particularly women, are fascinated by gender renegotiations as well as by the all-female cast. The class will read and watch classics of this theater, including Romance of the Western Bower, Peony Pavilion, and Butterfly Lovers. Students will also learn the basics of traditional Chinese opera.

GNDST-204EM Women and Gender in the Study of Culture: 'Embodiment in Theory: Precarious Lives from Marx to Butler'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: We examine the writing of major nineteenth, twentieth, and twenty-first century theorists, such as Marx, Nietzsche, Freud, Dubois, Arendt, Fanon, Foucault, Butler, and others through the lens of embodiment. Rather than read theory as an abstract entity, we explore how theory itself is an embodiment of actual lives in which human beings experience life as precarious. What are the social conditions that create vulnerable bodies? How do thinkers who lived or are living precarious lives represent these bodies? Through a series of case studies based on contemporary examples of precarity, we examine the legacy and materiality of critical social thought.

GNDST-204GV Women and Gender in the Study of Culture: 'Gendered Violence in Spain'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This survey course will review the complex interaction of gender and violence as a personal and institutional issue in Spain from Medieval times to the present. What are the ideological and sociocultural constructs that sustain and perpetuate violence against women? What are the forms of resistance women have put into play? Among the texts, we will study short stories by Lucanor (thirteenth century) and María de Zayas (seventeenth century), song by Bebé and movie by Boya&iacuten (twentieth century), contemporary news (twenty-first century), and laws (from the thirteenth century to the present).

GNDST-204QT Women and Gender in the Study of Culture: 'Queer and Trans Writing'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: What do we mean when we say "queer writing" or "trans writing"? Are we talking about writing by queer and/or trans authors? Writing about queer or trans practices, identities, experience? Writing that subverts conventional forms? All of the above? In this course, we will engage these questions not theoretically but through praxis. We will read fiction, poetry, comics, creative nonfiction, and hybrid forms. Expect to encounter work that challenges you in terms of form and content. Some writers we may read include Ryka Aoki, James Baldwin, Tom Cho, Samuel R. Delany, kari edwards, Elisha Lim, Audre Lorde, Cherrie Moraga, Eileen Myles, and David Wojnarowicz.

GNDST-204RP Women and Gender in the Study of Culture: 'Race, Racism, and Power'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course analyzes the concepts of race and racism from an interdisciplinary perspective, with focus on Latinas/os/x in the United States. It explores the sociocultural, political, economic, and historical forces that interact with each other in the production of racial categories and racial "difference." In particular, we focus on racial ideologies, racial formation theory, and processes of racialization, as well as the relationship between race and ethnicity. The course examines racial inequality from a historical perspective and investigates how racial categories evolve and form across contexts. The analysis that develops will ultimately allow us to think rigorously about social inequality, resistance and liberation.

GNDST-204SW Women and Gender in the Study of Culture: 'Sexuality and Women’s Writing'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: An examination of how U.S. women writers in the twentieth and twenty-first century represent sexuality in prose. Topics to include: lesbian, queer, homoerotic, and transgender possibilities; literary strategies for encoding sexuality, including modernist experiment and uses of genre; thematic interdependencies between sexuality and race; historical contexts, including the ‘inversion’ model of homosexuality and the Stonewall rebellion. Authors studied may include Barnes, Bechdel, Cather, Chopin, Feinberg, Highsmith, Jackson, Larsen, McCullers, Moraga, Nestle, Stein, and Truong; supplemental critical readings may include Butler, Lorde, Rich, and Sedgwick.

GNDST-204TJ Women and Gender in the Study of Culture: 'Transforming Justice and Practicing Truth to Power: Critical Methodologies and Methods in Community Participatory Action Research and Accountability'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will offer an overview of select methodologies and methods from Community-based Participatory Action Research (CBPAR), Participatory Action Research (PAR), collaborative ethnography and other social justice research interventions such as radical oral history, grassroots research collectives, experimental digital archives, research and data justice networks and organizations. We will center on questions of "accountability"; that is, to whom, for whom, and to what end do processes of accountability serve those already in power? Moreover, we will investigate the chasms between academia and activism in order to explore the possibility of unlikely collaborative research alliances.

GNDST-204TR Women and Gender in the Study of Culture: 'Trans* Identities and Communities: Genealogy, Theory, Praxis and Community Research'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will investigate knowledge/cultural production produced by trans* communities, particularly those multiply impacted by categories of race, gender, sexuality, class, ability, citizenship and location. To understand the critical feminist genealogy/insurgency in which transgender studies/activism have become a field/site of political discourse, we will explore the overlaps and tensions between women/queer/trans* of color activism and theory. Using experimental and multimedia archives of affect, grief, desire, love, liberation and identitarian contradictions, we will ask how counter genealogies as process can transform how we relate to and inhabit power, futurity and memory.

GNDST-204WH Women and Gender in the Study of Culture: 'Worthy Hearts and Saucy Wits'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Eighteenth-century England witnessed the birth of the novel, a genre that in its formative years was both lauded for its originality and condemned as intellectually and morally dangerous, especially for young women. We will trace the numerous prose genres that influenced early novelists, including conduct manuals, epistolary writing, conversion narratives, travelogues, romance, and the gothic. In doing so, we will concomitantly examine the novel’s immense formal experimentation alongside debates about developing notions of gender and class as well as the feeling, thinking individual. Authors may include Richardson, Fielding, Sterne, Walpole, Burney, and

GNDST-206AW Women and Gender in History: 'African Women's Work'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The power to produce food and reproduce society gave women significant public voice in African societies in the past. But over 200 years they lost that public voice and control over subsistence. Why, when women are still producing food and people, is the social and political voice of women so much less significant than it was before? We explore African women's work of governing, production, and social reproduction across the tumultuous changes of the 20th century. The class seeks to provide an achievable yet challenging set of learning experiences for those who have no prior experience studying Africa, but also for those who have substantial previous engagement with African issues.

GNDST-206CG Women and Gender in History: 'Women and Gender in China'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This 200-level seminar introduces students to gender relations in the history of China. It offers students a broad historical narrative of women's lives from early China through the imperial period, and concludes with the power dynamics of gender relations in modern China in the twentieth century. The course is organized chronologically with thematic focus on the politics of marriage and reproduction; the state's shifting perspectives on women's social roles; and how women interpreted and responded to the changing cultural landscape.

GNDST-206US Women and Gender in the Study of History: 'U.S. Women's History since 1890'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course introduces students to the major themes of U.S. women's history from the 1880s to the present. We will look both at the experiences of a diverse group of women in the U.S. as well as the ideological meaning of gender as it evolved and changed over the twentieth century. We will chart the various meanings of womanhood (for example, motherhood, work, the domestic sphere, and sexuality) along racial, ethnic, and class lines and in different regions, and will trace the impact multiple identities have had on women's social and cultural activism.

GNDST-210PH Women and Gender in Philosophy and Religion: 'Women and Philosophy'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: The goal of this course is to see how careful philosophical thought can help us with pressing issues that women face. We approach this topic through a distinctly feminist lens, as opposed to a traditional philosophical, queer theoretic, or gender studies lens. We will draw on a variety of philosophical resources, ranging from liberal and feminist political theory, to speech act theory.
Possible questions we will consider include: What is objectification? What is consent? Is pornography degrading? How does sexism and bias lead to bad science?

GNDST-212HR Women and Gender in Social Sciences: 'Human Rights Lab: Transnational Perspectives on LGBTQI and Women's Rights'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: The course will study the contemporary state of LGBTQI and Women's Rights worldwide and the strategies available to further them. At once a seminar and a practice-based workshop, students will learn about international human rights law, human rights monitoring and accountability mechanisms, and gender justice policies. Students will simulate writing UN reports, International NGO reports, country-based NGO reports, and undertake research on LGBTQI and women's rights violations. The focus topics will be gender-based violence, humanitarian policy, transitional justice, and economic empowerment. Several practitioners will join the course throughout the semester.

GNDST-221 Feminist and Queer Theory

GNDST-221QF Feminist and Queer Theory: 'Feminist and Queer Theory'
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: We will read a number of key feminist texts that theorize sexual difference, and challenge the oppression of women. We will then address queer theory, an offshoot and expansion of feminist theory, and study how it is both embedded in, and redefines, the feminist paradigms. This redefinition occurs roughly at the same time (1980s/90s) when race emerges as one of feminism’s prominent blind spots. The postcolonial critique of feminism is a fourth vector we will examine, as well as anti-racist and postcolonial intersections with queerness. We will also study trans-theory and its challenge to the queer paradigm.

GNDST-241 Women and Gender in Science

GNDST-241HP Women and Gender in Science: 'Feminist Health Politics'
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Health is about bodies, selves and politics. We will explore a series of health topics from feminist perspectives. How do gender, sexuality, class, disability, and age influence the ways in which one perceives and experiences health and the access one has to health information and health care? Are heteronormativity, cissexism, or one’s place of living related to one’s health status or one’s health risk? By paying close attention to the relationships between community-based narratives, activities of health networks and organizations and theory, we will develop a solid understanding of the historical, political and cultural specificities of health issues, practices, services and movements.

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Dragon ladies, lotus blossoms, geisha girls--the U.S. cultural imaginary is saturated with myths regarding Asian sexuality and gender. This interdisciplinary course intervenes into this dominant imaginary by exploring feminist and queer frameworks derived from Asian-American contexts: immigration, labor, racial stereotyping, militarization, citizenship, and so-called "terrorism." Through a mix of scholarly, creative, activist, and media texts, we will challenge preconceived notions about Asian Americans as regressive, repressed, or hyper-sexual, as well as examine the powerful counter-imaginaries offered within Asian American literature and culture.

GNDST-333BT Advanced Seminar: 'The Body Toxic: Narratives of Race, Disability, and Illness'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the intersections of race, disability, illness, and health using literature and culture as primary sites of engagement. Looking to writers like Audre Lorde, Anna Deavere Smith, Mia Mingus, Harriet Jacobs, and Indra Sinha, it asks how structures of racial, environmental, and economic inequity transform the category of disability, which critics have primarily defined in terms of whiteness. It also considers alternate conceptions of health--models that do not align with mandates of productivity or normative embodiment--offered by the texts under consideration, and asks what political/social liberation might look like when able-bodiness is no longer privileged.

Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course will explore visual and literary images of nineteenth through early 20th-century marriage and motherhood. Discussion of Virginia’s Woolf’s 'A Room of One’s Own' and Barbara Welter’s essay 'The Cult of True Womanhood' will serve as the springboard for our focus on representations of women in the home. We will incorporate a visit to the art museum, and will analyze film adaptations of some of the texts we read. The course will focus primarily on American literature, film, and art, with the exception of Ibsen’s 'A Doll’s House'; selected written texts will include works by writers such as Hawthorne, James, Stowe, Gilman, Freeman, Chopin, Hurston, and Wharton.

GNDST-333EF Advanced Seminar: 'Women Writers: Early Feminisms'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines a variety of "literary" expressions of women in Early Modern Spain and Colonial Latin America (e.g. Teresa de Avila, Catalina de Erauso, María de Zayas and sor Juana Inés de la Cruz). Attention will be paid to the formal means by which women writers emulated, appropriated, or subverted male-authored models, and how with her words and actions, they challenged modes of thinking and threatened patriarchal ideologies. A significant part of the class will deal with the ways in which contemporary feminist theories can be used to complement, interpret, and flesh out ideas expressed by these women in the past.

Description: (Em)bodi/ment: body/mind. How does our culture fantasize about severing them? Where is there ever pure mind, pure body? Who counts as able, as broken, or as food? How does discipline, punishment, and usefulness come into play? What is agency and knowledge in relation to embodiment? We will study different 'problem' cases of embodiment where the fabric of culture begins to unravel: athletics, birthing, breeding and assisted reproduction, chronic illness, dairy, disability, drugs, dying, fatness, pregnancy, queerness, sexuality, speech ('disorder'), and others. GNDST-333FM Advanced Seminar: 'Latina Feminism(s)'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: What is Latina Feminism? How does it differ from and/or intersect with "other" feminisms? In this seminar, we will explore the relationship between Latina feminist theory, knowledge production, and social change in the United States. This interdisciplinary course explores Latina feminism in relation to methodology and epistemology through a historical lens. This will help us to better understand how Latina feminist approaches can inform our research questions, allow us to analyze women's experiences and women's history, and challenge patriarchy and gender inequality. We will explore topics related to knowledge production, philosophies of the "self," positionality, inequality, the body, reproductive justice, representation, and community. Our approach in this class will employ an intersectional approach to feminist theory that understands the interconnectedness between multiple forms of oppression, including race, class, sexuality, and ability. Central to seminar discussions and student learning is a substantial community-based learning requirement that will facilitate a deeper engagement and analysis of the relationship between the concepts we explore in the course. Our goal is to develop a robust understanding of how Latina feminist methodologies and epistemologies can be tools for social change.

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Recent cultural histories of imperialism - European as well as U.S. -- have illuminated the workings of race and gender at the heart of imperial encounters. This course will examine the United States’ relationship to imperialism through the lens of such cultural histories. How has the encounter between Europe and America been remembered in the United States? How has the cultural construction of ‘America’ and its ‘others’ called into play racial and gender identities? How have the legacies of slavery been entwined with U.S. imperial ambitions at different times? And what can we learn from transnational approaches to ‘the intimacies of empire?’

GNDST-333LA Advanced Seminar: ‘Writing as Women: Female Autobiographical Writings in Latin America’
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Who speaks in a text? What relationship exists between literature, images and identity? How can we portray ourselves in specific socio-political contexts? How do women writers build themselves as authors in the context of a patriarchal literary tradition? How do they address problems of subjectivity, self-representation and self-legitimation? What are the challenges that the self-writing poses to women writers like a black Brazilian woman living in favelas who supports her family by digging through the garbage for paper and scraps to sell; a nun and poet during the colonial period in Mexico; a political prisoner and survivor from a Southern Cone concentration camp during the Argentinian dictatorship; K’iche’ political activist and survivor of the Guatemalan Civil War? How do those challenges interact with those of other women writes with more privileged positions in their societies? The course focuses on a heterogeneous corpus of Latin American texts (novels, diaries, letters, poetry and memoirs) that display a literary female personae in a variety of contexts and how they shape the process of construction of woman as author in Latin America from the colonial period until now.

GNDST-333MC Advanced Seminar: 'Latinas/os/x and Housing: Mi Casa Is Not Su Casa'

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

Description: Housing is closely tied to quality of life and the health of neighborhoods and communities. As a main goal of the "American Dream," homeownership has important significance on an individual and societal level. For immigrants, this goal is often out of reach as a result of racism and discriminatory housing policies. This interdisciplinary seminar explores Latinas/os/x relationship to housing and homeownership by examining: 1. the history of housing policy in the United States; 2. national identity, assimilation, and housing; and 3. discriminatory housing policies/programs and housing inequality. We explore topics including immigration, housing policy, public housing, segregation, gentrification, the suburbs, homelessness, eviction, affordability, and community building. Exploring this range of topics will help us develop a clearer understanding of why housing is one of the most pressing issues for Latinas/os/x today.

GNDST-333SA Advanced Seminar: 'Women and Gender in Modern South Asia'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This colloquium will explore the history of South Asia as seen from women's perspectives. We will read writings by women from the ancient period to the present. We will focus on the diversity of women's experiences in a range of social, cultural, and religious contexts. Themes include sexuality, religiosity, rights to education and employment, violence against women, modernity and citizenship—in short, those issues central to women's movements in modern South Asia. In addition to the textual sources, the course will analyze Indian popular film and the representation of women in this modern visual genre.

GNDST-333SS Advanced Seminar: 'Gender and Class in the Victorian Novel'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course will investigate how representations of gender and class serve as a structuring principle in the development of the genre of the Victorian novel in Britain. We will devote significant attention to the construction of Victorian femininity and masculinity in relation to class identity, marriage as a sexual contract, and the gendering of labor. The texts chosen for this course also reveal how gender and class are constructed in relation to other axes of identity in the period, such as race, sexuality, and national character. Novelists will include Dickens, Eliot, Gaskell, C. Bronte, and Hardy. Supplementary readings in literary criticism and theory.

GNDST-333ST Advanced Seminar: 'Sissies, Studs and Butches: Racialized Masculinities, Effeminacy and Embodiments of Noncompliance'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will investigate the racialization of masculinity (and the masculinization of race) as undergirded by heteropatriarchy, settler colonialism, militarized borders and imperialism. This course will center perspectives from various "Third World Solidarity" diasporas in order to challenge Western, hegemonic and inherent legacies of masculinity as modernity's (hu)man. Using critical race theory, feminist, queer/trans* of color critique (e.g., Wynter, Fanon, David Eng, José Muñoz), we will ask how whiteness (white supremacist masculinity) shapes and colors masculinity -- whether as exemplar, visible, illegible, failed, deviant and even toxic -- and what then falls outside of such a frame?

GNDST-333TT Advanced Seminar: 'Sex and the Early Church'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the various ways first- through fifth-century Christians addressed questions regarding human sexuality. We will concentrate on the rise of sexual asceticism and pay particular attention to the relationship between sexuality and issues of gender, culture, power, and resistance. Primary readings will include letters, narrative accounts of female and male ascetics, monastic rules, and 'heretical' scriptures. These will be supplemented by modern scholarship in early Christian studies and the history of sexuality.

GNDST-333UU Advanced Seminar: 'Latina/o Immigration'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The course provides an historical and topical overview of Latina/o migration to the United States. We will examine the economic, political, and social antecedents to Latin American migration, and the historical impact of the migration process in the U.S. Considering migration from Mexico, Central America, and the Caribbean, we will discuss the social construction of race, the gendered nature of migration, migrant labor struggles, Latin American-U.S. Latino relations, immigration policy, and border life and enforcement. Notions of citizenship, race, class, gender, and sexuality will be central to our understanding of the complexity at work in the migration process.

GNDST-333VR Advanced Seminar: 'Viragos, Virgins, and Visionaries'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course, we will study the three most celebrated French female saints: Jeanne d'Arc, Thérèse de Lisieux and Bernadette de Lourdes. Their stories are similar: ordinary young women to whom extraordinary things happened, who became symbols of France and inspired a rich verbal and visual iconography. Yet they are profoundly different: Joan was a warrior, Thérèse a memoirist, Bernadette a visionary. We will study the facts of their lives, in their own words and those of others, but also the many fictions, semi-fictions, myths and legends based on those lives. We will analyze a number of films and visual images as well as literary and non-literary texts in our attempt to understand these cases of specifically female, specifically French sainthood.

GNDST-333WF Advanced Seminar: 'Women and the Family in Imperial China'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the lives of women in imperial China (221 BCE-1911). How did Confucian didactic texts define women and their place in the family? Seen as the core of the family in a patrilineal, patrilocal, and patriarchal society, men prescribed women's roles in family life. How did women understand and respond to the social expectations imposed on them? What changed over the long history of imperial China? Students consider writings by and about women alongside the evidence of material culture.

GNDST-333WH Advanced Seminar: 'What is a Woman?'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: What is a woman? French philosopher Simone de Beauvoir opened The Second Sex with this deceptively simple but, in effect, radical question. Beauvoir refuted essentialist substantiations of identity and interrogated -- through the categories of situation, ambiguity, and lived experience -- the politics of embodiment, freedom, and oppression. In this course, we bring her into conversation with feminist and trans* philosophers who have reflected on the political significance of sexual difference: Wittig, Irigaray, Lorde, Lugones, Butler, Bettcher, and Salamon. At the end of the course, we will re-assess our initial question and think about its resonance in feminist, trans* and intersex issues today.

GNDST-333WT Advanced Seminar: 'Witches in the Modern Imagination'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: From the middle ages to the present day, witches have evoked both fear and fascination. Their fellowships (real or fantastic) challenged the prevailing power structures of church and state patriarchies and upset the ordered precepts of the modern world. This seminar offers an overview of the history of witchcraft in Atlantic cultures, with special attention to the early modern British and American colonial eras. We will examine figures of the witch in European art; religious and legal texts that document the persecution of sorcerers; and dramatic, literary, and cinematic representations of witches that have helped to shape our understanding of gender, nature, theatricality, and power.

GRMST-205 Europe on the Edge: Introduction to European Studies
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Europe embodies crossroads of multiple cultures, memories, migrations, and political demarcations. Taking a critical view of conventional paradigms of European nation states and "master" narratives, we study shifting European cultures and identities through multiple perspectives across time and space. What remains of the ancient and modern regimes? How have global movements, historical upheavals, and shifting boundaries within and adjacent to European borders from early empires to contemporary global networks affected the transformation of lives? Where is Europe heading today? Faculty from across the disciplines will join us to discuss Europe as a subject of global imagination and networks.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

GRMST-223BR Topics in German Studies: 'Berlin: Cultural Memories, Identities, Spaces'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Berlin provides a testing ground for understanding how space shapes memory and identity. Historic sites within the built environment of Berlin mark historical upheaval and reconciliation and the transformation of the periphery into productive sites of commerce and cultural exchange. Multiple historic and contemporary sites will serve as a point of departure to explore the emergence of multidimensional identities in today’s Europe. We explore the history, design, function, construction, and, in some cases, destruction, of major historical sites in Berlin, such as the Berlin Wall, the Reichstag, the Museum Island, the Holocaust Memorial, and others through case studies, archival research, and visual media. Students have the option of creating media projects and of drawing from other academic and professional interests.

GRMST-231 Topics in German and European Studies in a Global Context
Description: An introduction to critical reading, writing, and arguing skills, emphasizing the practice of oral and written strategies for discussing and analyzing printed and film texts and the reader’s responses to them. Courses are taught in English.

GRMST-231EM Topics in German and European Studies in a Global Context: ‘Embodiment in Theory: Precarious Lives from Marx to Butler’
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: We examine the writing of major nineteenth, twentieth, and twenty-first century theorists, such as Marx, Nietzsche, Freud, Dubois, Arendt, Fanon, Foucault, Butler, and others through the lens of embodiment. Rather than read theory as an abstract entity, we explore how theory itself is an embodiment of actual lives in which human beings experience life as precarious. What are the social conditions that create vulnerable bodies? How do thinkers who lived or are living precarious lives represent these bodies? Through a series of case studies based on contemporary examples of precarity, we examine the legacy and materiality of critical social thought.

GRMST-231GB Topics in German and European Studies in a Global Context: ‘A Global Enterprise: Germany Works’
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Students will explore how the humanities and social sciences contribute to our understanding of the changing role of work from a historical perspective. We will investigate how the concept of ‘work’ effects social organization and individual identity formation. By concentrating on the nineteenth and twenty-first centuries within the German speaking countries and beyond, the seminar will shed light on the two eras when technological changes and their concomitant transformations in social and individual organization brought disruptive change to our notions of ‘work.’ We will focus our attention on ‘work’ by literary scholars, artists, and philosophers who often work in cross-disciplinary research networks.

GRMST-231NT Topics in German and European Studies in a Global Context: ‘Black, Jewish, and Muslim Cultures in Germany: Intersectionalities of Othering’
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: As much as German culture is riddled with extreme examples of persecution and nationalism, the presence of those deemed non-German, such as Black Africans, African Americans, Jews, and Muslims, shaped cultural expression and cultural exchange. In this seminar we explore the expression of otherness as portrayed in literature, film, and art from the eighteenth through twenty-first Centuries. Drawing from critical race theory, critical ethnic studies, and gender studies, we consider work by non-Germans as well as the representation of others in German canonical and popular cultural production.

Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This capstone seminar explores the trans-disciplinary practice of German studies and its evolution from a study of literature and language to a field that draws from multiple disciplines, visualities, and approaches across the liberal arts curriculum. We explore such questions as: What does German studies mean? What are the intersecting fields of inquiry ranging from German Jewish studies to environmental studies that form the way we address cultural, social, and political issues throughout German cultural history up to the present day? Within this context each student will draw from their academic and professional interests to present work in progress towards a major research project that may culminate in a media project, honors thesis, or standard research paper.

HIST-124 History of Modern South Asia, 1700 to the Present
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will explore the history of South Asia between the eighteenth century and the present. Using a combined chronological and thematic approach and against a historical canvas that engages such diverse issues as gender, political economy, conquest, resistance, state formation, economic exploitation, national liberation, and identity politics, the aim of this course is to interrogate the impact of British colonialism and South Asian nationalisms on the state, society, and people of the subcontinent. Using primary and secondary sources, we will address both the most significant historical moments of modern South Asian history and the historiographical debates that surround them.

HIST-137 Modern East Asia, 1600-2000
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: A comparative history of China, Japan, and Korea from the early seventeenth century to the present, with strong focus on regional interaction. After an introduction to early modern histories and cultures, we will examine the struggles of these countries to preserve or regain their independence and establish their national identities in a rapidly changing, often violent modern world order. While each of these countries has its own distinctive identity, their overlapping histories (and dilemmas) give the region a coherent shape. We will also look at how individuals respond to and are shaped by larger historical movements.

HIST-206 African Cities: Development Dreams and Nightmares in the Twentieth Century
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: African cities demonstrate the failure of models of development with the aim and ideal of industrialization. This course examines the empty promises of modernity through the lens of African urban history using fiction, film, and city archives. Beginning with Timbuctu and Cairo, the course explores the emergence and decline of trade entrepot, the rise of colonial cities, and the dilemmas of postcolonial economies and polities. Dar es Salaam, Nairobi, Kampala, Kinshasa, Harare, Johannesburg, Lagos, Accra, and Dakar are among the cities studied. Designed for those seeking only an introduction to development as well as those with further ambitions, it assumes no previous knowledge of Africa.

HIST-214 History of Global Inequality
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Why are some nations so much richer and more powerful than others? This course demonstrates that global inequality is not natural; it has a history. Exploring patterns of exchange that developed among regions of the world over the past 600 years, we will ask about the role of power in the establishment of practices of production and exchange. We will explore how cross-regional productive systems benefited some participants at the expense of others. Having traced the consequences of unequal exchange over several centuries, we will ask how global trade and production would have to change for all participants to benefit equally. The course includes a community-based learning component.

HIST-216 War and Imperialism in the Ancient World
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Ancient Greeks and Romans viewed warfare as an abiding part of the human condition. The literature and artwork of the ancient world are filled with images of the two faces of war: it conferred great glory on the combatants but at the cost of tremendous horror and suffering. In this course we will examine warfare from archaic Greece and the rise of the city-state (ca. 800 B.C.E.) to the fall of the Roman Empire in the west (ca. 476 C.E.). We will consider such topics as the culture and ethics of war and imperialism, logistics and strategies of warfare, as well as armor, weaponry and battlefield tactics.

HIST-222 Muslim Politics in Modern South Asia
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Taken together, Muslims in South Asia constitute the largest population of Muslims worldwide. This course will serve as an introduction to the political history of this diverse group of people. We will begin by considering religious conversion and the rule of Muslim kings in the premodern period. The bulk of the course will, however, concentrate on the modern history of the subcontinent, and especially on events and themes that continue to influence the countries and peoples of South Asia in the present, such as Muslim social reform, the rise of communalism, the partition of the subcontinent, and the influence of religion on contemporary politics.

HIST-223 Religion and Politics in Modern India
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The history of India has been singled out for its complex intermingling of religion and politics. This course will explore the constitution of religious identities in two of India's largest religious communities: Hindu and Muslim. Focusing primarily on the colonial period, we will discuss religious reform movements, communal violence, mass politics, and the partition of the subcontinent into the independent states of India and Pakistan. Throughout we will be interested in the ways that the colonial experience affected the religious thought and practice of Indians. Finally, we will explore the meanings of this history for the postcolonial workings of democracy and secularism in modern India.

HIST-224 The Busy Silk Roads: Cultural Exchange in Pre-modern Eurasia
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Centered on great powers in the web of the Silk Roads prior to the nineteenth century, this course seeks to present a history of incessant communication at a trans-regional level. Three vast empires dominated the heart of the Eurasian continent: the Tibetan empire (7th-9th centuries), the Mongol empire (1206-1370), and the Manchu Qing (1644-1911). Each of them cultivated and encouraged cultural exchanges in the landlocked regions that are now divided into many modern nation-states. Important questions include: is seaborne trade the only form of global circulation of knowledge? What roles did the great powers play in facilitating exchange and communication?

HIST-226 Bread and Circuses: The Politics of Public Entertainment in Ancient Rome
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Bread and circuses (panem et circenses) was a catchphrase in the Roman empire that described the political strategy of controlling an unruly populace through free bread and public entertainment. Against a backdrop of Roman social and political institutions, this course focuses on the imperial ideology, aristocratic ethos, and cultural practices that underpinned this catchphrase, as well as questions concerning the careers of entertainers—gladiators, charioteers, and actors—who were at once celebrities and social outcasts; the rules of spectatorship at the games; the use of these games as a form of social control; and the logistics of feeding the city population.

HIST-227 Ancient Greece
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will trace the emergence and expansion of Greek civilization in the Mediterranean between the Bronze Age and Alexander the Great. Among themes to be explored are political structures, trade, slavery, gender relations, and religion, as well as the contributions of ancient Greeks to literary genres (drama, rhetoric, historiography, philosophy) and to the visual arts. Throughout we will consider how the history of the ancient Greeks can speak to modern concerns. Sources will include works of ancient Greek literature and history (e.g., Homer, Herodotus, Thucydides, Aristophanes, Plutarch) as well as archaeological and epigraphic evidence.

HIST-228 Ancient Rome
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Ancient Rome and its empire can be viewed both as a measure of human achievement and a cautionary tale of the corrupting effects of unbridled power. This course covers the history of Ancient Rome from its mythologized beginnings (753 BCE) to the rise and spread of Christianity under the Emperor Constantine (312 CE). Topics include the creation and development of Rome’s republican form of government as well as its eventual transition to monarchy, the causes and consequences of the acquisition of empire, the role of the army in administering the provinces and defending the frontiers, the image of emperor, the economy, and religion.

HIST-229 The Tyrant and the Gladiator: Bad Roman Emperors from Caligula to Commodus
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Caligula was a god (or so he thought); Nero fiddled while Rome burned; Commodus dressed as a gladiator and fought man and beast in the arena. The history of the Roman empire is replete with scandalous stories about eccentric and even insane emperors whose reigns raise questions about the nature of the emperor’s power and his role in administering the empire. In this course a close study of Roman imperial biography and historiography—the source of so many of these stories of bad emperors—will be weighed against documentary and archaeological evidence in order to reveal the dynamic between the emperor, his court, and his subjects that was fundamental to the political culture of imperial Rome.

HIST-234 The Atlantic World
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Early Americans inhabited an interconnected world through which people, beliefs, and objects circulated. This course explores the ‘Atlantic World’ as both a place and a concept: an ocean surrounded by diverse communities and empires, and an imagined space of shared or competing affiliations. Moving from the fifteenth to the nineteenth century, it examines ecological, cultural, political, economic, intellectual, and religious exchanges among Native Americans, Europeans, and Africans. It will introduce both conceptual dimensions of this Atlantic paradigm and case studies that investigate its human subtleties, with the goal of examining early American history through a transnational lens.

HIST-235 Native American History through 1865
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course surveys Native American history from ancient times through the U.S. Civil War, tracing the ways that tribal communities have shaped North America. Beginning with the diverse indigenous societies that inhabited the Americas millennia before Columbus's arrival, it discusses the cultural complexity of Native peoples, nations, and worldviews rooted in particular ecosystems and homelands. It moves through the early modern era of European scientific exploration and 'discovery' of a New World, and the pivotal violences of the 'Indian Wars' of the seventeenth, eighteenth, and early nineteenth centuries.

HIST-239MC Topics in Asian History: 'Borderlands and Ethnicity in Modern China'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This seminar investigates the processes through which borderlands were imagined and ethnicities were made in twentieth-century China. Drawing from texts and films about and by the people living on the borderlands, students in the seminar are to explore the intersecting relation between the two pressing issues and how Chinese states dealt with them. Furthermore, how did all these concerns originate? To that end, the seminar begins by examining how the central state in early modern China formed a multicultural empire in the seventeenth to nineteenth centuries.

HIST-239ME Topics in Asian History: 'Cities in Modern East Asia'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course asks: what are cities in the history of modern East Asia? Cities were cosmopolitan, centers of commerce, and sites of social movements in late imperial China, Tokugawa Japan, and late Chosun Korea. How did the roles of cities change in the nineteenth century when East Asia became more integrated into the global system? How was urban life affected in the first half of the twentieth century when the central states dealt with domestic turmoil and external pressures? How did the state work to redefine cities and urban culture in the postwar era? To answer these questions, this seminar encourages students to position cities historically and comparatively.

HIST-243 Rural Prosperity in the African Past
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course seeks to understand what relationships engendered rural prosperity in African communities in the past, and what processes of change have led millions of rural people to abandon their homes and livelihoods to join flows of migrants to cities and other nations. We examine African patterns of production over the long term and the transformation of African agriculture in the last two centuries, considering famine, the social and political organization of access to productive resources, and the relationship of rural and urban communities. We ask how rural prosperity might be recreated in the 21st century.

HIST-244 European Public Policy, West and East
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: In 1968, the USSR commenced a strategy of consumerist depoliticization in its European satellites. Around the same time, states on the other side of the Iron Curtain saw the postwar era of rapid economic growth and social consensus close. This course, reaching across the revolutionary break of 1989 up to the present, raises questions of convergence and continuity in European public policy, West and East. Paired case studies from a variety of countries in fields such as energy, the environment, minority rights, and housing serve to clarify rules and patterns to the politics of policy, from Cold War to European Union and beyond.

HIST-248 Science, Revolution, and Modernity
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Introduces critical analysis of science and technology by tracing the historiography of the Scientific Revolution. The significance of this extended intellectual episode has been assessed in radically different ways throughout the intervening centuries. As such, it provides a fertile ground on which to pose and answer important questions about science and its role in society. What does it mean to regard science as 'revolutionary'? How are scientific developments shaped by, and how do they shape, the social, economic, and political worlds in which they are embedded? How is our contemporary understanding of science and technology influenced by the stories we tell about the past?

HIST-252 History of Money and Finance
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: What is money? Is it the same in all times and places? If money could speak, what stories would it tell of the past? This course is about the history of money and money as an object of history. Using primary and secondary sources, students will learn about the social, political and cultural meaning of money at different times in the history of the western world. In addition, students will interpret the history of money using a variety of coins and money-related objects held in the MHC Art Museum. This is a course on the history of money, not the economics of money, but it will be of interest to anyone curious to learn more about the meaning of money in the past and today.

HIST-260 Topics in the Recent History of Europe
HIST-260HH Topics in the Recent History of Europe: 'The Habsburgs, Hitler, and the Law'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course explores the complex, often comic, and ultimately tragic history of Bohemia, a territory located today in the Czech Republic, but previously a part of the Habsburg Monarchy, then of Czechoslovakia, and then of Hitler's Third Reich. Students will complement historical studies with autobiographical material and contemporary fiction, beginning with the Revolution of 1848, progressing through the achievements and worrisome trends of Emperor Francis Joseph's 68-year reign, and concluding with the world wars. Emphasis on the interplay among Czechs, Germans, Jews, and other pivotal players: the House of Habsburg and its supporters, and the political elites of neighboring countries.

HIST-262 Stalinism in Central Europe
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course explores the use of revolutionary terror by the state. More specifically, it examines policies of terror pursued by Communist dictatorships in Hungary and Czechoslovakia during the early years of the Cold War. Who did what to whom, and why? What insights do secret police work and public propaganda, knitted together in macabre show trials, allow us into Stalinist rule, European politics, and maybe ourselves? How did memories of terror shape politics after Stalin's death? Students should deepen their understanding for the discipline of History, improve their reading and writing, and develop a working knowledge of Central European politics at the middle of the twentieth century.

HIST-296AW Women in History: 'African Women's Work'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The power to produce food and reproduce society gave women significant public voice in African societies in the past. But over 200 years they lost that public voice and control over subsistence. Why, when women are still producing food and people, is the social and political voice of women so much less significant than it was before? We explore African womens' work of governing, production, and social reproduction across the tumultuous changes of the 20th century. HIST-301FH Colloquium: 'Food and Hunger in the Modern World'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: At a time when rapidly rising food prices are causing distress, starvation and food riots around the world, we will focus our enquiry on the creation of markets for food and the industrialization of agriculture. What changed when food became a commodity traded over long distances? What changed when food began to be produced using industrialized methods? What are the social consequences of these transformations? What was the role of colonial rule in the loss of food security in Africa? What factors explain famine, and people's responses to it? Prereq: 8 credits in History.

HIST-301NY Colloquium: 'Reading the New York Times: Journalism, Power, History'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the political and cultural power of the New York Times in the American past and present. Students will analyze the NYT today through daily reading, study its evolution as an institution, and research its coverage of critical historical events over the past century. We will also explore several larger issues: the history of news and newspapers; the relationship between journalistic practice and writing history; tensions between news organizations and government; the blurred boundaries between news and entertainment; the emergence of various ideological critiques of 'the media.'

Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
D. Czitrom
Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors
Prereq: 4 credits of US history.

HIST-301RG Colloquium: 'Race, Gender, and Empire: Cultural Histories of the United States and the World'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Recent cultural histories of imperialism-European as well as U.S.-have illuminated the workings of race and gender at the heart of imperial encounters. This course will examine the United States’ relationship to imperialism through the lens of such cultural histories. How has the encounter between Europe and America been remembered in the United States? How has the cultural construction of ‘America’ and its ‘others’ called into play racial and gender identities? How have the legacies of slavery been entwined with U.S. imperial ambitions at different times? And what can we learn from transnational approaches to ‘the intimacies of empire?’

Prereq: 8 credits in History, or 4 credits in History and 8 credits in Gender Studies, or permission of the instructor by application to the History department.

HIST-301SA Colloquium: 'Women and Gender in Modern South Asia'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This colloquium will explore the history of South Asia as seen from women’s perspectives. We will read writings by women from the ancient period to the present. We will focus on the diversity of women’s experiences in a range of social, cultural, and religious contexts. Themes include sexuality, religiosity, rights to education and employment, violence against women, modernity and citizenship—in short, those issues central to women’s movements in modern South Asia. In addition to the textual sources, the course will analyze Indian popular film and the representation of women in this modern visual genre.

HIST-301WF Colloquium: ‘Women and the Family in Imperial China’
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the lives of women in imperial China (221 BCE-1911). How did Confucian didactic texts define women and their place in the family? Seen as the core of the family in a patrilineal, patrilocal, and patriarchal society, men prescribed women’s roles in family life. How did women understand and respond to the social expectations imposed on them? What changed over the long history of imperial China? Students consider writings by and about women alongside the evidence of material culture.

HIST-317 Perspectives on American Environmental History
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: We explore the history of human-environment interactions in North America from precolonial times to the present from different cultural perspectives. How have such human activities as migration, colonization, and resource use depended on or modified the natural world? How have different cultural perceptions of and attitudes toward environment shifted through time and helped to reshape American landscapes? Case studies include ecological histories of Native America and Euro-America, slavery and land use, wilderness and conservation, and environmental racism and social justice. Our approach entails historical review of scientific studies, literature, visual records, and oral tradition.

HIST-326 Comparative History of Early Modern Empires
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This research seminar examines the history of Qing China (1644-1911), the Ottoman Empire (1299-1922), and the Russian Empire (1721-1917) in the early modern era. The course is organized thematically and introduces important conceptual frameworks in historical inquiries. Students are to explore emergent research in state formation, economic development, social changes, and cultural dynamics. The central questions to be considered include the role of the state as well as its negotiation with varied ruling mechanisms within each of the three expansive landmass empires. Comparisons are to be drawn with maritime empires when needed to address the issue: what we talk about when we talk about empire.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives

HIST-333 Research Seminar in American Women's History

HIST-333ML Research Seminar in American Women's History: 'Mary Lyon's World and the History of Mount Holyoke'

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4

Description: What world gave rise to Mary Lyon's vision for Mount Holyoke and enabled her to carry her plans to success? What local and global circumstances subsequently shaped the institution and the women who passed through it? How did Mount Holyoke women attempt to fashion the worlds they encountered in and beyond South Hadley and what came of their efforts? We will inquire into the historical arrangements of power--involving race, class, gender, religion, culture, body politics, and colonialism—that formed Mount Holyoke and the world in which it has operated.

Students write a substantial research paper based on primary and secondary sources.

HIST-338 History, Race, and the American Land

Offered: Spring | Credits: 4

Description: Environmental justice is a key concern today. Yet ties between "race" and environment in what is now the U.S. have existed for centuries. In this research seminar we will explore how this country's still-unfolding history, and ideas of race and nature, have marked the land, this society, and each of us as individuals. We will consider Indigenous, colonial European, and African senses of Earth; origins of placenames; contested terrains; migration and displacement; and other topics revealing the place of race. We'll examine often-unrecognized connections, such as the siting of the nation's capital and the economic motives of slavery. None of these links is coincidental and all touch us today.

HIST-341 Topics in African History

HIST-341PW Topics in African History: 'Power and Exchange in the African Past'

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4

Description: Did African nations become poorer in the 20th century because development initiatives were badly executed? inherently exploitative? ill-timed? Looking beyond the caricatures of evil colonial officers, lazy peasants, or greedy elites, who do we see engaged in productive activity and what are they doing? What concepts and categories illumine our understanding of their actions? How does a careful exploration of the nature of exchange and production in Africa revise our perception of the global economy in the present? We will explore three centuries of exchange in Africa and elsewhere: students may focus their research on the history of a market in any part of the world.

HIST-357 History of British Capitalism
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Drawing on insights from recent scholarship on the "histories of capitalism," this course explores the history of economic life in modern Britain, from the late seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries. Rather than take British economic development as exemplary of modernization we will situate that which was particular about the British case against the pluralities of capitalism that have evolved over the past three centuries. Topics include revolutions in agriculture, finance, commerce and manufacturing; the political economy of empire; the relationship between economic ideas, institutions and practice; and, the shaping of everyday economic life by gender, class and race.

HIST-373 Cartography and Exploration in Early North America
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the history of mapping: what maps show, and what places the practice of cartography tends to erase, distort, or conceal. It focuses on the landscapes of early North America, where the representation and use of space was hotly contested by Natives, European settlers, and Africans. The course's topics include indigenous mapping traditions and concepts of sacred space, European navigational strategies during the 'Age of Discovery,' early urban planning, and scientific/military depictions. The course will teach strategies for employing maps as primary sources, and ways of understanding the historical and ideological circumstances of their production and circulation.

HIST-374 The Afterlives of Objects: Revisiting Early American and Indigenous Histories through Material Culture
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Material culture studies examine relationships between people and objects. Tangible artifacts like furniture, clothing, ceramics, tools, and buildings give insight into communities' identities, aspirations, and struggles. This course approaches early American and indigenous histories through objects, and considers how interdisciplinary methodologies can reveal alternative understandings of the past. The course traces changing theories and practices of preservation, curation, and display; shifting conceptions of 'heritage' among diverse peoples; and ethical challenges posed by Native American items held in HIST-381 Topics in Recent American History

HIST-381HM Recent American History: 'The 1960s As History and Myth'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This research seminar offers an in-depth opportunity to explore the 1960s. To what extent was it a unique historical era? Does it make sense to think of a "long 1960s," beyond that decade? We will focus on several political and cultural movements, including civil rights, the anti-Vietnam war struggle, the counter culture, the emergence of feminism and gay rights, and the conservative backlash. How do the political, cultural, and intellectual conflicts of that day continue to shape American life today? Each student will write a seminar research paper based on intensive engagement with primary and secondary sources from the era.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

HIST-389 Agrarian America: Sugar, Cotton, Coffee, Bananas, and Wheat
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Explores societies generated in the Americas by several widely distributed export crops. Multinational and cross-cultural comparisons holding constant the crop itself allows a focus on the possible variations by time and place in each commodity's technologies, labor systems, farm sizes, and social structure; their political and social dynamics; the problematic features of capitalism in agriculture, or if, how, and when do peasants become farmers and farming agribusinesses? Particular focus on family and household relations under so-called "peasant to farmer" agricultural transitions and environmental implications of single-crop and export agriculture.

IR-348 The Art of Seeing Things
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Photography is the critical instrument of the curious, writes legendary Magnum photographer Larry Fink. When thoughtfully and responsibly employed, the photographic craft affords practitioners a passport to the world; an excuse to closely explore issues and spaces of interest. Photographer Pete Muller, who is based in Nairobi, Kenya and is a National Geographic Fellow, uses photography to examine relationships between conflict, masculine gender and broader social order. In this course, Muller will draw upon his extensive body of work, in conjunction with both fiction and non-fiction readings, to illustrate the connection between academic concepts and modern storytelling. Class discussions will focus largely on issues of masculinity, violence and contemporary armed conflict.

JWST-225NT Topics in Judaism: 'Black, Jewish, and Muslim Cultures in Germany: Intersectionalities of Othering'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: As much as German culture is riddled with extreme examples of persecution and nationalism, the presence of those deemed non-German, such as Black Africans, African Americans, Jews, and Muslims, shaped cultural expression and cultural exchange. In this seminar we explore the expression of otherness as portrayed in literature, film, and art from the eighteenth through twenty-first Centuries. Drawing from critical race theory, critical ethnic studies, and gender studies, we consider work by non-Germans as well as the representation of others in German canonical and popular cultural production.

JWST-225TR Topics in Judaism: 'Trauma, Transition, and Memory: The Jewish Literary Imagination in the Twentieth Century'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course maps the range of Jewish literary expression in the Twentieth Century, Beginning with the folktales of Sholem Aleichem and parables and stories by Franz Kafka, we will move on to novels and films that explore Jewish family life across nations and historical eras (Eastern Europe, America, Israel). Among the core themes will be the literary response to the Shoah in works by Primo Levi, Aharon Appelfeld, and Anne Michaels. The course concludes with more recent works that continue to explore the relation among history, memory, and trauma -- core themes of Jewish experience in modern times.

JWST-256 What Didn’t Make It in the Bible
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Hundreds of ancient religious texts did not make it into the Hebrew Scripture (aka the Old Testament). This course examines some of these excluded writings. In particular, we will focus on works found among the Apocrypha, the Pseudepigrapha, and the Dead Sea Scrolls. We will read an ancient Harlequin romance, tour heaven and hell, hear of the adventures of fallen angels who sired giants (and taught humans about cosmetics), and learn how the world will end. In critically examining such texts, we will better appreciate the diversity of Judaism, better understand the historical context of early Christianity, and explore the politics behind what did and did not make it into the bible.

JWST-276 Mapping Jewish American Generations
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course sets canonical Jewish American literature in creative dialogue with contemporary Jewish American writers, filmmakers, and performance artists to explore how early twentieth-century figures (Abraham Cahan, Anzia Yezierska, and Henry Roth) continue to influence -- inspire -- a rising generation of authors. The key mediating figure in this generational dialogue is Philip Roth, whose work we will examine as well. Topics to be explored include "immigrant" writing then and now; the uses of nostalgia; genealogies of standup comedy and popular culture in general; the emergence of "hipster" Judaism and its various modes of expression (above all via social media).

LATAM-243 Introduction to Latin American Politics
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Why has Latin America struggled to achieve democratic stability? Why is it the region of the world with the highest economic inequality? How have the periodic political and economic crises allowed for creative experimentation with policy alternatives to create a more equal and sustainable social order? This course examines the political and economic evolution and transformation of Latin America from the time of the European conquest until these very days, with a particular focus on the 20th century. It will also analyze how these general trends took specific shapes in each of the 7 countries studied: Mexico, Argentina, Brazil, Cuba, Chile, Venezuela and Bolivia.

LATAM-260 Afro-Latin America: From Slavery to Invisibility
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Exploration of the history of Afro-Latin American populations since Independence within and outside the nation-state. We will question why and how to study those whose governments define them not as peoples of African descent but as part of a mixed-race majority of Hispanic cultural heritage, who themselves may often have supported this policy, and who may have had compelling reasons to avoid official scrutiny. Readings include early twentieth-century Latin American racialist theorizing; research using census, economic, criminal, and marriage records; autobiographical works, and analysis of race in textual and musical representations of peoples, regions, and nations.

LATAM-287DE Topics in Latin American Studies: 'Rethinking (Under)Development in Latin America'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: When and how did the notion of "development" emerge and spread? Why does nearly every country now aspire to it? What stigmas and hierarchies does the term "under-development" imply? Throughout Latin America, such terms prove highly problematic not only with respect to the material reality they purport to describe but also as a framework for understanding place, time, and selfhood. In this course, students rethink conventional wisdom about "underdevelopment" through the study of writers, filmmakers, and painters from Latin America working at different historical junctures of the twentieth century.

LATAM-287FM Topics in Latin American Studies: 'Frames of Mind: Tracking Power/Knowledge'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: A frame of mind typically refers to a mood or perspective. However, such dispositions also reflect a certain regulation of thought and thus behavior. In other words, something "frames" our minds in the first place. This course explores these ideas by interrogating the history of commonplace assumptions regarding issues such as freedom, race, prison, sexuality, government, and insanity. Authors include Giorgio Agamben, Wendy Brown, Michel Foucault, Friedrich Nietzsche, Edward Said, Ann Laura Stoler, and others.

LATAM-287RP Topics in Latin American Studies: 'Sexual and Reproductive Rights in Latin America'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Since the 1990s Latin America has witnessed increasing societal and political debates over sexual and reproductive rights. Issues such as abortion, gay marriage, transgender rights, sexual education and assisted reproductive technology have risen to the top of some countries' agendas after decades of silence, taboos, and restrictive or non-existent legislation. The course aims to provide a survey of sexual and reproductive rights in the region as a whole while at the same time highlighting the disparities that exist within it. The course analyzes the multiple factors behind the current policies focusing particularly on the role of women and LGBT movements advancing more liberal legislation.

LATAM-288 Modern Mexico
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: An analysis of the modern Mexican nation-state organized around three major themes: the conflictive yet symbiotic relationship with the United States, from the war of the 1840s through NAFTA most recently; the succession of reformist and revolutionary upheavals in 1810-1821, 1856-1867, 1910-1917, the 1930s, and again today, seeking to resolve both problems of the colonial past and new conflicts traceable to the very reforms generated by earlier political and social struggles; and the meaning of Mexican nationality from different ethnic, gender, and class perspectives. Readings include autobiographical and literary works, historical studies, and films.

LATAM-374 Latin American Cinema: Beyond the Farm and The Factory
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: How do labor relationships and the social construction of what work means affect our lives as well as our communities? How do they contribute to shape our identities? In which ways can our gender, sexual orientation, race, social class or migratory status define our working possibilities? How do the concepts of marginality and informality emerge to identify the precarious Latin American labor conditions? Through Latin American films, students will problematize the idea of service, worker, industry, classic and non-classic work, sexual and affective work, and child labor, among others.

LATAM-386 Central America: Reform, Reaction, Revolution
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This seminar explores the diverse experiences of Central American nations in the twentieth century. From a common basis in an export-oriented agriculture, social and political alternatives ranging from social democracy to recurrent military rule, neofascist regimes, and revolutionary socialism have emerged in the isthmus. The course uses materials ranging from autobiography and literature to historical and anthropological studies to understand how this came to be. In addition to national cases, we consider the unique experiences of the area’s indigenous and Atlantic-coast peoples within and outside the nation-state framework.

LATAM-387HR Special Topics in Latin American Studies: 'Human Rights Abuses and Accountability Mechanisms in the Southern Cone of Latin America'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: During the 1960s and 1970s military coups brought authoritarian regimes to power in the Southern Cone (Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Uruguay). Human rights movements emerged demanding information about victims of torture, executions and disappearances which became the way military regimes attempted to eliminate dissent. What accounts for the different role these movements in the transition and consolidation of democracy and the rule of law? Did they take part to the same extent in the design and implementation of accountability mechanisms to prosecute those responsible for the abuses? We will answer these questions through the analysis of academic readings, movies, and primary sources.

Notes: Meets with Latin 310. Three meetings per week; timing of third to be arranged with students after registration.

LATIN-212 Roma Ludens: Comedy and Satire in Ancient Rome
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Could Romans be funny? Perhaps surprisingly, in a culture where seriousness (gravitas) and sternness (severitas) were praiseworthy attributes, Romans enjoyed theatrical productions adapted from Greek comedies - from raucous and ribald farces to more subtle comedies of manners. They also believed that satire, poetry that poked fun at the vices and foibles of human nature, was a truly Roman genre. Moreover, both comic and satirical elements appear in a wide range of Roman literature. Authors may include Plautus, Terence, Horace, Ovid, Martial, Juvenal, and others.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Language
G. Sumi
Prereq: LATIN-201.

LATIN-213 Myth, Memory, and History: Writing the Past in the Roman Republic
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Livy and Sallust, the best known historians of the Roman Republic, viewed history writing as a moral enterprise, presenting events from the past as exemplary tales to inform and enlighten the lives of their readers. Their narratives thus are highly rhetorical, combining myth, memory, and history to reconstruct the past. Close reading of selections from Livy's Ab Urbe Condita and/or Sallust's monographs--the Bellum Catilinae and Bellum Jugurthinum--will lead to discussions about how Romans viewed their past and how they wrote about it.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Language

LATIN-302 Cicero and the Enemies of the Roman Republic
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The career of the Roman orator and statesman Marcus Tullius Cicero spanned the last generation of the Roman Republic, a period of political instability and civil war. As the leading orator of his day, Cicero often used his rhetorical skills to thwart those who he believed were bent on the destruction of the Roman Republic. In this course, we will examine the role of public oratory in the political process in this period with a close reading of Cicero’s speeches and letters concerning one of his political enemies (Catiline, Clodius, or Mark Antony).
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Language

Latina/o Studies

LATST-180 Introduction to Latina/o Studies: Structural Inequalities
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: The course provides an overview of current and past social conditions of Latinas and Latinos within the U.S. We will address laws, policies and institutions that shape the complexity of Latinas’/os’ social location and serve as critical sites of resistance. The course addresses legal constructions of race and citizenship, nomenclature, border politics, public health, education, and labor. We will consider the critical intersections of class, gender and sexuality as well as inequality in relation to other persons of color. Students will develop a firm sense of the importance and breadth of the Latina/o political agenda and acquire skills to think across social issues.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives

LATST-250 Special Topics in Latina/o Studies

LATST-250AN Special Topics in Latina/o Studies: 'Aliens, Anti-Citizens, and Identities'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: The course will examine marginal and "alien" citizenship statuses in the United States. Whereas the Declaration of Independence asserts that "all men are created equal," we will interrogate that statement by studying identities and personages that are explicitly treated unequally in the law and society. From immigrants to gang members, from tipped workers to queer persons, from presumed terrorists to disenfranchised ex-cons, we will examine the deliberate incorporation and maintenance of people in society into lower classes and statuses.

LATST-250RP Special Topics in Latina/o Studies: 'Race, Racism, and Power'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course analyzes the concepts of race and racism from an interdisciplinary perspective, with focus on Latinas/os/x in the United States. It explores the sociocultural, political, economic, and historical forces that interact with each other in the production of racial categories and racial "difference." In particular, we focus on racial ideologies, racial formation theory, and processes of racialization, as well as the relationship between race and ethnicity. The course examines racial inequality from a historical perspective and investigates how racial categories evolve and form across contexts. The analysis that develops will ultimately allow us to think rigorously about social inequality, resistance and liberation.

LATST-250SP Special Topics in Latina/o Studies: 'Scholarly Pathways: Research, College Achievement and Post-Baccalaureate Futures'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course demystifies college by focusing on three areas: 1) benefits of undergraduate research, 2) how to capitalize on the college experience, and 3) how to prepare for post-baccalaureate opportunities. Specifically, this course will teach students the elements of a research proposal by guiding them with original research. Moreover, students will learn strategies to thrive as undergraduates by exploring interests as means to finding their passion. In addition, this course will decipher the graduate/professional school application process. The overall goal of this course is to encourage and empower students to take their education and pre-professional experience into their own hands and equip them with the necessary tools to be successful.

LATST-250YE Special Topics in Latina/o Studies: 'The Undocumented Latina/o Youth Experience: Struggles, Resiliency, and Futures'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course provides an overview of the immigrant rights movement, emphasizing diverse undocumented Latina/o students throughout the K-20 pipeline. Readings and discussions will: address the socio-political construction of 'illegality'; critically examine the creation and implementation of pro-and anti-immigrant legislation, particularly policies that impact undocumented students; survey the challenges and resiliency of the undocumented youth movement as it pertains to education, social mobility, and health; and deconstruct the legislative, political, economic, and cultural factors that impact the undocumented community in the U.S.

LATST-350 Special Topics in Latina/o Studies

LATST-350AC Special Topics in Latina/o Studies: 'Latina/o/x Studies in Action'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Latina/o/x Studies in Action explores university/college-community partnerships and civic engagement with/in Latina/o/x communities in the United States. Drawing from the field of Latina/o/x Studies, the course explores and interrogates "traditional" academic understandings of knowledge production, research, and service learning. Focusing on questions of power, inequality, and social change, this course will examine how university/college-community partnerships can be based on reciprocity, exchange, and the centering of community assets, needs, and voices.

LATST-350FM Special Topics in Latina/o Studies: 'Latina Feminism(s)'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: What is Latina Feminism? How does it differ from and/or intersect with "other" feminisms? In this seminar, we will explore the relationship between Latina feminist theory, knowledge production, and social change in the United States. This interdisciplinary course explores Latina feminism in relation to methodology and epistemology through a historical lens. This will help us to better understand how Latina feminist approaches can inform our research questions, allow us to analyze women’s experiences and women’s history, and challenge patriarchy and gender inequality. We will explore topics related to knowledge production, philosophies of the "self," positionality, inequality, the body, reproductive justice, representation, and community. Our approach in this class will employ an intersectional approach to feminist theory that understands the interconnectedness between multiple forms of oppression, including race, class, sexuality, and ability. Central to seminar discussions and student learning is a substantial community-based learning requirement that will facilitate a deeper engagement and analysis of the relationship between the concepts we explore in the course. Our goal is to develop a robust understanding of how Latina feminist methodologies and epistemologies can be tools for social change.

LATST-350MC Special Topics in Latina/o Studies: 'Latinas/os/x and Housing: Mi Casa Is Not Su Casa'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Housing is closely tied to quality of life and the health of neighborhoods and communities. As a main goal of the "American Dream," homeownership has important significance on an individual and societal level. For immigrants, this goal is often out of reach as a result of racism and discriminatory housing policies. This interdisciplinary seminar explores Latinas/os/x relationship to housing and homeownership by examining: 1. the history of housing policy in the United States; 2. national identity, assimilation, and housing; and 3. discriminatory housing policies/programs and housing inequality. We explore topics including immigration, housing policy, public housing, segregation, gentrification, the suburbs, homelessness, eviction, affordability, and community building. Exploring this range of topics will help us develop a clearer understanding of why housing is one of the most pressing issues for Latinas/os/x today.

LATST-350RT Special Topics in Latina/o Studies: 'Critical Race Theory in Education'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course focuses on Critical Race Theory, its history and application in the field of Education. Through course readings and assignments, students will explore and discuss key issues such as race/racism, class/classism, gender/sexism among other "isms" and how they impact the teaching and learning experiences of students of color. This course is specifically designed to challenge students and make them think critically about their multiple identities, privileges and challenges as students and future leaders. The goal is gain a critical understanding of the connection between theory, research, and practice in order to better understand educational structures, processes, and discourses.

LATST-350VN Special Topics in Latin American Studies: 'Visualizing Immigrant Narratives: Migration in Film'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course offers an interrogation of overt and embedded narratives of migrants and the migration process in popular and documentary film, paying specific attention to cinematic representations of non-citizen bodies confronting migration, deportation, labor, acculturation, and anti-immigrant hysteria. Film screenings and class discussions comprise the interpretative lens through which students will examine the aesthetic, cultural, economic, gendered, historical, political, racial and sexual dimensions of cultural texts. The course is supplemented with readings about immigration policies and histories.
Crosslisted as: FLMST-370VN
LATST-360 Latina/o Immigration
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The course provides an historical and topical overview of Latina/o migration to the United States. We will examine the economic, political, and social antecedents to Latin American migration, and the historical impact of the migration process in the U.S. Considering migration from Mexico, Central America, and the Caribbean, we will discuss the social construction of race, the gendered nature of migration, migrant labor struggles, Latin American-U.S. Latino relations, immigration policy, and border life and enforcement. Notions of citizenship, race, class, gender, and sexuality will be central to our understanding of the complexity at work in the migration process.

MATH-100 Precalculus

MATH-100QR Precalculus: 'Problem Solving and Quantitative Reasoning'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course is intended for students who, based on the results of their mathematics assessment and the agreement of the instructor, need to strengthen their quantitative and algebraic skills in order to be ready to progress to further mathematics, science, and economics courses. In this class students learn to translate real problems into mathematics, to solve complex multi-step problems, and to gain confidence in using logarithms, exponents, and trigonometry in different contexts.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
Instructor permission required? Y
Advisory: A good grasp of arithmetic

MATH-101 Calculus I
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course is for students who have not studied calculus and who have the necessary precalculus background. It presents rates of change and their applications, integrals, the fundamental theorem, and modeling of phenomena in the natural and social sciences. All students are required to complete the online self assessment of precalculus skills before the course begins.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
P. Rosnick, The department

MATH-102 Calculus II
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Topics include techniques of integration, applications of integration, differential equations, sequences, series, and Taylor series.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

M. Robinson, The department

MATH-114 Explorations in Number Theory
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: We will cover the arithmetic of whole numbers and of prime numbers, in particular, examining some of the earliest questions in mathematics from a modern perspective, finding whole number solutions to equations with several variables, deciding whether or not such solutions exist and if so, determining whether the solution set is finite or infinite. Topics include the theory of 'finite arithmetic,' converting questions about the infinite set of whole numbers to those involving just a small set of primes, using computers to examine problems numerically.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
The department
Advisory: A good grasp of arithmetic

MATH-120 Explorations in Geometry

MATH-158MM Developing Mathematical Ideas: Making Meaning for Operations
Offered: Fall | Credits: 2
Description: This course provides opportunities for participants to examine the actions and situations modeled by the four basic operations. The course will begin with a view of young children's counting strategies as they encounter word problems, moves to an examination of the four basic operations on whole numbers, and revisits the operations in the context of rational numbers.

Advisory: For teacher licensure students.
Notes: Half semester.

MATH-158ST Developing Mathematical Ideas: Building a System of Tens
Offered: Fall | Credits: 2
Description: Participants will explore the base-ten structure of the number system, consider how that structure is exploited in multi-digit computational procedures, and examine how basic concepts of whole numbers reappear when working with decimals. They will study the various ways children naturally tend to think about separating and combining numbers and what children must understand in order to work with numbers in these ways.

Crosslisted as: X.MATH-400
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
S. Bent
Instructor permission required? Y
Advisory: For teacher licensure students only.

MATH-203 Calculus III
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Topics include differential and integral calculus of functions of several variables.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. Peterson, The department
Prereq: MATH-102 or its equivalent.

MATH-211 Linear Algebra
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Topics include elements of the theory of matrices and vector spaces.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
G. Davidoff, A. Hoyer-Leitzel, M. Robinson
Prereq: MATH-102 or above.

MATH-232 Discrete Mathematics
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Studies some aspects of discrete mathematics. Topics include sets, functions, elementary probability, induction proofs, and recurrence relations.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
T. Chumley, J. Sidman, The department
Prereq: MATH-102 or above or COMSC-101.

MATH-251 Mathematical Experimentation: An Introduction to Research in the Mathematical Sciences
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: A selection of projects with a goal of discovery of properties and patterns in mathematical structures. The choice of projects varies from year to year and is drawn from algebra, analysis, discrete mathematics, geometry, applied mathematics, and statistics.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive

MATH-301 Real Analysis
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Topics include the real number system, convergence of sequences and series, power series, uniform convergence, compactness and connectedness, continuity, abstract treatment of differential and integral calculus, metric spaces, and point-set topology.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
G. Davidoff, The department
Prereq: MATH-203 and MATH-301 or PHYS-205.
Notes: offered alternate years at Mount Holyoke and Smith Colleges

MATH-302 Complex Analysis
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Topics include differentiation and integration of functions of a complex variable, the Cauchy integral formula, residues, conformal mapping, and applications to physical science and number theory.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
The department
Prereq: MATH-203 and MATH-301 or PHYS-205.

MATH-311 Abstract Algebra: Groups and Rings
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Topics include algebraic structures: groups, rings (including some elementary number theory), fields, and vector spaces.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

M. Robinson

Prereq: MATH-211 and MATH-232.
Advisory: Students who have taken MATH-312RT Rings or MATH-312GT Groups may only take MATH-311 Abstract Algebra: Groups and Rings with instructor permission.

MATH-312 Abstract Algebra

MATH-312GT Abstract Algebra: ‘Groups’

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

Description: Abstract algebra is the study of the common principles that govern computations with seemingly disparate objects. One way to begin is by studying groups, which are sets with a single operation under which each non-identity element is invertible. Examples include the integers with addition, invertible matrices of size n, permutations of a fixed set, and the symmetries of an object. Our goal is to study a definition of groups that unifies all of the important examples above and more.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

J. Sidman

Prereq: MATH-211 and MATH-232.
Advisory: Students who have taken MATH-312GT Rings may only take MATH-311 Abstract Algebra: Groups and Rings with instructor permission.

Notes: This course will satisfy the MATH-311 requirement for the mathematics major.

MATH-319 Topics in Algebra

MATH-329 Topics in Geometry

MATH-333 Differential Equations

Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4

Description: This is an introduction to differential equations for students in the mathematical or other sciences. Topics include first-order equations, second-order linear equations, and qualitative study of dynamical systems.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

A. Hoyer-Leitzel, The department

Prereq: MATH-211.

MATH-339 Topics in Applied Mathematics

MATH-342 Probability

Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4

Description: This course develops the ideas of probability simultaneously from experimental and theoretical perspectives. The laboratory provides a range of experiences that enhance and sharpen the theoretical approach and, moreover, allows us to observe regularities in complex phenomena and to conjecture theorems. Topics include: introductory experiments; axiomatic probability; random variables, expectation, and variance; discrete distributions; continuous distributions; stochastic processes; functions of random variables; estimation and hypothesis testing.

Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

T. Chumley, The department

Prereq: MATH-203.

Medieval Studies

MEDST-215 Chaucer's Literary World
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Who and what did Chaucer read? How did Chaucer's literary environment move him to explore love, human will, differences of perspective, and ideas of closure (the efficacy of complaint, poetic endings, and the poet's accomplishments). These topics will be studied in light of the ranging literary influences from the medieval world, especially Chaucer's adaptation of classical poetry, French and Italian vernacular verse, romance, saints' lives, allegory, and beast fables. All readings are in Middle English, concentrating on a selection of Chaucer's short poems and his major works prior to The Canterbury Tales.

MEDST-300 Seminar in Medieval Studies

MEDST-300HE Seminar in Medieval Studies: 'Heroes & Infidels: Masculine Identity and The Birth of Europe in Medieval Romance Classics'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course we will read the canonical works that have shaped the national identity of European Romance countries such as Spain, France, Italy, Portugal, and Romania: from the medieval Chanson the Roland and Cantar del mio Cid to the early modern Don Quixote, Os Lusiadas, Orlando Furioso, and Mesterul Manole. We will discuss the performed masculinity of heroes, enemies, and mediators at the threshold between worlds. We will employ a decolonial critical approach to the Medieval, to question past and present wars against the infidel and their roles in the shaping of a modern European identity.
Crosslisted as: SPAN-360HE, ITAL-361HE, FREN-321HE, ROMLG-375HE

Advisory: For Language Majors: two courses in culture and literature at the 200 level. Also open to non-language majors with no prerequisite.
Notes: Note: Students wishing to obtain 300-level credit in French, Italian, or Spanish must read texts and write papers in the Romance language for which they wish to receive credit.

MEDST-300MR Seminar in Medieval Studies: 'The Medieval Mirror: Freedom, Gender and Resistance in Contemporary Arabic Literature'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Setting their historical novels in the Middle Ages, contemporary Arab writers such as Radwa Ashour, Jurjy Zaydan, Gamal al-Ghitani and Bensalem Himmich have reflected into the past the problems of present Middle-Eastern societies. Writing from Egypt, Lebanon and Morocco, they revisited with nostalgia the extraordinary medieval heritage of the Arab-Islamic world, educating their readers while taking them on journeys to Medieval Andalusia, to the last years of the Baghdad of the caliphs, and to Cairo on eve of the Ottoman conquest. By looking into the medieval mirror, these authors challenged conservative readings of this heritage. In doing so, they contributed to the modernization of their countries and were able to escape censorship, uphold feminist values, and to criticize Western imperialism and oppressive Arab rulers. In this course, we will read their works in valuable English translations, while discussing their extraordinary lives as twentieth-century writers, intellectuals, and activists.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives

M. Lovato
Notes: Taught in English. A special Arabic Track will be available for upper-intermediate, advanced, and native students of Arabic.

MUSIC-203 Acoustic Ecology and Sonic Art
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: The field of acoustic ecology is particularly concerned with how we create, interpret and interact with the sounds around us and how imbalances in the soundscape may affect human health and the natural world. Through reading, discussion, listening sessions, independent research, and hands-on projects, we will examine the broad interdisciplinary fields of acoustic ecology and sonic art. We will engage historical, conceptual, and aesthetic aspects of sound as a cultural, environmental, and artistic medium, with an emphasis on listening, psychoacoustics, soundscape studies, field recording and soundscape composition. We will question predominate ideas regarding the relationships between location, environment, sound, silence, music, and noise, and test these ideas through individual and group research as well as hands-on sonic art projects.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
T. Ciufo

MUSIC-226 World Music
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course is a survey of selected musical traditions from different parts of the world, including Africa, Indonesia, Indian, the Caribbean, and the United States. The course adopts an ethnomusicological approach that explains music as a cultural phenomenon, and explores the social and aesthetic significance of musical traditions within their respective historical and cultural contexts. It examines how musical traditions change over time, and how such changes reflect and relate to social and political changes within a given society. Weekly reading and listening assignments provide the basis for class discussions. Students are expected to undertake a final project in music ethnography.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive

MUSIC-228 African Opera in Theory and Practice
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: In this course, African opera will provide the framework for exploring salient features of African music. The course will begin by examining a wide range of performance elements, including ensemble practice, the role of dance, and musical storytelling. The second part will feature practical sessions culminating in a public performance of an African opera. Students will work with visiting and local musicians and choreographer. The practical sessions will afford students an opportunity to reflect on the theoretical issues examined earlier on in the semester, and gain practical knowledge of the African operatic tradition.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
B. Omojola

MUSIC-229 African Popular Music
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines selected genres and their relationships to the political and social dynamics of their respective national origins. Regional examples like highlife, soukous, chimurenga, and Fela Anikulapo-Kuti’s Afro-beat will provide the basis for assessing the significance of popular music as a creative response to the African colonial and postcolonial environment. The course also discusses African hip-hop music by exploring how indigenous cultural tropes have provided the basis for its local appropriation. Themes explored include music and identity; music, politics, and resistance; interaction of local and global elements; and political significance of musical nostalgia. Students’ final projects for this class could be in form of live performances or paper presentations focusing on any genre or aspect of African popular music.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives

MUSIC-321 Advanced Interdisciplinary Topics

MUSIC-321AM Advanced Interdisciplinary Topics: 'Art, Music and the Brain'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Art and music are a part of all human cultures. Is there something about the human brain that drives us to paint and sing? We will examine how the brain simultaneously processes different aspects of visual and auditory stimuli, ask how this processing may affect the way we do art and music, and explore where these phenomena may occur in the brain. As we engage in discussion and hands-on activities, we will discover the commonalities between the arts and the sciences including practice, experimentation, exploration, innovation, and creativity.
Crosslisted as: PSYCH-349AM

MUSIC-371 Topics in Music
Description: This seminar is designed to increase familiarity with and facility in the use of primary materials for musicological/ethnomusicological and/or theoretical research, as well as in the critical evaluation of published scholarship. Engagement with a shared topic at the outset of the semester provides the context from which each student fashions an independent project. Oral presentations and active discussion are integral to the course.

MUSIC-371CH Topics in Music: 'Music and Childhood in the Western Tradition'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines significant moments in the history of children as creators, performers, consumers, and subjects of music in the Western tradition. From Mozart to Michael Jackson, medieval psalmody to Debussy's Children's Corner and beyond, we will survey the enlisting of children, childhood, and the childlike across a range of musical genres and pedagogical, aesthetic, and cultural-political agendas. For their final project, students may work with a historical artifact of children's musical culture, or research a local children's music program or ensemble.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive

MUSIC-371EM Topics in Music: 'Electronic and Experimental Music'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines significant moments of disruption found at the intersection of particular technologies and emergent musical practices. We will explore a range of electronic and experimental music approaches, read case studies and other influential texts, as well as engaging the sonic outcomes and aesthetic/philosophical implications of these developments. We will further explore and test the potential promise, hype and challenges posed by these emergent music practices through hands-on labs and creative projects.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
T. Ciufo
Prereq: MUSIC-231, and MUSIC-281, MUSIC-282, or MUSIC-283.

MUSIC-371SH Topics in Music: 'Shakespeare and Music to 1800'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This seminar develops skills in the use of primary materials for musicological, ethnomusicological, and/or theoretical research; in critical engagement with published scholarship; and in the communication of original research to a wider community. Collaborative inquiry on a specific interdisciplinary topic provides the context from which each student fashions a substantial independent project, often with a practical or public component. This year, the topic is musical settings and adaptations of Shakespeare from 1590-1800. Students will collectively research, program, rehearse, and perform an evening-length program of music from Shakespeare's Tempest.

Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive

A. Mueller
Prereq: MUSIC-232 and MUSIC-282.
Notes: Students who wish only to participate as dancers, actors, singers, or musicians may register for a single unit of ensemble credit: See Music 147A Collegium.

MUSIC-374 Advanced Seminar in Ethnomusicology
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  Credits: 4
Description: Designed for music and non-music majors, this advanced seminar examines core theoretical and methodological issues in ethnomusicology and the debates that have shaped its practice since its origins in the early twentieth century as comparative musicology. Drawing on musical traditions from different parts of the world and supplemented by workshops conducted by visiting professional musicians, the course explores the interdisciplinary approaches that inform how ethnomusicologists study the significance of music "in" and "as" culture. Topics covered will include ethnomusicological and anthropological perspectives, the political significance of musical hybridity, applied ethnomusicology, and sound studies.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive; Writing-Intensive

Neuroscience and Behavior

NEURO-100 Introduction to Neuroscience and Behavior
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This comprehensive survey course explores the brain and the biological basis of behavior. We will examine the anatomy of the nervous system and the unique properties of the cells that make up the brain. We will discuss the mechanisms by which individual brain cells communicate with each other, and how small networks of cells underlie more complex processes such as perception, learning, and behavior. In labs, students will perform experiments that expand upon and reinforce these ideas through hands-on exercises.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

NEURO-309 Topics in Neuroscience and Behavior

NEURO-324 Cellular and Molecular Neuroscience
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course will explore cellular and molecular mechanisms of nervous system development and function through lectures, laboratory exercises, and the critical analysis of primary literature. Topics include synapse formation and synaptic transmission, neuronal-glial interactions, the molecular basis of behavior, and applied genetic engineering techniques.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Colodner
Prereq: NEURO-100 and BIOL-230 (or BIOL-220).

Notes: This course meets the 300-level laboratory-based course requirement for the Neuroscience and Behavior major.

NEURO-331 Glial Cells in Health and Disease
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course will explore the "other" cells in your brain, the glial cells. While neuronal cells receive most of the attention, glial cells are now recognized as essential players in normal brain physiology. Through the critical analysis of primary literature, we will highlight recent advances in glial cell biology and discuss how the various glial cell subtypes (astrocytes, microglia, myelinating cells, etc.) contribute to the healthy and diseased brain. We will examine the glial contribution to a variety of disorders (e.g. multiple sclerosis, spinal cord injury, neurodegenerative diseases, etc.) as we cultivate a better understanding of these often overlooked brain cells.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

Philosophy

PHIL-101 Introduction to Philosophy
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will explore topics that philosophers have grappled with for thousands of years, and that still undergird (or sometimes threaten to undermine) our understanding of the world, our knowledge, ourselves, and each other. In historical and modern texts of the Western intellectual tradition, we will discuss questions such as: Are we all selfish? What makes right actions right, if anything? Do you know anything at all about the future? Are you really free if your actions are caused? This class is for first and second year students who know nothing about philosophy, and want to know whether they will be interested in it. Students with some exposure to, and interest in, the field should take other classes.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

PHIL-103 Comparative Introduction to Philosophy
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: What kind of life should a person live? What can we know about the world? Do we have souls that are separate from our bodies? The aim of the course is to learn how to do philosophy by engaging with philosophical thinkers throughout the globe. We read some philosophers from the Western tradition (such as Plato and Sartre) alongside philosophers from other historical traditions, such as the Daoist thinker Zhuangzi and the Sufi mystic al-Ghazali, and we also read some contemporary thinkers from a variety of cultural traditions (such as Martin Luther King, Jr. and Jorge Gracia). This course is equivalent to Philosophy 101.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives

PHIL-104 Science and Human Values
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Modern science has taught us surprising new things and modern technology has given us extraordinary new abilities. We can now prolong life in extraordinary ways, artificially enhance our physical and cognitive abilities, and radically reshape the natural environment on local and global scales. This course is devoted to the critical study of moral problems that have been raised or affected by this newfound information and these newfound abilities. Topics will include euthanasia, pharmaceutical enhancement and genetic engineering, the allocation of scarce medical resources, the moral status of animals, climate changes, and what contemporary cosmology tells us about our place in the world.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

PHIL-201 Philosophical Foundations of Western Thought: The Greek Period
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: An introduction to ancient Greek philosophy, focusing mainly but not exclusively on the works and ideas of three Athenian philosophers who worked and taught in the period between the Persian Wars and the rule of Alexander the Great, more than 2,300 years ago: Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle. Topics to be discussed include: What is the nature of the self? What is truth, and how can it be known? What kind of life should we live? We will work to understand each philosopher’s responses to these questions, but we will also learn to develop our own answers. We will take care to place these figures and their works in their historical and cultural context.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

PHIL-202 Philosophical Foundations of Western Thought: The Modern Period
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Philosophy was transformed during the 17th and 18th centuries, in a period known as the Modern period, or the Enlightenment. This period is important for the background of our current views both in Philosophy and in intellectual endeavor generally. In this course, we’ll look at the major figures involved in this transformation, and the positions about knowledge and reality that they defended. We’ll have selections from the work of Descartes, Spinoza, Leibniz, Locke, Berkeley, Hume, and Kant. We might not cover all of these, but will
PHIL-205 Ethics
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: What is the right thing to do? What makes a life good? The purpose of this course is to critically examine some of the key theoretical approaches to answering these questions. We will focus on three main ethical theories: (1) virtue ethics, exemplified by the Chinese philosopher Mengzi; (2) utilitarianism, as defended by the English philosopher John Stuart Mill; and (3) Kantianism, named for the German philosopher Immanuel Kant. We will also discuss contemporary alternatives to and criticisms of these traditions. Finally, we will evaluate some arguments for and against the objectivity and universality of ethics. Is there such a thing as moral truth?
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

PHIL-209 Theories of Probability and Causation
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course we will look at theories of causation, probability, and their interaction. We will look first at Hume on causation, and then move on to some very basic probability theory. We will briefly explore the standard statistical approaches and go on to Bayesian reasoning and confirmation theory. Finally, we'll examine recent developments in the Bayesian Net theory of causation. As a whole, the class is an investigation of recent mathematical and philosophical theories about how science works, what justifies the hypotheses we ought to believe, and how observations could justify hypotheses about unobserved entities and regions.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
S. Mitchell
Prereq: One course in Philosophy or Mathematics.

PHIL-210 Logical Thought
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course cultivates sound reasoning. Students will learn to see the structure of claims and arguments and to use those structures in developing strong arguments and exposing shoddy ones. We will learn to evaluate arguments on the strength of the reasoning rather than on the force of their associations and buzzwords.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

PHIL-212 Philosophical Foundations of Chinese Thought: The Ancient Period
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: An introduction to Chinese thought in the classical period roughly between 500 and 221 BCE, a time of social and political furor. We will survey different philosophical responses to this upheaval, with an eye to the contemporary relevance of ancient Chinese wisdom. We will conclude the course by looking at how classical Chinese thought changes and adapts with the arrival of Buddhism. The course format consists of lecture and discussion preceded by extensive reading of primary texts (in translation).
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive
The department
Advisory: No familiarity with Chinese history, philosophy, or language is assumed.

PHIL-222 Philosophy of Quantum Mechanics
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Although quantum mechanics is a remarkably successful scientific theory, it also leads scientists to make extraordinary claims like that cats can be both dead and alive and that the state of a fundamental particle depends on whether someone is observing it. In this class we will consider the various interpretations of quantum mechanics and the way in which those interpretations influence and are influenced by philosophical issues in science more generally.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
N. Emery
Advisory: No previous work in physics is necessary, but students should be prepared to learn some mathematical formalism involving basic algebra and trigonometry.
PHIL-225 Symbolic Logic
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course develops a symbolic system that can be used as the basis for inference in all fields. It will provide syntax and semantics for the language of this system and investigate its adequacy. It provides the basis for all further work in logic or in the philosophical foundations of mathematics. Much of the course has a mathematical flavor, but no knowledge of mathematics is necessary.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
S. Mitchell

PHIL-242 Social and Political Philosophy
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: We will examine the place of liberty and equality in a just society by looking at classic and contemporary topics in social and political philosophy. We will consider big questions such as the following: what is liberty and why is it important? What about equality? Do these values conflict? Or can a society ensure both? We will also consider more narrow, practical questions on topics such as immigration, voting, commodification, reparations, freedom of expression, and a universal basic income.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

PHIL-248 Philosophical Issues in Race and Racism
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the nature of race and racism primarily (but not exclusively) from a philosophical perspective. What kind of entity or category is 'race'? Is it something real at all? If so, how is it real exactly? If not, what consequences (should) follow from its lack of reality? Do we have to be a member of a 'race' in order to (have the right to) know and speak for it? How is race and race-thinking relevant for our personal and group identities? What is the nature of racism? How do race, ethnicity, gender, and class intersect? How legitimate are race-based social policies that aim to bring about social justice or diversity? Readings will come from philosophy and a variety of interdisciplinary texts (e.g., film and other media).
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities; Multicultural Perspectives

PHIL-249 Women and Philosophy
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The goal of this course is to see how careful philosophical thought can help us with pressing issues that women face. We approach this topic through a distinctly feminist lens, as opposed to a traditional philosophical, queer theoretic, or gender studies lens. We will draw on a variety of philosophical resources, ranging from liberal and feminist political theory, to speech act theory. Possible questions we will consider include: What is objectification? What is consent? Is pornography degrading? How does sexism and bias lead to bad science?

PHIL-250 Topics in Philosophy

PHIL-250AE Topics in Philosophy: 'Philosophical Issues Concerning Animals'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Who are non-human animals? In this course, we will think about this question and others - specifically about the ethical relationship "human animals" have to these beings. We will ask such questions like: What are the philosophical -- especially the ethical -- implications of the scientific research on non-human animals? What determines the quality of life of any animal -- human or nonhuman? What obligations do we have to non-human animals? Our answers to these questions will have implications for human businesses, our diet, our pets, our legal system, and, ultimately, how we think about ourselves as 'human animals.' The course format consists of lecture, discussion, regular writing and the possibility of a class presentation.

PHIL-250AP Topics in Philosophy: 'History of Analytic Philosophy'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This class is about how philosophy tried to be a science, and rejected most of its history as metaphysical nonsense. It’s about how and why this failed, and returned to metaphysics. There were three phases: Logical Positivism, which argued that most of the history of philosophy was meaningless babble, and should be replaced by a much more scientific approach to the issues. Quine, who replaced the positivists with a pragmatic view of the subject. And Kripke/Lewis who returned Metaphysics to the center of concern using possible worlds. This last approach brings us to the present day. We’ll read the most influential figures: Frege, Russell, Schlick, Carnap, Quine, Lewis Kripke. These developments provide the background for nearly all Contemporary Philosophy.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
S. Mitchell
Prereq: 8 credits in the department including logic (PHIL-210 or PHIL-225).

PHIL-250ED Topics in Philosophy: 'Philosophy of Education'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The purpose, goal and shape of educational institutions, policies and methods have been central preoccupations for millennia. This course considers a variety of questions concerning education that are related to different parts of philosophy: epistemology (What kind of 'knowledge' should be taught at different educational levels? How do we differentiate 'truth' and 'education' from 'propaganda' and 'indoctrination'?), ethics (What is 'moral virtue'? Can it be taught? If so, is this an appropriate educational goal?), and social and political philosophy (What is the relationship between schools and the broader society? Should education be a fundamentally subversive activity?)

PHIL-250UT Topics in Philosophy: 'Utopian Theory'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course studies a wide range of writings that aim to describe an ideal community. We begin with ancient Greek philosophical works (Plato's Republic and Aristotle's Politics), examine the revival of the genre in the Renaissance (Thomas More's Utopia) and consider both modern and contemporary examples that come from non-philosophical disciplines (Edward Bellamy's Looking Backward, B.F. Skinner's Walden Two, Marge Piercy's Woman on the Edge of Time, and Ernest Callenbach's Ecotopia). Issues regarding the character, shape and goal of government and the economy are obviously central.

PHIL-255 Existentialism
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Does human life have meaning (purpose)? Can religion or spirituality provide it? If not, is human life 'absurd'? How can we attain or create meaning in the face of the 'absurdity' of human life? What is genuine human freedom? Are other people in the world obstacles to, or also sources for, our attempt to attain or create meaning in our lives? What is existentialist commitment and 'authenticity'? Is existentialist ethics possible at all? We will examine the central themes of existentialism in readings from Kierkegaard, Dostoyevsky, Nietzsche, Sartre, Camus, de Beauvoir, and Fanon (among others). We will also end the course by considering some significant criticisms of existentialism.

PHIL-260 Topics in Applied Philosophy
Description: These courses ask questions about the ethical and/or conceptual problems pertaining to a practice, such as law, medicine, or caring for the natural environment. Such courses are suitable for philosophy majors as well as for students who are new to philosophy but who are interested in the relevant practice.
PHIL-260EB Topics in Applied Philosophy: 'Ethics in Entrepreneurship and Business'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: What are the special challenges of obligation and responsibility that individuals, businesses and other organizations face in a complex global environment? We explore these questions using applied philosophical ethics from the traditional approaches to moral philosophy (studying the ethical character of both actions themselves and the results of those actions) and the more recent ethics of care. We apply these ethical considerations in different cases and contexts of individual decision-making and the choices and dilemmas that businesses and other organizations face.
Crosslisted as: EOS-249

PHIL-260ET Topics in Applied Philosophy: 'Environmental Ethics'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: A fundamental problem we face as humans is how we should relate to the natural world. Why not turn Yosemite into a parking lot? Should we control nature by applying scientific and technological expertise? Or should we strive for noninterference and preservation of the wild? How do we balance the pressing needs of people for food, energy, and other resources with the needs of other species or whole ecosystems?

PHIL-260GE Topics in Applied Philosophy: 'Problems in Global Ethics: Climate Change, War, and Poverty'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Living in today's world presents distinctive and pressing moral problems. What are the responsibilities of individuals, particularly individuals living in relatively affluent societies, to prevent climate change, or to alleviate the harms caused by it? How should we act to prevent war, and should we ever initiate wars in order to prevent greater evils (such as terrorism)? What responsibilities do citizens of relatively affluent nations have to prevent and ameliorate poverty and global inequality? In order to reason clearly about these questions, we will need to think deeply about the notion of global citizenship (or "cosmopolitanism") and the nature of individual moral responsibility.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
J. Harold

PHIL-260LW Topics in Applied Philosophy: 'Philosophy of Law'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course is an inquiry into questions concerning the nature of 'justice,' 'law,' and the relationship between the two from the point of view of various schools of legal thought like natural law theory, positivism, utilitarianism, legal realism, critical race studies, and feminist theory. We will examine questions like 'Is there a duty to obey, or sometimes disobey, the law?' and 'What do we mean by 'equality' or 'rights'?' within the context of contemporary legal issues like affirmative action, abortion, and same-sex marriage. Readings drawn from Aristotle, Hobbes, Locke, Kant, Mill, Holmes, Llewellyn, Hart, Rawls, and others.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

PHIL-260ME Topics in Applied Philosophy: 'Medical Ethics'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Contemporary medicine gives rise to a variety of moral and philosophical questions. Some of the questions we will discuss include: Is the concept of disease objective? What moral duties do we have to those at the beginning and the end of life? How should limited health care resources be distributed? What are the responsibilities of medical researchers towards their subjects? Do we have reason to be worried about the growth of technology in medicine? Are the basic institutions of medicine just? The goals of this course are to improve our understanding of the arguments on different sides of these questions, and to acquire some tools to evaluate those arguments.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

PHIL-270 Epistemology
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: As the study of knowledge and related concepts like justification, rationality, and evidence, epistemology is of central importance, and not just to philosophy. This course provides an introduction to epistemology through a number of epistemological problems or puzzles about skepticism, dogmatism, and humility.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
K. Vavova
Prereq: 4 credits in Philosophy.
Advisory: The required credits should be from a course with a substantial writing component. If in doubt ask instructor.

PHIL-272 Metaphysics
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Metaphysics is the study of what world is like. This course will survey of some major topics in metaphysics, with a particular focus on radical metaphysical arguments -- arguments that call into question our most basic beliefs about the world.
Examples of questions that we will consider include: Do ordinary objects exist? Is there anything that makes persons distinct from other sorts of objects? Could things have been different than the way they in fact are? In answering these questions we will investigate the nature of composite objects, the criteria for personal identity, and the metaphysics of causation, laws of nature, and modality.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
N. Emery

PHIL-273 Philosophy of the Arts
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The purpose of this course is to explore philosophical problems concerning the arts and aesthetic experience. Some questions to be explored include: What is the difference between beauty and moral goodness? Can artistic taste be objective? What does it mean for a work of music to be 'sad'? Are the intentions of artists relevant to appreciation? What is the purpose of art criticism? How do pictures represent their objects? Readings will be drawn from both historical and contemporary philosophical writings.

Instructor permission required? Y
Course can be repeated for credit.

PHIL-327 Advanced Logic
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course uses the predicate calculus to present a careful development of formal elementary number theory, and elementary recursion theory, culminating in a proof of G"odel's incompleteness results. It includes some discussion of the philosophical significance of these results for the foundations of mathematics.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
S. Mitchell
Prereq: PHIL-225.

PHIL-328 Non-Classical Logic
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course looks at the recent flowering of non-classical logics. The most prominent are modal logics concerning necessity and possibility, which have come to dominate work in metaphysics and epistemology. Conditional logics, intuitionist logics, and relevance logics have also become important. These logics are particularly useful in graduate-level classes in philosophy but also are interesting in their own right.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
S. Mitchell
Prereq: 4 credits from Philosophy, Mathematics, or Computer Science department.
Advisory: One course in Logic, Mathematics, Computer Science or Philosophy 209

PHIL-334 Topics in Ethics
PHIL-334HC Topics in Ethics: 'The Ethics of Having Children'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Few choices have as much of an impact on ourselves and others as those we make about having children. In this course, we will discuss the ethics of issues such as procreation, pregnancy, surrogacy, adoption, genetic modification, and our obligations to future generations. In the process, we will explore deep and challenging issues such as the nature of harm, value, and personal identity. The course format will consist in discussions of contemporary books and articles.

Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive

Prereq: 8 credits from the Philosophy department.

PHIL-334MA Topics in Ethics: 'Immoral Art'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: From Plato's attacks on Homer's poems to the protests against D.W. Griffith's racist film The Birth of a Nation to the recent spotlight cast by the #metoo movement, it is clear that the relationship between art and morality is a difficult one. Are some works of art inherently immoral? If so, why? What should we say about works of art that are created by immoral artists? Or works that have morally troubling social effects? What is the relationship between an artwork's moral status and its value as a work of art? Are moral and aesthetic judgments objective? How are they related? We will survey the current state of the philosophical debate over the conflict between moral and aesthetic value.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive
J. Harold
Prereq: 8 credits from the Philosophy department.
Advisory: One previous course in ethics or philosophy of art; at least one course in philosophy that is writing-intensive.

PHIL-350 Topics in Philosophy

PHIL-350BA Topics in Philosophy: 'Reasons for Belief and Action'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Your friend wrote a tacky song. Should you believe it's a masterpiece? (She is your friend, after all). You’re about to jump across an icy stream. You’re more likely to make it if you believe you can. Should you believe that? Your resolutions to exercise regularly usually fail. Should you believe you will succeed this time? If we say 'yes', what is the relevant sense of 'should'? Are these beliefs rational, or merely beneficial? These cases suggest that there can be different sorts of considerations in favor of belief and action. This course is about how to understand these different sorts of reasons and how these might conflict or interact.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
K. Vavova
Prereq: 8 credits from the Philosophy department.
Notes: Professor Vavova is co-teaching a version of this course at Amherst College in fall 2017. Mount Holyoke students can register for this course using the Five College registration system.

PHIL-350FR Topics in Philosophy: 'Freedom and Responsibility'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Is free will possible if all our actions are causally determined? Might we be justified in blaming, praising, rewarding, or punishing people even if their actions are not free? Abstract metaphysical questions about freedom intersect in important ways with everyday problems in our relationships with others and our attitudes about moral ignorance, addiction, and madness. This course will examine these issues side by side in the hope of improving our understanding of freedom and responsibility.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
K. Vavova
Prereq: 8 credits from the Philosophy department.
Advisory: The required credits should be from a course with a substantial writing component. If in doubt ask instructor.

PHIL-350SE Topics in Philosophy: 'The Philosophy and Science of Emotion'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course, rooted in an analytical philosophical approach, is an interdisciplinary investigation of emotions. The course goals are to understand emotions, how different academic disciplines approach the study of emotions, and how these perspectives can inform each other. Are emotions primarily bodily responses? Feelings? Thoughts? What role does culture play in shaping emotions? What functions do emotions serve? What can neuroscience tell us about emotions? We will read and critically analyze material from different disciplines including philosophy, psychology, neuroscience, anthropology and evolutionary theory.

Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive
L. Sizer
Prereq: 8 credits in Philosophy or Neuroscience and Behavior, or 4 credits in each.
Notes: Assignments include in class presentations and several short and longer papers.

PHIL-350TM Topics in Philosophy: 'Philosophy of Time'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Does time flow? What is the difference between the future and the past? Is time travel possible? This course will survey the major topics in the philosophy of time from Augustine's Confessions and the Leibniz-Clarke correspondence to relativity theory. Along the way we will take up philosophical issues regarding the relevance of intuition, the nature of causation, determinism, and freedom, and the relationship between science and philosophy.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive
N. Emery
Prereq: 8 credits from the Philosophy department.

PHIL-350WU Topics in Philosophy: 'Women and Utopias'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: While utopian speculation was a noteworthy part of western philosophy from its origins in ancient Greece, it wasn't until the early twentieth century that a utopia was published by a woman. Since then, there have been a number of important, primarily literary works written by women speculating about ideal societies. This course will examine the distinctive traits of these utopias and their differences with the major utopias written by men.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive
T. White
Prereq: 8 credits from the Philosophy department.

PHIL-351 Systematic Study of One Philosopher

PHIL-351KA Systematic Study of One Philosopher: 'Kant'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Immanuel Kant's Critique of Pure Reason is one of the few works in the Western philosophic tradition that fundamentally transformed our understanding of the place of human beings in the world. This seminar involves a careful, critical reading of the text in order to assess the nature and significance of the epistemological and metaphysical views it expounds. There will be frequent, short papers.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

PHYED-275 Introduction to Sport Pedagogy
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course is designed to introduce students to the many facets of sport pedagogy and coaching. Our focus is the strategies and styles of coaching youth sports. Topics include coaching philosophy, motor learning, anatomy and physiology, biomechanics, sport psychology and risk management/liability. Other topics include the benefits of playing sports, developing age-appropriate instruction and training, goal setting, effective feedback, special issues in coaching children, and coaches as role models for children. In a local school system, we will apply the concepts and theories learned, by developing and implementing lesson plans to introduce various athletic skills and sports.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

Physics

PHYS-100 Foundations of Physics
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course studies a variety of topics in physics unified by the physical notions of force, energy, and equilibrium. Mathematics is used at the level of geometry, proportion, and dimensional analysis. Topics, drawn from the MCAT syllabus, include geometrical optics, time, oscillation, statics, elasticity, conservation of energy, and fluids.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Nordstrom
Coreq: PHYS-100L.

PHYS-104 Renewable Energy
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: We will examine the feasibility of converting the entire energy infrastructure of the US from one that is dependent on fossil fuels to one that utilizes mostly renewable sources of energy. We will examine the potential scale of energy production and the associated costs, natural resource requirements and land usage needs for both renewables, such as solar, wind and biofuel, and non-renewables, such as coal, natural gas, petroleum and nuclear. By applying extensive use of basic algebra and an elementary understanding of the physical processes underpinning each energy technology, we will arrive at a number of urgent conclusions about the challenges facing our energy infrastructure.
Crosslisted as: ENVST-104
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. Arango

PHYS-110 Force, Motion, and Energy
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Studies the mechanics of material objects. Topics include Newton’s laws, projectile motion, circular motion, momentum, kinetic and potential energy, angular momentum, gravitation, and oscillations. This course is appropriate for students intending to major in a physical science.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
S. Smith
Prereq: MATH-101 or equivalent.; Coreq: PHYS-110L.
Advisory: Knowledge of calculus as demonstrated by Math 101 or equivalent.

PHYS-141 Interweaving Themes in Physics and Art
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Physics and Art represent the world in seemingly different ways, however they share many common themes: the guiding role of symmetry, the tension between order and disorder, and the emergence of structure from many simple constituents. We will explore some of the big ideas in physics, including quantum mechanics, relativity, entropy, and chaos theory, by looking at how these underlying themes are represented in the visual arts. Islamic tessellations, Japanese Suminagashi paper marbling, as well works by contemporary artists such as Tara Donovan will guide us toward an intuitive understanding of some of the most exciting ideas in physics without the need for any prior physics background.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
S. Smith

PHYS-150 Phenomena of Physics
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course studies a variety of topics in physics, drawn from the MCAT syllabus, including thermodynamics, acoustics, wave optics, electricity, magnetism, and nuclear phenomena. As in Physics 100, the applicable mathematics is geometry, proportion, and dimensional analysis.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Nordstrom
Prereq: PHYS-100 or PHYS-110.; Coreq: PHYS-150L.

PHYS-201 Electromagnetism
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Topics include: electromagnetism, emphasizing fields and energy; electrostatics; electric circuits; magnetism; induction; and electromagnetic radiation. Additional topics chosen according to the interests of the class and instructor.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. Arango
Prereq: PHYS-110 and MATH-102.; Coreq: PHYS-
PHYS-205 Introduction to Mathematical Methods for Scientists
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Topics include infinite series, complex numbers, partial differentiation, multiple integration, selected topics in linear algebra and vector analysis, ordinary differential equations, and Fourier series. The course includes a brief introduction to Mathematica and Matlab, in addition to a traditional emphasis on analytic solutions.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
S. Smith
Prereq: PHYS-201 (or concurrent enrollment with permission); Coreq: PHYS-205L.

PHYS-210 Waves and Optics
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: A comprehensive treatment of wave phenomena, particularly light, leading to an introductory study of quantum mechanics. Topics include wave propagation, polarization, interference and interferometry, diffraction, and special relativity.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. Arango
Prereq: Electromagnetism (PHYS-201) and Intro to Math Methods (PHYS-205) or concurrent enrollment in PHYS-205 with permission.

PHYS-220 Intermediate Lab in Physics
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This lab-based course is an introduction to modern, investigative, experimental physics. The course is intended as a bridge between the structured introductory lab experience and independent research. Students will engage in a semester-long experimental project, participating in experimental design, construction, debugging and implementation. Students will practice presenting and interpreting experimental results and will be encouraged to develop follow-up experimental questions of their own. This course will also introduce students to scientific communication skills, and is speaking- and writing-intensive.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive; Writing-Intensive

PHYS-231 Techniques of Experimental Physics
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 1
Description: Provides training in the techniques employed in the construction of scientific equipment.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
L. McEachern
Restrictions: This course is limited to physics majors.; This course is open to Juniors and Seniors.
Notes: 1 meeting (2 hours) for 3 weeks. Credit/no credit grading.

PHYS-250 Quantum Mechanical Phenomena
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course provides an introduction to quantum mechanics. The Uncertainty Principle, Schroedinger's Equation, and the hydrogen atom are studied in depth, with emphasis on angular momentum, electron spin, and the Pauli Exclusion Principle.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
N. Abraham

PHYS-290 Advanced Laboratory Practicum
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 1-8
Description: This course is a hands-on practicum, intended to introduce students to the practice of modern physics research. Depending on student interest, topics include external research seminars by practitioners in the field, training in oral and written scientific communication, presentation and interpretation of research results, scientific modeling, and hands-on experimental skills. Research projects are an integral part of this course; credit will be apportioned in relation to the intensity of the project.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive; Writing-Intensive

PHYS-308 Electronics
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course is a study of electrical circuits and components with emphasis on the underlying physical principles; solid-state active devices with applications to simple systems such as linear amplifiers; feedback-controlled instrumentation; and analog and digital computing devices.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Aidala
Prereq: PHYS-150 or PHYS-201.
Notes: Meetings combine lecture and hands-on lab

PHYS-315 Analytical Mechanics
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Newton's great innovation was the description of the world by differential equations, the beginning of physics as we know it. This course studies Newtonian mechanics for a point particle in 1, 2, and 3 dimensions, systems of particles, rigid bodies, and the Lagrangian and Hamiltonian formulations.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
S. Smith
Prereq: PHYS-205.

PHYS-325 Electromagnetic Theory
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course presents the development of mathematical descriptions of electric and magnetic fields; study of interactions of fields with matter in static and dynamic situations; mathematical description of waves; and development of Maxwell's equations with a few applications to the reflection and refraction of light and microwave cavities.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
M. Peterson
Prereq: Intro to Math Methods (PHYS-205).

PHYS-326 Statistical Mechanics and Thermodynamics
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course presents thermodynamic and statistical descriptions of many-particle systems. Topics include classical and quantum ideal gases with applications to paramagnetism; black-body radiation; Bose-Einstein condensation; and the Einstein and Debye solid; the specific heat of solids.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
K. Nordstrom
Prereq: Quantum Mechanical Phenomena (PHYS-250) and Intro to Math Methods (PHYS-205) or permission from department.

PHYS-328 From Lilliput to Brobdingnag: Bridging the Scales Between Science and Engineering
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: The performance of many engineered devices is dependent on macroscopic factors (pressure, temperature, flow, conductivity). As a result, engineers often model devices macroscopically considering atomistic level details only through fixed parameters. These parameters do not always capture the full atomistic level picture. More accurate multi-scale approaches for modeling macroscopic properties use basic atomistic level chemistry at key points in larger scale simulations. This course is an introduction to such approaches focusing on fuel cells as a concrete example. Basic scientific principles will be developed along side of basic engineering principles through project/case studies.

Politics

POLIT-104 American Politics
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Offers an overview of the American political system and the theories of those who both celebrate and criticize it. Focuses on the institutions of American politics, including the Constitution, the presidency, Congress, the courts, parties, elections, interest groups, and movements seeking political change. Also includes a theoretical focus: a critical examination of the varieties of liberalism, conservatism, pluralism, and democracy that inform the practice of American politics.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
A. Hilton, C. Pyle, P. Smith

POLIT-106 Comparative Politics
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course provides an introduction to comparative political analysis, one of the four subfields of political science. The primary objective is to help students understand how the 'modern' world, one characterized by the rise of industrialized nation-states, took form and what shape it might take in the post-Cold War era. We will examine how the challenges of economic development, social transformation, and nation-building sparked the emergence of alternatives to 'modernity' characterized by diverse configurations of political institutions and social forces. We will also assess how globalization and the re-emergence of local identities may be redefining our understanding of 'modernity.'
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
C. Fernandez Anderson

POLIT-116 World Politics
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course is a survey of contending approaches to the study of conflict and cooperation in world politics. Examines key concepts—including balance of power, imperialism, collective security, deterrence, and interdependence—with historical examples ranging from the Peloponnesian War to the post-cold war world. Analyzes the emerging world order.

POLIT-118 Introduction to Political Ideas
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course introduces students to the study of political thought, focusing on such concepts as freedom, power, equality, justice, and democracy. Over the course of the semester, students will develop a theoretical vocabulary with which to analyze both the history of political thought and contemporary politics. This course is writing-intensive; students will have the opportunity to rigorously analyze texts and hone their ability to write confidently and effectively.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

POLIT-200 Foundations of Africana Studies
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This reading and writing-intensive course draws upon the intellectual traditions of African American, African, and African diasporic studies in order to explore the connections and disjunctures among people of African descent. While the course pays attention to national, regional, and historical contexts, it asks this question: what do African descended people have in common and when and how are their experiences and interests different?
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
Other attributes: Writing-Intensive

POLIT-208 Chinese Politics
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the politics of contemporary China. Beginning with an assessment of the origins of the Chinese Revolution, the course then examines core institutions and events in the People's Republic, including the Great Leap Forward, Cultural Revolution, post-Mao reforms, and the Tiananmen Incident. In addition, the course analyzes the changing nature of state-society relations, the emergence of new social and political identities, and China's role in the international arena.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
C. Chen
Advisory: Politics 106 recommended.

POLIT-209 Contemporary Russian Politics
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Russia was transformed by communist revolution into a global superpower that challenged the dominant ideologies of liberalism and nationalism. It became a powerful alternative to capitalism. In 1991, this imperial state collapsed and underwent an economic, political, and cultural revolution. What explains the Soviet Union's success for 70 years and its demise in 1991? What sort of country is Russia as it enters the twenty-first century? Is it a democracy? How has Russia's transformation affected ordinary people and Russia's relationship to the West?

POLIT-211 Classical Political Thought
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course traces the development of western political thought from classical Greece through medieval Europe. We will pay particular attention to the ways major writers characterized the relationship between the individual and community; the roles knowledge, reason, emotion, and rhetoric play in political life; the link between gender and citizenship; and the various forms political community can take.

POLIT-216 Middle East Politics
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Introduction to the cultures and politics of the Middle East. Includes the situation of the region at the time of the dissolution of the Ottoman Empire; the emergence of independent states before and after World War II; the rise of Arab and Zionist nationalism; the Arab-Israeli conflicts; and the superpower rivalry and its influence on regional politics. Other topics include the Iranian revolution, the domestic and regional role of Islamic movements, and the political economy of oil.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
S. Hashmi
Prereq: POLIT-116.

POLIT-224 The United States and Iran
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Explores America's relationship with Iran from the end of World War II to the present. Examines America's close ties to the Shah and the political, social, and economic causes of the Iranian revolution, with emphasis on the role of Shi'ite Islam. Concludes with analysis of politics and society in the Islamic Republic under Khomeini and his successors.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
S. Hashmi
Prereq: POLIT-116.

POLIT-226 The United States, Israel, and the Arabs
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Surveys the constants and variables in U.S. foreign policy toward Israel and the Arabs since the end of World War II to the present. Analysis of domestic determinants of U.S. policy, including lobbies, ideology, and the international system. Consideration of U.S. policy in the Arab-Israeli conflict, intra-Arab disputes, and the Gulf War.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
S. Hashmi
Prereq: POLIT-116.

POLIT-228 East Asian Politics
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the dramatic rise of East Asia in the post-World War II period in comparative perspective. The focus will be on understanding the process and consequences of rapid development in Japan, Korea, Taiwan, and China. Assesses the strengths and weaknesses of the 'East Asian model of development' and explores how different developmental experiences and policies affect state-society relations, social and political identities, and prospects for peace and cooperation throughout the region.

POLIT-229 Propaganda and War

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

Description: This course explores propaganda techniques and mobilization for war. Drawing on recent comparative and historical examples, we will analyze war mobilization strategies and different forms of propaganda, its control, and dissemination from a variety of cross-cultural perspectives. We will address the following questions: Why is propaganda necessary? What is the media’s relationship to state propaganda efforts? How do states control information in an age of ‘citizen journalists’ armed with cell phones? How do activists and protest movements contest state propaganda? We conclude by examining key trends in the development of mass media forms and technologies and their implications for global politics.

POLIT-230 Resistance and Revolution

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4

Description: This course examines the dynamics and causes of protest, rebellion, and revolution. Topics include the three 'great' revolutions - the French, Russian, and Chinese - as well as such social science theories as moral economy, rational choice, resource mobilization, political culture, and relative deprivation. Attention will be devoted to peasant protest and elite responses to resistance movements. The objectives of the class are to familiarize students with alternative explanations of revolutionary change and to provide students with an opportunity to link general theories to specific case studies.

POLIT-232 Introduction to International Political Economy

Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4

Description: This course examines the theory and practice of the politics of international trade and economics, focusing on the spread of global trade, global financial flows, causes and effects of globalization and migration, and the intersection of trade and environmental issues. Major themes include tensions between the developed and developing world, various development strategies, and the impact of a rising China on both the developed North American and European economies and developing economies.

Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

C. Mitchell

Prereq: POLIT-116.

POLIT-233 Introduction to Feminist Theory

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4

Description: This course explores the overlapping dualities of the feminine and the masculine, the private and the public, the home and the world. We examine different forms of power over the body; the ways gender and sexual identities reinforce or challenge the established order; and the cultural determinants of 'women's emancipation.' We emphasize the politics of feminism, dealing with themes that include culture, democracy, and the particularly political role of theory and on theoretical attempts to grasp the complex ties and tensions between sex, gender, and power.

POLIT-234 Black Metropolis: From MLK to Obama

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4

Description: Black Metropolis refers to the more than half a million black people jammed into a South Side ghetto in Chicago at mid-twentieth century that featured an entrenched black political machine, a prosperous black middle class, and a thriving black cultural scene in the midst of massive poverty and systemic inequality. This course will follow the political, economic, and cultural developments of what scholars considered to be the typical urban community in postwar United States. We will examine such topics as Martin Luther King’s failed desegregation campaign; Harold Washington, first black mayor; William Julius Wilson’s urban underclass thesis; and the rise of Barack Obama. POLIT-242 Oil and Water Don’t Mix: Geopolitics, Energy, and the Environment

Description: Following the collapse of the USSR and the Gulf War, Central Asia and the Caucasus became new centers of geopolitical rivalry. The new states are a source of energy (oil and gas) for Western powers and a vital transit corridor between Eastern Europe and China. While a new ‘Great Game’ is being fought between Western, Far Eastern, and Middle Eastern powers for control over energy pipelines, the region is threatened by environmental catastrophe and water shortages. Is the new oil industry a source of prosperity or an instrument for exploitation, corruption, and instability? How important are the new states to the West’s strategic energy interests?

POLIT-243 Introduction to Latin American Politics
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Why has Latin America struggled to achieve democratic stability? Why is it the region of the world with the highest economic inequality? How have the periodic political and economic crises allowed for creative experimentation with policy alternatives to create a more equal and sustainable social order? This course examines the political and economic evolution and transformation of Latin America from the time of the European conquest until these very days, with a particular focus on the 20th century. It will also analyze how these general trends took specific shapes in each of the 7 countries studied: Mexico, Argentina, Brazil, Cuba, Chile, Venezuela and Bolivia.

Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors
Advisory: Politics 106 (Comparative Politics) is recommended.

POLIT-246 American Political Thought
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course explores limited government, popular sovereignty, representative institutions, checks and balances, republicanism, liberty, equality, democracy, pluralism, liberalism, and conservatism, and how these concepts have developed during three centuries of American politics and in contrast to European thought. The focus is not on the writings of the 'great thinkers' but on the 'habits of thought' of the American people and on ideas implicit in laws and institutions that affect the allocation of authority and power within the constitutional order.

Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
C. Pyle
Prereq: POLIT-104, or HIST-270, or HIST-170 and HIST-171.

POLIT-247 International Law and Organization
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course presents international norms and institutions for regulating conflict, including promoting economic well-being, protecting human rights, exploring and using outer space, and controlling exploitation and pollution of the oceans. The course considers international agreements, problems of lawmaking, interpretation, and compliance; nationality and the status of foreigners and their investments; the principle of self-determination; and interests of postcolonial states as they impinge on the international legal order.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

POLIT-248 Topics in Politics

POLIT-248GR Topics in Politics: 'Grassroots Democracy’
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The central focus of this course is to explore theory and organizing practices of grassroots democracy. Each week the seminar will move back and forth between historical and theoretical reflection and reflection upon the experience of organizing communities. The course is motivated by citizens acting together to generate responses to the most challenging questions and issues of the present.

POLIT-248PM Topics in Politics: 'Parties and Movements in American Politics’
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course explores the relationship between political parties and social movements in the United States. Through a historical examination of abolitionist, labor, civil rights, and other movements, we will analyze how formal electoral politics intersects with the more fluid politics of protest and direct action. We will look at how parties have grown out of, allied with, co-opted or eschewed movements for social change. Students will develop a clear analytical sense of the conditions that facilitate successful movement-party dynamics, concluding with critical assessments concerning the impact of the Tea Party, Occupy Wall Street, and Black Lives Matter.

Prereq: POLIT-104.

POLIT-252 Urban Politics
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course draws on both historical and contemporary sources to address critical issues and problems facing cities. Topics are organized around the following questions: How have cities come to take their shape and character over time? How are economic and social inequalities mapped onto the urban landscape? How are differences of race, class, and gender negotiated through urban institutions and community struggles?
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
P. Smith
Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors
Advisory: Introductory course in American history or social sciences.

POLIT-254 Social Housing
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course compares social housing in the Netherlands with public housing in the United States.
States. It will examine the historical, social and political factors in the development of social housing in the U.S. and the Netherlands. In particular it will focus on the role of class, ethnicity, race, and immigration on the evolution of social housing policy in both countries. It will examine the more recent impact of neoliberalism on both countries' ability to provide affordable housing to its citizens. Students will engage in community-based research on affordable housing in cities within the Pioneer Valley. We will share our research with affordable housing organizations as well as municipal planning offices.

Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
Other attributes: Community-Based Learning

Notes: This class will feature guest lectures via Skype from social housing providers and policy experts from the Netherlands.

POLIT-255PA Gender and Power in Global Contexts: 'The Politics of Abortion in the Americas’
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The Americas have been characterized by the strictness of their laws in the criminalization of abortion. In some countries abortion is criminalized even when the woman’s life is at risk. What role have women's movements played in advancing abortion rights? What has mattered most for a movement’s success, its internal characteristics or external forces? Has the way the movement framed its demands mattered? How has the political influence of the Catholic and Evangelical churches influenced policies in this area? We will answer these questions by exploring examples from across the region through primary and secondary sources.

POLIT-255RP Gender and Power in Global Contexts: 'Sexual and Reproductive Rights in Latin America’
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Since the 1990s Latin America has witnessed increasing societal and political debates over sexual and reproductive rights. Issues such as abortion, gay marriage, transgender rights, sexual education and assisted reproductive technology have risen to the top of some countries' agendas after decades of silence, taboos, and restrictive or non-existent legislation. The course aims to provide a survey of sexual and reproductive rights in the region as a whole while at the same time highlighting the disparities that exist within it. The course analyzes the multiple factors behind the current policies focusing particularly on the role of women and LGBT movements advancing more liberal legislation.

POLIT-264 Russia, the West, and Putinism
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Since its creation at the beginning of the twentieth century, the Soviet Union dominated the minds of Western foreign policymakers. None of the West's policies in the Middle East, the Third World, Europe, or China after World War II can be understood without the study of Soviet foreign policy. We will examine the development of Soviet foreign policy since 1917 and, following the collapse of the USSR in 1991, the role played by Russia and the former Soviet republics in the far more complex and multipolar "New World Order.

POLIT-269 Social Movements: Theory and Praxis
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Why do people mobilize? When do they do so? Why and how do they create movements? Are social movements successful paths towards social change? If so, under which conditions? This course will review the main theories of social movements and use them to analyze cases from around the world. Some of the cases we will take upon are the Arab Spring, the American civil rights movement, women and indigenous movements in Latin America, the anti-apartheid movement in South Africa, and the environmental movement in Europe.

POLIT-270 American Foreign Policy
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this examination of American foreign policy since 1898, topics include the emergence of the United States as a global power, its role in World War I and II, its conduct and interests in the cold war, and its possible objectives in a post-cold war world. Particular attention is paid to the relationship between domestic interests and foreign policy, the role of nuclear weapons in determining policy, and the special difficulties in implementing a democratic foreign policy. See http://www.mtholyoke.edu/acad/intrel/afps98.htm for a more detailed description.

Prereq: POLIT-116.

POLIT-272 Trade and American Foreign Policy
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Trade policy has been central to American political debates since independence. Whether free trade, fair trade, or protectionism is best for America has been hotly debated for centuries. Decisions to trade or not to trade have also long been linked to other domestic and foreign policy issues including abolitionism and the Civil War, securing allies in the Cold War, building peaceful relations with China, and cementing U.S. global leadership. This course examines the shifting coalitions arguing over U.S. trade policy, the shifting goals they seek to accomplish via U.S. trade policy, and the international effects of U.S. trade.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
C. Mitchell
Prereq: POLIT-116.

POLIT-278 U.S. Elections
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Elections have been at the core of both the vitality and fragility of American democracy. Free and responsive government is hard to imagine without elections, yet U.S. elections suffer from low turnout, increasing polarization, invisible money, gender inequality, partisan gerrymandering, and new forms of voter disenfranchisement. This course offers an overview of American elections by placing them in historical and comparative perspective. We will look at how the institutions that structure the electoral process developed, how they differ from those in other democratic countries, and how they shape the behavior of candidates, voters, and activists, and influence the policymaking process.

POLIT-302 Urban Policy
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Gentrification, unemployment, crime, failing schools, disinvestment, mass incarceration--what comes to mind when you think of the inner city? In response to a constrained fiscal environment, cities have increasingly adopted neoliberal policy approaches to address seemingly intractable urban problems. The seminar will study current research to assess the political and economic impact of this neoliberal policy regime on housing, education, and public safety.

POLIT-305 International Society
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: An intensive reading course in theories of international society: the idea that states and peoples are or should be linked to each other through a web of shared values and institutions. It focuses on the work of Hedley Bull, Immanuel Kant, and John Rawls. How did these three men understand international society? What are or should be the values and institutions that give rise to it and support it? What implications do their visions of international society have for war and peace, state sovereignty, religion, democracy, capitalism, distributive justice, human rights, and international law? What responses and criticisms have their arguments engendered?

POLIT-312 Silk Roads: Ancient and Modern Highways across the Eurasian Continent
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The silk roads were ancient transportation and trade links that wound their way across the Eurasian continent, or by sea through the South China Sea and Indian Ocean, to Europe. They carried silk, glass, jade, and moved religions and literatures across continents. Today, the new silk roads carry oil, gas, drugs, capitalism, and immigrants seeking better lives. We will investigate the parallels between the ancient and modern silk roads and the contemporary strategic, cultural, and economic significance of these new highways, which link China, Central Asia, the Middle East, South Asia, and Europe.

POLIT-327 Transitional Justice
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: As societies emerge from authoritarian rule or civil war, they face the daunting task of engaging past human rights violations. States have a myriad of options at their disposal, ranging from granting blanket amnesties to hosting complex trials and truth commissions. In making these decisions, new leaders face pressures from former authoritarian actors, victims' groups, and international organizations. This course analyzes the problems facing societies with past human rights violations, the numerous options they have at their disposal to engage these abuses, and the political, legal, economic, and moral ramifications of each choice. Most importantly, it asks—does transitional justice work?
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
A. Reiter
Restrictions: This course is open to Juniors and Seniors.
Prereq: 8 credits in Politics.

POLIT-333 Just War and Jihad: Comparative Ethics of War and Peace
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Why do we moralize about war? When is war justified, if ever? What restraints should soldiers accept? This course examines these issues within the context of Western and Islamic thought. Study of the origins and evolution of both traditions is combined with consideration of important topics of current concern, such as intervention, weapons of mass destruction, and women and war.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
S. Hashmi
Prereq: 8 credits in Politics.

POLIT-341 Political Islam
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course covers Islamic responses to European imperialism in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, particularly the emergence of Islamic modernism; the growth of Islamic movements in the Arab world and South Asia and their responses to secular nationalism and socialism; and a survey of the ends to which religion is applied in three types of regimes: patrimonial Saudi Arabia, revolutionary Iran, and military-authoritarian Pakistan.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
S. Hashmi
Prereq: 8 credits in Politics.

POLIT-342 Islamic Political Thought
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines Islamic political thought from the origins of Islam to the present. It considers how Muslim thinkers over the past 14 centuries have understood such fundamental political concepts as the state, leadership, and law. The seminar also includes modern Muslim reflections on political concepts of Western origin, such as democracy, nationalism, and civil society.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives
S. Hashmi
Prereq: POLIT-116 and 8 credits in Politics.

POLIT-343 Law and Religion
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course explores the relationship between law and religion through a comparative study of eight countries: the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Egypt, Iran, Pakistan, Israel, and India. It focuses on the role of religion in the constitutional law of these countries, both in the text of constitutional documents and in judicial interpretation of these texts. Starting with an analysis of the religion clauses in the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, the seminar explores questions relating to the separation of religion and state, religious liberty, and the proper role of courts in negotiating societal disputes over religion.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
S. Hashmi
Prereq: 8 credits in Politics.
POLIT-350 Revolutions
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: By the 1980s, after the failure of Marxist revolutions, scholars and politicians declared that "history" and with it, the age of revolution was over. From now on, they said, all states will move toward the model of market capitalism. But the last decade of the 20th century and the first fifteen years of the 21st century have shown that history, and with it, revolution, is far from over. We will look at the American and Russian revolutions, at Nazism, the Iranian revolution of 1979, Eastern Europe in 1989, the 'colored revolutions,' and the Arab Spring. Revolutions are still with us, and we will study why.

Prereq: 8 credits in politics, international relations, or Russian and Eurasian studies.

POLIT-353 The Politics of Work
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This seminar explores the contentious relationship between work and politics. The focus will be on workplace dynamics and how technological change, gender, methods of labor organization, and management philosophy affect the way in which authority is structured and perpetuated. The experiences of such regions as the United States, Japan, and China will also be used to shed light on the future of labor and work in an age of increasing globalization.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
C. Chen
Restrictions: This course is open to Juniors and Seniors.

POLIT-356 Black Migrations
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This seminar is a comparative examination of the migration of African-descended people within and to the United States. In succession, it looks at the original African diaspora through the Atlantic slave trade; the Great Migration of African Americans from the South; the immigration to the U.S. of African-descended people from the West Indies; and last, the movement of Africans from the continent to the United States since 1965 when immigration laws became more inclusive. We will evaluate the process of African Americanization for each new migratory group in all of its cultural and political ramifications. Course material includes articles, books, films, novels, and guest speakers.

POLIT-357 War and Peace in South Asia
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Rising inequality, political instability, and radicalism mark South Asia -- a region of contested histories, ideologies, and territories. We will explore the history and causes of enduring conflicts such as Kashmir and the wars in Afghanistan, separatist movements in Pakistan, India, and Sri Lanka, and potential conflicts over scarce water and energy resources. We will conclude with analysis of the role of external powers, for example, China and the U.S. in South Asia, and assess the prospects for peace in the region.

Restrictions: This course is open to Juniors and Seniors.
Prereq: 8 credits from Politics.

POLIT-358 Justice: Theory and Practice
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course explores various theories of justice, examining the most dominant approaches to the subject within modern and contemporary political theory, as well as the relation of justice to democracy and questions of identity, recognition, and inclusion. The course will also focus on the implications of those theories for political, social, and economic institutions by offering students a problem-based learning environment in which they will work together to bring theoretical insights to bear on actual political problems.

Restrictions: This course is open to Juniors and Seniors.
Prereq: 8 credits in the department.

POLIT-359 Democratization and Civil Society in East Asia
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the dramatic emergence of democratic institutions and civil society in East Asia. The primary aim of the class is to help students understand and analyze the process of democratic unfolding in Japan, Korea, and Taiwan. We will also evaluate China’s recent, albeit limited experiments with democratic practices. We will begin by contrasting Western perspectives of democracy with both traditional and more contemporary Asian understandings of democracy. We will then focus on the actual processes of democratic consolidation in each of the cases, especially the developments that precipitated political crisis and ultimately, political change.

POLIT-364 Human Rights Abuses and Accountability Mechanisms in the Southern Cone of Latin America
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: During the 1960s and 1970s military coups brought authoritarian regimes to power in the Southern Cone (Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Uruguay). Human rights movements emerged demanding information about victims of torture, executions and disappearances which became the way military regimes attempted to eliminate dissent. What accounts for the different role these movements in the transition and consolidation of democracy and the rule of law? Did they take part to the same extent in the design and implementation of accountability mechanisms to prosecute those responsible for the abuses? We will answer these questions through the analysis of academic readings, movies, and primary sources.

POLIT-365 Ethics and International Relations
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Do ethical considerations matter in international relations? Should they? These questions are examined from the perspective of Western writers on these specific issues: just war, intervention, human rights, weapons of mass destruction, and distributive justice. The course also considers challenges to the international system posed by the critiques and responses of non-Western states and peoples.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
S. Hashmi
Prereq: POLIT-116.

POLIT-366 International Migration
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines migration and transnational processes from a comparative perspective. It focuses on the relationship between globalization and international migration, with special attention to transnational networks and diaspora politics. We will explore major theories, forms, and patterns of migration in global politics; the involvement of diaspora organizations in the politics of host and home states; and the implications of migration and refugee flows for state sovereignty, national identity, and citizenship. We will conclude by analyzing the key debates and framing of immigration policies and models of citizenship in Europe and the United States. Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

POLIT-367 Decision Making
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: On decision making, and the pathologies of decision making, in American politics. When, and to what extent, can we say that a particular policy decision is the result of rational choice, institutional processes, pluralistic pressures, or other forces? When are individual or collective decisions likely to be marred by 'groupthink,' selective attention, or self-deception? To what extent, if at all, may collective decisions be considered rational or moral? When are challenges to authority, or to dominant opinion, likely to make a difference?

POLIT-369 Black Radicalism
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The struggles and ideas of transatlantic black radicals have changed the ways we think and study -- through the formation of Africana/African-American/Black-Studies -- and the ways in which we express thoughts and ideas -- through culture and politics. In this seminar, we will study the interdisciplinary history of black radicalism in the 20th century in the United States, the Caribbean, and Africa. This interdisciplinary history is animated by a central debate over the role of black internationalism, if any, in domestic black radical thought and action in the United States, the Caribbean, and Africa.

POLIT-373 The Politics of Transformation in China and India
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This seminar provides a structured comparison of two 'emerging giants,' China and India. Interdisciplinary in scope, the class draws upon various approaches and frameworks to analyze the economic, social, and political development of the two countries. Topics include the impact of market-based reforms and migration, demands for representation and increased political participation, nationalism, environmental degradation, and human capital. We will conclude with a focus on China-India relations and their aspirations for great power status in Asia and beyond. Students will develop and refine 'real world' skill sets through the writing of policy memos, simulations, and formal presentations.

POLIT-380 Nationalism in Global Politics
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This seminar explores nationalist ideologies and movements in global politics. We will examine the different--and contested--conceptions of nationalism, the relationship of nationalism to state-building and modern warfare, and the sources of ethnic conflict and political violence. The course will conclude by analyzing the role of nationalism in shaping the foreign policy of “rising” powers like China and India. Case studies from Europe, Asia and the Middle East will be selected for their contemporary relevance.

POLIT-382 Global Capitalism and Its Critiques
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Beyond the immediate debate about the political and economic dynamics of the global economy is a centuries-long conversation about the social, political, and economic consequences of a capitalist global economy and its potential variants and alternatives. This course will engage with this conversation by reading major thinkers both within and outside of the West who seek to alterately defend, critique, or overturn the global economic order, including Smith, Keynes, Marx, Polanyi, and their intellectual followers. Our goal will be to explore both the intellectual conversation and how it both shapes and explains the political and economic struggles over the global liberal economic order.

POLIT-384 Ending War and Securing the Peace: Conflict Mediation and Resolution in the 21st Century
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: How do we end political violence and achieve peace? This course focuses on the context for negotiation and bargaining strategies, including what types of actors are involved in negotiations, the contours of the mediation environment, the timing of intervention and talks, the use of leverage to get warring parties to the table, and the transformation of processes across multiple stages from initial mediation to implementation to enforcement. The course also examines several peacemaking strategies in depth, including resource sharing, territorial autonomy and partitions, elections and powersharing agreements, refugee crisis management, and demobilization and reintegration programs.

POLIT-387 Advanced Topics in Political Theory

POLIT-387CY Advanced Topics in Politics: 'Cyberpolitics'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: For many, the "cyber-revolution" has fundamentally altered all aspects of human existence through the creation of a new space of interaction: cyberspace. This course asks whether and to what extent cyberspace has revolutionized the nature of international politics. Are traditional understandings of sovereignty, deterrence, and diplomacy bunk? Rather than engaging in speculation, this course will cover the history of the development of both cyberspace and the beliefs that it will revolutionize politics. By examining the distance between speculation and reality this course will provide a grounded understanding of the effects of the "cyber-revolution" on international politics.
POLIT-387PD Advanced Topics in Politics: 'Other Political Dreams'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines dreams of other politics, trying to recognize what is distinctive in a diverse set of traditions beyond their resistance to liberal-democracy's entwinement with contemporary capitalism. Spanning anarchism, Afro-pessimism and Afro-futurism, and the #BlackLivesMatter movement, we will examine political actions and thought that do not identify themselves as democratic and even define themselves as anti-democratic in order to name politics they aspire towards. Special attention will be given the picture of collective belonging and action that emerges in these works along with the techniques of figuring these visions and of gathering community around them.

POLIT-387SC Advanced Topics in Politics: 'Why Is There No Socialism in the United States'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: In the aftermath of the Great Recession, Occupy Wall Street, and Senator Bernie Sanders's primary campaign, socialism has entered the mainstream of American politics, giving rise to questions concerning why the US can't be more like, say, Denmark. But while the question of why there is no socialism in the US may be on the minds of many, the puzzle is not new. This course will examine the long history of socialist politics in the United States while analyzing why it never established roots in the American system. Drawing comparisons with other advanced democracies, this course will explore what socialism has meant in the American context and what factors have shaped its minority status.

POLIT-391 Pivotal Political Ideas

POLIT-391CP Pivotal Political Ideas: 'Capitalism II'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: After reviewing the classic defense of capitalism as an engine of freedom, progress, and productivity, we will examine major shifts in the critique of capitalism from the early 19th to the early 21st century. This critical conceptual history will range over successive claims that capitalism foments labor exploitation and class inequality, imperialism, instrumentalism, the commodification of culture, the privatization of the commons, and the re-making of subjectivities to suit market imperatives. The course will conclude with Pope Francis's charge that the global capitalist system endangers 'whatever is fragile, like the environment' and devours everything 'in the way of increased profits.' Is Francis right, and... if so, what are possible cures for these ills?

POLIT-391DT Pivotal Political Ideas: 'Democratic Theory'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Today democracy is seen as the only legitimate regime type, but there is very little consensus about what democracy refers to. This course will explore competing understandings of democracy and its relationship to state institutions and laws. Students will be introduced to contemporary debates over the normative basis of democracy and difficulties of democratic practice and citizenship. Among the questions we will explore are: what is the relationship between liberalism and democracy? Do rights represent the beginning or the end of democratic citizenship? Can democracy exist within a government or does it take form in opposition to it?

POLIT-391RE Pivotal Political Ideas: 'Reparations and the Politics of Repair'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will examine arguments for reparations for slavery with an eye towards understanding what withholding and extending reparations have meant for American democracy and citizenship. We will contextualize arguments for reparations within a larger conversation about repairing democratic norms, institutions, and social conditions within recent democratic theory. Together we will investigate what historical and ongoing injustices and inequalities reparations are meant to repair, how reparations would address those harms, and how arguments for reparations have mobilized social activists on both sides of the question. Our readings will span history, legal studies, politics, literature and the arts and arguments for reparations to be paid by the American state down to institutions such as corporations, universities, and other jurisdictions.

Psychology

PSYCH-100 Introduction to Psychology
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: How do we make decisions, form attachments, and learn a language? Can we inherit schizophrenia? Why are we fearful of some situations and not others? What factors influence the way we form attitudes or develop prejudices? This course addresses such questions to provide an overview of current research in psychology.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
M. Breen, K. Haydon

PSYCH-201 Statistics
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Statistical procedures are powerful tools for analyzing and interpreting findings and are necessary for accurate reading and understanding of research findings. This course provides an introduction to the most frequently encountered techniques for describing data and making inferences in psychological research. A variety of computer applications are used.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
J. Schwartz, J. Tawa
Prereq: A 100-level course in Psychology or Neuroscience 100.; Coreq: PSYCH-201L.

PSYCH-204 Research Methods in Psychology
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course provides an introduction to the skills necessary for becoming good producers and consumers of psychological research. Students learn to develop research questions, survey related literature, design rigorous and ethically sound studies, and collect, analyze, and interpret quantitative and qualitative data. Students build on their computer skills relevant for psychological research and learn to read and critique original empirical journal articles. The course culminates in an original, collaborative research project, a final paper, and an oral presentation.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

Restrictions: Course limited to sophomores, juniors and seniors
Prereq: PSYCH-201, STAT-240, or STAT-242.; Coreq: PSYCH-204L.
Advisory: Students must take statistics (PSYCH-201 or STAT-240 or STAT-242) before enrolling in this course.

PSYCH-210 Social Psychology
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course covers a range of information within social psychology, including theory, research, and applied contexts. Areas of interest will include self and social perception, attitudes, stereotypes, prejudice, discrimination, group dynamics, interpersonal attraction and relationships, among others.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
C. Flanders
Prereq: A 100 level psychology course.

PSYCH-212 Individuals and Organizations
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course focuses on individual and small-group behavior in the organizational setting. The class will focus on: (1) understanding human behavior in an organizational context; (2) understanding of oneself as an individual contributor and/or leader within an organization, and ways to contribute to organizational change; (3) intergroup communication and conflict management; and (4) diversity and organizational climate.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

PSYCH-213 Psychology of Racism
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: How do the theories of race and racism correlate with the lived experiences of people of color? In what ways are whites affected by a system that privileges whiteness? This course will explore the mind, behavior, and impact of racism on targeted and privileged racial groups and the subsequent movements of liberation from historical, conceptual, intrapersonal, and interpersonal levels. We will mine the subjective experiences of the authors, looking both for damage and resilience, and we will use this data to help us understand racism’s impact on the psyches of those whom it targets and benefits.

PSYCH-217 Psychology of Human Sexuality
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course is an introduction to the psychological study of human sexuality. We will take a psychobiosocial perspective in this course, covering topics such as reproductive anatomy and physiology, sexual response, sexually transmitted infections, contraceptive choices, pregnancy and birth, attraction and dating, love, sexual and relational communication, and consent. The goals of the course are to have students develop a strong understanding of human sexual biology, identity, behavior, and health, to understand how each of these areas is impacted by social context, and to engage with current research in the field.

PSYCH-240 Sensation and Perception
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: The act of taking in (sensation) and making sense of (perception) information from the world around us is a core element of the human experience. Indeed, these processes form both the boundary and conduit between an individual and the broader world. This course examines the neural and cognitive mechanisms that allow us to convert different wavelengths of light, changing vibrations in the air, floating chemicals, heat, pressure, and other stimuli into a unified representation of reality -- and all the interesting things that happen when those mechanisms get tricked or disrupted!
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
A. Fitzroy
Prereq: PSYCH-100.

PSYCH-241 Cognitive Psychology
Offered: Fall and Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Cognition encompasses a range of phenomena that define our mental lives. This course considers empirical investigations and theoretical accounts of cognitive issues, including learning and memory, creativity and problem solving, decision making, attention, consciousness, and language.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
The department
Prereq: A 100-level course in psychology.

PSYCH-246 Cognitive Neuroscience
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: Cognitive psychologists investigate the features and functions of the human mind through behavioral techniques; neuroscientists explore the physiology of the human brain. Cognitive Neuroscience lies at the intersection of these disciplines, and asks questions like: How are memories represented in the brain? Is our brain prepared to learn language and if so, how? How does the average human brain still outperform most face recognition software? This course explores the cognitive and neural processes that support vision, attention, language, memory, and music. It introduces basic neuroanatomy, functional imaging techniques, and behavioral measures of cognition.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
M. Breen
Prereq: PSYCH-100 or NEURO-100.
Notes: This course counts in the cognitive or biological area of the psychology major.

PSYCH-253 Brain, Behavior, and Immunology
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Why do repeated concussions increase the risk of developing depression? Why does that approaching cold hold off until finals week is over then hit like a freight train? When you stand to give a presentation, why does your mouth go dry, perspiration bead on your skin, and your heart start racing? These questions can be answered by the intricate relationship between the nervous and immune systems. This course will introduce the basic biology of these systems and demonstrate how they interact with each other and our environment to control our mood and behavior. "Stress" will be highlighted throughout the course as an example of brain, behavior, and immunology working together.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
J. Church
Prereq: PSYCH-100 or NEURO-100.

PSYCH-254 Psychopharmacology
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Psychopharmacology focuses on the impact that drugs (both illicit and prescription) have on the brain, neurocircuitry, and behavior. Students will explore the underlying neurotransmitter systems of the brain and discover how substances influence nervous system function including the experience of pain, sleep, emotional states, motivation, addiction, and mental health. The course will bridge concepts in chemistry, biology, psychology, and neuroscience by highlighting major drug classes and their underlying mechanisms of action. Additional Discussions will focus on the economic, social, and political aspects of the drug market, as well as ethics and legalities of the drug industry.

 Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

 Prereq: PSYCH-100 or NEURO-100.

 PSYCH-256 Hormones and Behavior

 Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4

 Description: Does the idea of Finals Week stress you out? Have you ever felt hungry or thirsty? Is our biology to blame when people cheat on their partners? From mental health and hunger to sexual motivation and aggression, our hormones dictate many of our basic choices and ultimately control how we interact with our world. This course will explore how hormones communicate with our brain to influence behaviors such as sexual attraction and reproduction, parental care, and social behavior. Special emphasis will be placed on the underlying biology and role of the nervous system in regulating hormone levels.

 PSYCH-310AP Laboratory in Social Psychology: 'Community-Based Participatory Action Research'

 Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

 Description: In this course we will apply social psychological research practices to understand a social problem and work toward promoting positive social change. Specifically, we will use community-based participatory action research principles to investigate community concerns related to sexual and mental health, or community-identified pathways to promoting sexual and mental well-being. Students will develop a research project in partnership with community stakeholders, collect and analyze data, and produce a final product that is based on community priorities and is useful for community partners.

 Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

 Other attributes: Community-Based Learning

 C. Flanders

 Prereq: PSYCH-200 or PSYCH-204.

 PSYCH-319 Seminar in Social Psychology

 PSYCH-319GS Seminar in Social Psychology: 'Gender and Sexual Minority Health'

 Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4

 Description: This course is a critical overview and investigation of health as it relates to the experiences of gender and sexual minority people. We will begin with exploring theoretical understandings of health and marginalization, and use those as frameworks to examine various domains of health. Areas of interest will include mental health, sexual and reproductive health, substance use, disability, and issues related to body size and image. We will end by looking at other structural issues that affect gender and sexual minority health, such as access to care, health education, and health policy.

 PSYCH-319RA Seminar in Social Psychology: 'Theories in Race Relations'

 Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4

 Description: In this seminar course we will examine theory and research on racial group relations. While most theory on race relations has been framed within a Black-White paradigm, in this course, we will pay particular attention to relations between minority groups existing within a context of White sociopolitical power. We will examine social, political, cultural, and psychological perspectives on the causes of prejudice between racial groups, as well as theory and research that promotes healthy group relations and solidarity between oppressed groups. Classes will include some didactic lecturing, but will emphasize discussion based and experiential learning.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences; Multicultural Perspectives

Prereq: PSYCH-200 or PSYCH-204.

PSYCH-326 Laboratory in Personality and Abnormal Psychology

PSYCH-326BH Laboratory in Personality and Abnormal Psychology: 'Behavioural Methods for Social and Intergroup Psychology'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Relatively recent technological and methodological developments offer psychologists an opportunity to study social and intergroup behavior with greater sophistication than ever before. In this lab course, students will complete a semester long group research project that implements one of four possible innovative behavioral methods: Implicit association tests, social network analysis, physiological assessment, or a virtual world research method. Group projects will culminate in a presentation of their research to the class and a brief written report of findings that will be structured as a professional conference presentation submission.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
J. Tawa
Prereq: PSYCH-200 or PSYCH-204.

PSYCH-329 Seminar in Personality and Abnormal Psychology

PSYCH-330 Lab in Developmental Psychology

PSYCH-330RD Lab in Developmental Psychology: 'Laboratory in Romantic Development: Observational Coding Methodology'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Students will work in teams to code videotaped observations of romantic partners discussing relationship conflicts. Students will learn to code emotion expressions and behavior at the dyadic and individual levels. Course topics include methodological issues such as coding bias, construct validity, and intercoder reliability, as well as empirical research on individual differences in conflict behavior and links between conflict behavior and relationship outcomes. Students will complete individual final research projects to report original quantitative multivariate analyses based on data generated during the course.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

Restrictions: This course is open to Juniors and Seniors.; This course is limited to Psychology or Psychology and Education majors.
Prereq: PSYCH-200 or PSYCH-204.

PSYCH-331 Lab in Early Social and Personality Development
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: In the role of a participant-observer, each student studies the social and personality development of the children in one classroom at the Gorse Children’s Center. Students learn how to articulate developmental changes and individual differences by analyzing detailed observations. Topics include peer relationships, concepts of friendship, emotional development, identity formation, social cognition, and the social and cultural context of development. There is also an emphasis on linking observations of teacher’s support for development in the early childhood classroom to educational policy and advocacy.

PSYCH-338 Lab in Educational Psychology

PSYCH-339 Seminar in Developmental Psychology
PSYCH-339LG Seminar in Developmental Psychology: 'Language and Literacy Development in Early Childhood'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course explores how home and school learning environments influence the development of language and literacy skills of children ages 3-8. It examines situations in which families and schools, although utilizing different languages, dialects, and ways of communicating, can work together to enhance children's language learning. Particular attention is given to children's development of academic language -- the written and spoken language needed to understand and create texts required for success in school.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
J. Jacoby
Prereq: PSYCH-230, PSYCH-233, or PSYCH-241.
Advisory: Prior coursework in developmental psychology, educational psychology, or cognitive psychology required.

PSYCH-339RL Seminar in Developmental Psychology: 'Close Relationships across the Lifespan'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will cover developmental implications of close relationships from infancy through adulthood with a focus on parents, friendships, and romantic partners. The goal is to examine normative developmental processes through a relational lens.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

PSYCH-340 Laboratory in Perception and Cognition

PSYCH-340CL Laboratory in Perception and Cognition: 'Cognition and Literacy'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Adult illiteracy in the U.S. presents an ever-growing challenge. To understand this problem, we will learn various theories of reading. However, since many models of reading are based on data gathered from children, we will also examine how the cognitive abilities of adults are different from those of children. A large component of this class concerns learning the lab techniques associated with assessing reading abilities. In addition, since this is a community-based learning course, each student will become a tutor for an adult enrolled in an area literacy program.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
Other attributes: Community-Based Learning
K. Binder
Prereq: PSYCH-200 or PSYCH-204, and permission of instructor.
Notes: 3 hours per week as a literacy tutor in Springfield is required.

PSYCH-349 Seminar in Perception and Cognition

PSYCH-349AM Seminar in Perception and Cognition: 'Art, Music, and the Brain'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Art and music are a part of all human cultures. Is there something about the human brain that drives us to paint and sing? We will examine how the brain simultaneously processes different aspects of visual and auditory stimuli, ask how this processing may affect the way we do art and music, and explore where these phenomena may occur in the brain. As we engage in discussion and hands-on activities, we will discover the commonalities between the arts and the sciences including practice, experimentation, exploration, innovation, and creativity.

Prereq: At least 8 credits at the 200 level in Psychology, Neuroscience and Behavior, Art History, or Music.

PSYCH-349LT Seminar in Perception and Cognition: 'Language and Thought'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Languages differ in the way they describe the world. For example, the noun for bridge is feminine in German, but masculine in French. Russian has two words for blue, while English has only one. The Piraha (an Amazonian hunter-gatherer tribe) arguably have no number words. In this course, we will be asking to what extent these cross-linguistic differences are reflected in thought. That is, do German speakers think bridges are more feminine than French speakers do? Can Russian speakers discriminate different shades of blue better than English speakers? Can the Piraha count? In exploring these questions, we hope to discover how tightly linked language and thought are.

Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

Prereq: PSYCH-200 or PSYCH-204.
Advisory: A 200-level course in Cognitive Psychology recommended.

PSYCH-350 Lab in Biological Bases of Behavior:

PSYCH-350AN Lab in Biological Bases of Behavior: 'Analyzing Human Brain Signals'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: The most commonly employed techniques in human cognitive neuroscience are electroencephalography (EEG) and functional magnetic resonance imaging (fMRI). These powerful tools complement one another, unlocking insights into the when and where of brain function. Interpreting these signals requires specialized techniques, which can be difficult to learn while conducting your first experiment. This course teaches gold-standard analysis methods for EEG and fMRI data using open-source datasets in MATLAB and Linux environments, preparing students for work in research. Computational skills recommended.

Restrictions: This course is open to Juniors and Seniors.
Prereq: PSYCH-200 or PSYCH-204.

PSYCH-350BN Lab in Biological Bases of Behavior: 'Laboratory in Behavioral Neuroscience'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This intensive laboratory course will train students to use the technical methods and tools commonly used in behavioral neuroscience research. Skills covered will include animal care and handling, use of behavioral assays, pharmacology, and neurosurgical procedures. Students will engage in weekly exercises and hands-on experiments to study the link between brain function and behavioral responses. These preclinical tools will be used to test research questions related to learning and memory, social-emotional responses, and drug-seeking behaviors. After completion of this course, students will have a deeper understanding of the design and implementation of behavioral neuroscience research.

PSYCH-359 Seminar: Biological Bases of Behavior

PSYCH-359CN Seminar: Biological Bases of Behavior: 'Clinical Neuroscience'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: Explore how psychology, neuroscience, and medicine come together to study the etiology and treatment of neuropsychiatric disorders. Students will examine the behavioral features and neurobiology behind various clinical disorders such as Autism, ADHD, Substance Use Disorders, Mood Disorders, Schizophrenia, Anxiety, and Neurodegenerative Diseases. The course will rely on primary research to identify how changes in physiology and biology might manifest in the behaviors that define psychopathology. Students will gain a deeper understanding of clinical and preclinical techniques used to study these disorders while bridging their knowledge of molecular, cellular, and systems neuroscience research.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
Other attributes: Speaking-Intensive
J. Schwartzer
Prereq: PSYCH-200 or PSYCH-204.
Advisory: Neuroscience 100 strongly recommended.

RELIG-103 Introduction to the Hebrew Bible
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course provides a critical introduction to the writings contained in the Hebrew Bible (also known as the Old Testament). It investigates the social and historical context of the ancient Israelites, examines a range of ancient Near Eastern literature, and introduces the principal methods of biblical studies. Participants will read much of the Hebrew Bible as well as select non-Israelite sources. Examples of recent biblical scholarship will provide additional information for better understanding these writings and will present different methods for approaching and interpreting ancient texts.

RELIG-112 Introduction to Judaism
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Judaism is a 3,500-year-old tradition that has developed over time as Jewish communities all over the world creatively interacted with the different cultural and historical milieus in which they lived. This course explores the ways in which Judaism has sought to transform ordinary life into sacred life. What are the ways in which Judaism conceives of God, and what is the meaning of life? What roles do study, prayer, ethics, sex, marriage, family, rituals of the life cycle, and community play in Judaism? These and other questions will be taken up through study of diverse types of religious literature and historical evidence.

RELIG-167 Hinduism: An Introduction
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: A major religious tradition of India, Hinduism is in practice a multiplicity of expressions. This course explores Hinduism's diverse traditions through its history, unifying themes, texts, and popular observances. We will read from the great texts (Ramayana, Mahabharata), learn about gods and goddesses (Krishna, the Great Goddess), and discuss art and ritual. Topics include: body techniques and the material universe (yoga, Tantra); philosophical traditions, concepts (karma, dharma); religious figures (Mirabai); movements (Bhakti). Hinduism's contemporary expressions in India and the West will be considered in social and historical context. Frequent illustration is provided through videos.

RELIG-181 Introduction to African Diaspora Religions
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Over the last century, religionists have labored to discover the meaning of African dispersal beyond the continent and its accompanying spiritual lineages. What theories of encounter sufficiently adjudicate the synthetic religious cultures of African-descended persons in North America, South America, and the Caribbean? What are the cross-disciplinary methodologies that scholars utilize to understand African religious cultures in the Western hemisphere? Firstly, this course will introduce the field of Africana religious studies. This background will inform the second and primary objective of the course: thematizing and exploring West and Central African religious traditions housed in the Americas.

Religion and Politics in Modern India
RELIG-223
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The history of India has been singled out for its complex intermingling of religion and politics. This course will explore the constitution of religious identities in two of India's largest religious communities: Hindu and Muslim. Focusing primarily on the colonial period, we will discuss religious reform movements, communal violence, mass politics, and the partition of the subcontinent into the independent states of India and Pakistan. Throughout we will be interested in the ways that the colonial experience affected the religious thought and practice of Indians. Finally, we will explore the meanings of this history for the postcolonial workings of democracy and secularism in modern India.

Heretics, Martyrs, and Saints
RELIG-225
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Heretics, Martyrs, and Saints investigates how early Christians described holy people as well as their nemeses. It explores how descriptions of martyrs, saints, heretics, demons, and even Satan himself were used to shore up the ever-contested boundaries of Christian orthodoxy and how the depiction of such figures forever changed the trajectory of Christian beliefs and practices. In the course of the semester we will read sources such as a letter from a Christian bishop wanting to be thrown to the lions, the dream journal of a female martyr, Gnostic gospels, wisdom from desert monks, and an ancient exorcism manual.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

RELIG-252 Magic, Prayer, and Sacrifice: Rituals and Why We Do Them
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: From live sacrifice to sacred dances, from pilgrimage to bodily purification, rituals have long been considered a hallmark of religion. Yet, ritual activities are also important to apparently non-religious spheres of life, such as sporting events and political mobilization. This course will examine examples of ritual activity from a range of cultural contexts through the lens of anthropological, sociological, psychological, and religious studies theories of ritual. We will explore the structure of ritual activities, the question of whether rituals have meaning and function for individuals and for societies, and, if so, what those meanings and functions might be.

RELIG 256 What Didn’t Make It in the Bible
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Hundreds of ancient religious texts did not make it into the Hebrew Scripture (aka the Old Testament). This course examines some of these excluded writings. In particular, we will focus on works found among the Apocrypha, the Pseudepigrapha, and the Dead Sea Scrolls. We will read an ancient Harlequin romance, tour heaven and hell, hear of the adventures of fallen angels who sired giants (and taught humans about cosmetics), and learn how the world will end. In critically examining such texts, we will better appreciate the diversity of Judaism, better understand the historical context of early Christianity, and explore the politics behind what did and did not make it into the bible.

RELIG-331AF Advanced Topics in Religion: 'Resist: African American Spiritualities of Dissent'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course seeks to understand how protest fuels the creation and sustenance of black religious movements and novel spiritual systems in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. We will examine the dissentive qualities of selected African American activists, community workers, scholars, spiritual/religious leaders and creative writers. By the end of this course, students will be able to thoughtfully respond to the questions, "What is spirituality?"; "What is dissent?"; and "Has blackness required resistive spiritual communities?"

RELIG-331CH Advanced Topics in Religion: 'Childhood and Children in Religion'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course explores a diversity of religious approaches to the meaning of childhood and the nature of children. We critically examine influential writings, rituals and liturgy, fiction, and other types of literature to understand the construction of childhood as distinctive life stage that entails special rights and responsibilities. We will also examine how gender, power, race, social structures, and economic arrangements produce divergent understandings of what it means to be a child.

RELIG-331DE Advanced Topics in Religion: 'Destroying Art Past and Present'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course, we will investigate the destruction of artworks and monuments for religious or political reasons, called iconoclasm. The seminar addresses the current debates involving the removal and destruction of confederate monuments in the U.S. and responses from government, media, and social critics. Concurrently, we will study key historical moments of iconoclasm ranging from the Byzantine era to the Protestant Reformation and the French Revolution. Studying iconoclasms in different historical periods raises the issue of the power of art in society. Through class discussion, group work, original research, and writing, we will explore how past iconoclasms may inform our understanding of the present. The work also involves an inquiry into art historical methodology as well as approaches from fields such as critical race theory, and a consideration of the role of the art historian in the present debates and social justice movements. RELIG-343 The Sabbath
Description: The practice of a weekly sacred day of rest has organized Jewish life for millennia. In this seminar, students will examine the Sabbath using narrative, folk, and legal primary sources from the biblical, Second Temple, rabbinic, medieval, and modern periods. Key themes include sacred time, cultural identity, and the transformation of religious practice. Experiential learning, and critical thinking about your experiential learning, are integral to this seminar.

RELIG-352 Body and Gender in Religious Traditions
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Do bodies matter in religious traditions? Whose bodies matter? How do they matter? By studying religious body ideals and practices, we examine the possibilities and problems different kinds of bodies have posed in religious traditions. Topics include religious diet, exercise, and dress; monasticism, celibacy, and sexuality; healing rituals, and slavery and violence. We pay special attention to contemporary challenges to problematic body ideals and practices coming from feminist, disability, postcolonial, queer, and trans theorists and activists.

RES-210 Great Books: The Literature of Nineteenth-Century Russia
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: In no other culture has literature occupied the central role it enjoyed in nineteenth-century Russia. Political, social, and historical constraints propelled Russian writers into the roles of witness, prophet, and sage. Yet, far from being limited to the vast, dark 'Big Question' novels of legend, Russian literature offers much humor, lyricism, and fantasy. We will focus on the Russian novel as a reaction to western European forms of narrative and consider the recurring pattern of the strong heroine and the weak hero. Authors will include: Pushkin, Lermontov, Gogol, Turgenev, Tolstoy, Dostoevsky, and Chekhov.
Applies to requirement(s): Humanities

RES-211MM Topics in Twentieth-Century Russian Literature: 'Diabolic Carnival: Bulgakov's Master and Margarita and Its Contexts'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Mephistopheles in Moscow? The Gospel retold? At turns both wildly comic and metaphysically profound, Bulgakov's novel has been a cult classic since its unexpected discovery in 1967. This course will consider Bulgakov's masterpiece together with some of its literary, historical, and social contexts. Additional readings from Goethe, Gogol, E.T.A. Hoffman, Akhmatova, and others.

RES-215 Dostoevsky and the Problem of Evil: The Brothers Karamazov
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Perhaps no other novelist has delved as deeply into the psychological and metaphysical dimensions of evil as the Russian novelist Fyodor Dostoevsky. This course will be devoted to a close reading of Dostoevsky's landmark novel of murderous passion and parricide, The Brothers Karamazov. Why should crime and transgression be a privileged avenue of access into the human interior? How is psychology tied to the metaphysical aspect of human existence? What are the sources of evil—and redemption?

RES-240 Contemporary Russian Politics: From Lenin to Putin
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Russia was transformed by communist revolution into a global superpower that challenged the dominant ideologies of liberalism and nationalism. It became a powerful alternative to capitalism. In 1991, this imperial state collapsed and underwent an economic, political, and cultural revolution. What explains the Soviet Union's success for 70 years and its demise in 1991? What sort of country is Russia as it enters the twenty-first century? Is it a democracy? How has Russia's transformation affected ordinary people and Russia's relationship to the West?

RES-241 Russia, the West, and the Challenge of Putinism
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Since its creation at the beginning of the twentieth century, the Soviet Union dominated the minds of Western foreign policymakers. None of the West’s policies in the Middle East, the Third World, Europe, or China after World War II can be understood without the study of Soviet foreign policy. We will examine the development of Soviet foreign policy since 1917 and, following the collapse of the USSR in 1991, the role played by Russia and Russia and the former Soviet republics in the far more complex and multipolar 'New World Order.' What should U.S. policy be toward the emerging new states of the Baltics, Central Asia, and Caucasia?

RES-242 Oil and Water Don't Mix: Geopolitics, Energy, and the Environment
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Following the collapse of the USSR and the Gulf War, Central Asia and the Caucasus became new centers of geopolitical rivalry. The new states are a source of energy (oil and gas) for Western powers and a vital transit corridor between Eastern Europe and China. While a new "Great Game" is being fought between Western, Far Eastern, and Middle Eastern powers for control over energy pipelines, the region is threatened by environmental catastrophe and water shortages. Is the new oil industry a source of prosperity or an instrument for exploitation, corruption, and instability? How important are the new states to the West’s strategic energy interests?

RES-312 Silk Roads: Ancient and Modern Highways Across the Eurasian Continent
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The silk roads were ancient transportation and trade links that wound their way across the Eurasian continent, or by sea through the South China Sea and Indian Ocean, to Europe. They carried silk, glass, jade, and moved religions and literatures across continents. Today, the new silk roads carry oil, gas, drugs, capitalism, and immigrants seeking better lives. We will investigate the parallels between the ancient and modern silk roads and the contemporary strategic, cultural, and economic significance of these new highways, which link China, Central Asia, the Middle East, South Asia, and Europe.

RES-350 Revolutions
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: By the 1980s, after the failure of Marxist revolutions, scholars and politicians declared that "history" and with it, the age of revolution was over. From now on, they said, all states will move toward the model of market capitalism. But the last decade of the 20th century and the first fifteen years of the 21st century have shown that history, and with it, revolution, is far from over. We will look at the American and Russian revolutions, at Nazism, the Iranian revolution of 1979, Eastern Europe in 1989, the 'colored revolutions,' and the Arab Spring. Revolutions are still with us, and we will study why.

ROMLG-375 Seminar in Romance Languages and Cultures
Description: This interdisciplinary seminar will focus on a comparative study of Romance languages or literatures. Topics will vary from semester to semester. Seminar discussions will be conducted in English, but students wishing to obtain language credit are expected to read works in at least one original language. Papers will be written in either English or the Romance language of the student's choice.

ROMLG-375HE Seminar in Romance Languages and Cultures: 'Heroes & Infidels: Masculine Identity and The Birth of Europe in Medieval Romance Classics'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: In this course we will read the canonical works that have shaped the national identity of European Romance countries such as Spain, France, Italy, Portugal, and Romania: from the medieval Chanson the Roland and Cantar del mio Cid to the early modern Don Quixote, Os Lusíadas, Orlando Furioso, and Mesterul Manole. We will discuss the performed masculinity of heroes, enemies, and mediators at the threshold between worlds. We will employ a decolonial critical approach to the Medieval, to question past and present wars against the infidel and their roles in the shaping of a modern European identity.

ROMLG-375HS Seminar in Romance Languages and Cultures: 'History of Romance Languages'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the structural evolution of Romance languages from Vulgar Latin to contemporary forms. A chronological account will be organized around themes of persistence (inheritance from Latin) and innovation (structural change). We will begin by exploring different theories about linguistic change. Then, using concrete examples, we will analyze the main stages of development of Romance languages by focusing on different features at all linguistic levels and relating them to historical and sociological factors.

Sociology

SOCI-123 Introduction to Sociology
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course uses a sociological framework to examine the nature and structure of modern industrial societies. To identify central trends in society and culture, this course covers several basic themes, such as social inequality and social interaction, that have appeared repeatedly in the works of major social thinkers.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

SOCI-131 The Numbers Game: How Data Shapes and Explains Our Social World
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course gives students a basic introduction to sociological concepts and the way in which they can be studied using data analytic methods. It introduces students to basic data analytic coding. This will focus on one form of analysis (most likely text analysis), but the course aims to give students a reading familiarity with other forms of data analysis. Along with traditional sociological concepts like structure vs. agency and stratification, this course will introduce students to the idea that numbers, data, statistics, and their graphical representations are not necessarily neutral arbiters of truth, but rather important parts of the social construction of how we understand the world.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

SOCI-214 Race in America: Inequality, Immigration, and Other Issues
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: From the Black Lives Matter movement to debates about immigration and a color-blind America, race and ethnicity are at the forefront of contemporary public discourse. In this course students will be introduced to the various sociological perspectives and theoretical frameworks used to understand racial and ethnic relations in the United States. Racial and ethnic identities remain an important aspect of how people view themselves and others. In this course, we will discuss the dynamics of individual racial and ethnic groups including African Americans, Latino Americans, Native Americans, Asian Americans, and White Americans. We will also examine what the concepts of race and ethnicity mean and how they affect various aspects of American society.

SOCI-216 Special Topics in Sociology

SOCI-216CC Special Topics in Sociology: 'Cults, Conspiracies, and Moral Panics'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: Using case studies such as the Eugenics Movement, Jonestown, and the Kennedy Assassination, this course will examine how distrust of the government, originally motivated by logical concerns, has transformed the way people think about power in the postmodern era. The class will explore the difference between rational questioning of authority and blind distrust that leads to questionable claims. Through topics such as the War on Drugs, this class shows how the powerful are able to use biases and public fears to carry out their own, often counterproductive, measures. These case studies have issues like race and class at their core. We will examine how certain social issues have managed to endure.

SOCI-216MD Special Topics in Sociology: 'Sociology of Media'
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course explores the social organization of mass media systems as well as the various factors -- cultural, economic and political -- that have influenced their development. It asks: what is the connection between mass media and the large modern, democratic societies we inhabit? The first part of the course examines the historical development of mass media and the social theories that sought to interpret and explain its social impact. The second part considers the political and economic factors that structure contemporary mass media, paying particular attention to media deregulation and conglomeration. In the third part of the course, we explore the emergence of newer media forms such as the internet and digital/satellite television.

SOCI-216SC Issues in Sociology: 'Sociology of Culture'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: What is "culture"? How has it changed over time? This course examines the definition (including religion, language, food, etc.), the social settings in which culture is produced, and the products of culture we consume (literature, film, music, painting, theatre, fashion, popular magazines, graffiti, and television, etc.). Course topics include: how to analyze culture and who produces it, the forces shaping markets for artistic objects and performances, politics and culture, the effects of censorship, globalization, and class differences.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences
N. Michaud Wild
Prereq: Sociology 123.

Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Social networks are much more than the people you know on Facebook and Twitter. They affect everything from political beliefs to health outcomes to professional success. This course asks, "What are social networks?" and examines their impact on contemporary life. Students will develop the analytical skills to understand the formation, evolution, and significance of different relationship structures and the way they shape individuals' lives.

Restrictions: This course is offered to Sociology Majors only.
SOCI-231 Criminology
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course focuses on the historical and theoretical development of the major approaches to crime and criminality. Criminology began in the second half of the nineteenth century when its pioneers asked the 'big questions' pertaining to crime, society, and human nature. As criminology progressed, it narrowed its focus, concentrating on special areas, such as violent crime and property crime. As sociology began to dominate criminology, new theories were developed to explain the social facts gathered in the last 50 years.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

Prereq: 4 credits in Sociology department.

SOCI-234 Social Problems
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This is a course on the social construction of social problems. It devotes almost exclusive attention to how a 'problem' becomes a social problem; examining how atypical cases become regarded as typical; how definitions are expanded to inflate statistics; and how claim makers and advocacy groups manipulate the media to market social problems and solutions to the public.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

SOCI-316NT Special Topics in Sociology: 'Social Network Analysis: Analyzing Who You Know and How It Matters'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: Social networks analysis investigates social structures by looking at the actors in a system and the relationships between them. Its techniques can be used to map everything from Facebook friendship networks to the connections between corporate boards to status hierarchies in monkeys. In this class, students will learn the practical skills needed to do their own network analysis. The course uses R, but no prior programming experience is required.

SOCI-316PS Special Topics in Sociology: 'Intellectuals, Digital Media, and the Public Sphere'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This research seminar investigates how different kinds of stories unfold in contemporary public spheres. How do we make sense of pressing matters of common concern? It asks: what are the effects of a pervasive cultural distrust in social institutions, the widespread mediatization of everyday life, and the intercultural and intertextual nature of media texts themselves? Drawing from foundational texts about the role of intellectuals and the public sphere, students will be asked to develop an empirical case study to explore these questions and test their ideas.

SOCI-316UC Special Topics in Sociology: 'Wrongful and Unlawful Convictions in Capital Cases'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: The Death Penalty in America: Unjustly Convicted Death Row Inmates. This course will examine in detail the cases of all 130 death row inmates exonerated in the post-Furman era (1976-2009). It will focus on how the 130 men ended up on death row, as well as the process by which they gained their freedom. In addition, the course will spotlight the many proposals, videotaped police interrogations, eyewitness identifications, forensic science procedures, etc., designed to correct sources of mistakes; and assess their likelihood of successfully preventing both unjust and wrongful convictions in capital cases.
Applies to requirement(s): Social Sciences

Prereq: SOCI-123.

SOCI-316WT Special Topics in Sociology: 'Sociology of 9/11 and the War on Terror'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: We will explore the cultural and political impact of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001. The media’s role in constructing meanings will be a main organizing focus of the course. Using readings, discussions, assignments, and films, the course will allow students to form a picture of how 9/11 changed America and beyond. Course topics include: the way the mainstream media constructed 9/11 and alternate ways they could have; how popular culture and the Public Sphere responded; complex historical factors leading up to 9/11; reasons the attackers say they committed the attacks; ways the event changed culture and politics in the world; conspiracy theories.

SOCI-327 Social Inequality
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course is a critical survey of theoretical and empirical research on social inequality, stratification, and mobility. The central focus is class, race, and gender inequalities as they have changed during the post-World War II period in the United States (although we will look briefly at stratification regimes in other cultures and time periods). The concepts and methods of social stratification have wide application in sociology, economics, public policy, and administration contexts. As the course progresses, we will explore some of these applications as we wrestle with several policy issues currently confronting U.S. society.

SPAN-240FA Visual Cultures, An Introduction: 'Fascism in Plain Sight'
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course examines fascism from a visual perspective. Students learn about the history of the phenomenon through the lenses of cinema, television, and performance. The course begins with an overview of fascism that spans from 1920s Europe to the present. What exactly is fascism? What is its relationship to newly emergent populisms (often called “fascist”) and their own emphasis on spectacle? How does fascism visualize race, immigration, gender, sexuality, and violence? The course focuses mainly on fascism’s manifestations throughout the Spanish-speaking world. That is, what do Latin America and Spain teach us about its malleability and adaptability?

SPAN-330BW Advanced Studies in Identities and Intersections: 'De Brujas y Lesbiana and Other "Bad Women" in the Spanish Empire'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: During the Spanish Empire (16th-18th centuries), witches, prostitutes, transvestite warriors, lesbians and daring noblewomen and nuns violated the social order by failing to uphold the expected sexual morality of the ideal woman. They were silenced, criticized, punished, and even burned at the stake. Students will study contradictory discourses of good and evil and beauty and ugliness in relation to gender in the Spanish Empire. We will analyze historical and literary texts as well as film versions of so-called "bad" women -- such as the Celestina, Elena/o de Céspedes, Catalina de Erauso and Sor Juana Inés de la Cruz.

SPAN-330FA Advanced Studies in Identities and Intersections: 'Writing as Women: Female Autobiographical Writings in Latin America'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: Who speaks in a text? What relationship exists between literature, images and identity? How can we portray ourselves in specific socio-political contexts? How do women writers build themselves as authors in the context of a patriarchal literary tradition? How do they address problems of subjectivity, self-representation and self-legitimation? What are the challenges that the self-writing poses to women writers like a black Brazilian woman living in favelas who supports her family by digging through the garbage for paper and scraps to sell; a nun and poet during the colonial period in Mexico; a political prisoner and survivor from a Southern Cone concentration camp during the Argentinian dictatorship; K’iche’ political activist and survivor of the Guatemalan Civil War? How do those challenges interact with those of other women writes with more privileged positions in their societies? The course focuses on a heterogeneous corpus of Latin American texts (novels, diaries, letters, poetry and memoirs) that display a literary female personae in a variety of contexts and how they shape the process of construction of woman as author in Latin America from the colonial period until now.

SPAN-340AR Advanced Studies in Visual Cultures: 'Occupying the Arts: Activism, Crisis and Arts in Latin America'
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course we will situate contemporary Latin American arts in a historical and political context -- a moment of rupture that is informed by ongoing histories of racism, colonialism, sexism, authoritarianism, state terrorism, coloniality of power and debt. We will look at non canonical artists and movements between the sixties and now. What is artistic activism? What is social art? What is the role of creative industries in contexts of political oppression? What happens when art does not simply "talk about politics", but engages in a dialectical practice-moving between action and aesthetics? We will look at visual arts, performance and literature, also paying attention to the consumers.

SPAN-340GZ Advanced Studies in Visual Cultures: 'The Female Gaze in Latin America'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course addresses different ways in which women see the world and create worlds and experiences through filmmaking in Latin America. What role do women directors play in contemporary Latin American culture? How can feminist theoretical frameworks shape an understanding of the topics and forms in circulation? How do the affective labor issues regarding the film industry affect the women as film creators? With a focus on feature films directed by women working in diverse national and regional contexts, this course looks at female authorship and feminist aesthetics, Latin American cultural studies, postcolonial and subaltern studies, human rights, social movements and transnational politics in their interaction with films as discourses and practices that creates new ways of looking at and understanding the continent. We will focus specifically in the ways in which these directors/films address issues of gender identities, sexual orientation, intersectionality, the relation between culture- embodiment-senses, borders between the human, the animal and the monster.

SPAN-340MW Advanced Studies in Visual Cultures: 'Memory (of) War'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: The medium of cinema has shown persistent concern with war and memory, and has constituted a heated battleground for remembrance and erasure of the past. Through cinema, in other words, we most clearly see both memories of war and subsequent wars among competing memories. The Spanish Civil War (1936-1939), the repressive military regime of Francisco Franco (1939-1975), and recent attempts to "reappropriate" memory all dramatize these dynamics and raise a number of larger questions. How do destruction and devastation register through the visual? What happens when we attempt to police memory (through censorship, propaganda, etc.)? What and why do people choose to remember or forget?

SPAN-340PA Advanced Studies in Visual Cultures: 'Natural's Not in It: Pedro Almodóvar'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course studies the films of Pedro Almodóvar, European cinema's favorite bad boy turned acclaimed auteur. On the one hand, students learn to situate films within the context of contemporary Spanish history (the transition to democracy, the advent of globalization, etc.) in order to consider the local contours of postmodern aesthetics. On the other hand, the films provide a springboard to reflect on larger theoretical and ethical debates. For instance, what can a weeping transvestite teach us about desire? What happens when plastic surgery and organ transplants become metaphors? Under what circumstances, if any, can spectators find child prostitution cute?

Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: How do labor relationships and the social construction of what work means affect our lives as well as our communities? How do they contribute to shape our identities? In which ways can our gender, sexual orientation, race, social class or migratory status define our working possibilities? How do the concepts of marginality and informality emerge to identify the precarious Latin American labor conditions? Through Latin American films, students will problematize the idea of service, worker, industry, classic and non-classic work, sexual and affective work, and child labor, among others.

SPAN-350 Advanced Studies in Concepts and Practices of Power

Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: When and how did the notion of "development" emerge and spread? Why does nearly every country now aspire to it? What stigmas and hierarchies does the term "under-development" imply? Throughout Latin America, such language proves problematic not only as a material reality but also as a framework for understanding place, time, and selfhood. In this course, students rethink conventional wisdom about "underdevelopment" through the study of writers, filmmakers, and painters from Latin America working at different historical junctures of the twentieth century.

Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: The bloody dictatorships that took place during the 1970s and 1980s in the Southern Cone left behind a legacy of political violence, torture, sexual abuse, and disappearance of political dissidents. The Southern Cone states themselves became sadistic death machines like never before in these countries' histories. Bodies became territories of punishment and discipline as well as of struggle, resistance, and difference. We will analyze the way in which recent cultural production (film, novel, short stories, and theatre) of the Southern Cone and historical texts imagine and represent those "body struggles" through transvestite and queer bodies and dissident women's bodies, and by replacing the masculine icons of the left-wing militants and the state military terrorists of the 1970s.

SPAN-360 Advanced Studies in Language and Society
Description: This interdisciplinary seminar will focus on a comparative study of Romance languages or literatures. Topics will vary from semester to semester. Seminar discussions will be conducted in English, but students wishing to obtain language credit are expected to read works in at least one original language. Papers will be written in either English or the Romance language of the student's choice.

SPAN-360HE Advanced Studies in Language and Society: 'Heroes & Infidels: Masculine Identity and The Birth of Europe in Medieval Romance Classics'
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 4
Description: In this course we will read the canonical works that have shaped the national identity of European Romance countries such as Spain, France, Italy, Portugal, and Romania: from the medieval Chanson the Roland and Cantar del mio Cid to the early modern Don Quixote, Os Lusíadas, Orlando Furioso, and Mesterul Manole. We will discuss the performed masculinity of heroes, enemies, and mediators at the threshold between worlds. We will employ a decolonial critical approach to the Medieval, to question past and present wars against the infidel and their roles in the shaping of a modern European identity.

SPAN-360RL Advanced Studies in Language and Society: 'History of Romance Languages'
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This course examines the structural evolution of Romance languages from Vulgar Latin to contemporary forms. A chronological account will be organized around themes of persistence (inheritance from Latin) and innovation (structural change). We will begin by exploring different theories about linguistic change. Then, using concrete examples, we will analyze the main stages of development of Romance languages by focusing on different features at all linguistic levels and relating them to historical and sociological factors.

Statistics

STAT-140 Introduction to the Ideas and Applications of Statistics
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course provides an overview of statistical methods, their conceptual underpinnings, and their use in various settings taken from current news, as well as from the physical, biological, and social sciences. Topics will include exploring distributions and relationships, planning for data production, sampling distributions, basic ideas of inference (confidence intervals and hypothesis tests), inference for distributions, and inference for relationships, including chi-square methods for two-way tables and regression.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
A. Foulkes, E. Ray, The department
Advisory: 2 years of high school algebra

STAT-240 Elementary Data Analysis and Experimental Design
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: A fundamental fact of science is that repeated measurements exhibit variability. The course presents ways to design experiments that will reveal systematic patterns while 'controlling' the effects of variability and methods for the statistical analysis of data from well-designed experiments. Topics include completely randomized, randomized complete block, Latin Square and factorial designs, and their analysis of variance. The course emphasizes applications, with examples drawn principally from biology, psychology, and medicine.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
The department
Prereq: Any 100-level mathematics or statistics course.

STAT-241 Methods in Data Science
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course introduces methods in data science, including exploring problems, developing and implementing possible data analytic solutions and interpreting findings. Statistical programming and computational reasoning are emphasized. Topics include data visualization, data manipulation, data analysis and presentation. Reproducible research methods are explored and case studies are emphasized.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
The department
Prereq: STAT-140 and MATH-101.

STAT-242 Intermediate Statistics
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this course, students will learn how to analyze data arising from a broad array of observational and experimental studies. Topics covered will include exploratory graphics, description techniques, the fitting and assessment of statistical models, hypothesis testing, and communication of results. Specific topics may include multiple regression, ANOVA, and non-linear regression. Statistical software will be used.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences

STAT-340 Applied Regression Methods
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course includes methods for choosing, fitting, evaluating, and comparing statistical models; introduces statistical inference; and analyzes data sets taken from research projects in the natural, physical, and social sciences.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
E. Ray
Prereq: MATH-211 and STAT-242.

STAT-343 Mathematical Statistics
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course is an introduction to the mathematical theory of statistics and to the application of that theory to the real world. Topics include probability, random variables, special distributions, introduction to estimation of parameters, and hypothesis testing.
Applies to requirement(s): Math & Sciences
Prereq: MATH-102 and MATH-342.

PaGE: Business & Organizations

X.BUS-418 Project Management for Nonprofits and Social Entrepreneurs
Offered: January Intersession  |  Credits: 2
Description: There is one clear skill that all exceptional project managers (PMs) possess, "the ability to formulate alternatives." Those PMs with either the innate or developed ability to provide multiple solutions to problems and further create contingency plans if their solutions are not successful, find themselves working on projects that are delivered on-time, at or under-budget, and within the functional and/or technical satisfaction of their customer. Your goal is to identify and begin to develop this ability during this course. More importantly, it will provide you a platform to continue to grow, refine and implement this skill all under the umbrella of good project management approaches and practices. You will be able to identify, plan, schedule, cost estimate, implement and manage projects of virtually any size.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt C. Rich

X.BUS-429 Building Effective Organizations

X.BUS-429CU Building Effective Organizations: 'Inclusion and Cultural Competency'
Offered: January Intersession  |  Credits: 2
Description: Research indicates that organizations with greater diversity and inclusion outperform their peer organizations in terms of financial performance, innovation, and the ability to develop talent. In order to build an inclusive organization, it is critical that leaders are able to understand how to effectively engage and support culture and diversity in their organizations. In this course students will learn to define, assess and enhance cultural competence in their own work, their organizations and in community efforts. Student will examine case studies, learn to conduct a strategic audit, and build a cultural competency toolkit that will focus on relevant foundational and strategic issues.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt C. Rich

X.COMM-405 Speaking with Confidence: Leadership for Women
Offered: January Intersession  |  Credits: 1
Description: This course helps women professionals develop effective oral communication skills necessary for delivering keynote speeches, panel presentations, conference talks and other public speaking situations. Drawing on a variety of theatre techniques used by experienced actors to relax, focus their message, and connect with an audience, this course will coach students in the art of confident and powerful communication. Students will be guided to uncover their unique strengths, develop an authentic and personalized speaking style, and overcome obstacles to delivering their message. Working closely together in a safe and supportive environment, students will complete the course with the presentation of an inspiring speech.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt S. Daniels
Advisory: Geared toward women professionals.

X.COMM-413 Building Bridges: Facilitating Courageous Conversations
Offered: January Intersession  |  Credits: 2
Description: Building the capacity of groups to dialogue, create, and collaborate is an essential skill in professional settings across our region, nationally, and globally. This course offers a critical introduction to the principles and the role of intergroup dialogue and facilitation in creating transformative spaces for groups to explore differences and commonalities, increase awareness as individuals and as members of various social groups, build authentic relationships and identify actions that foster perspective taking and empathy. Through intergroup dialogue, role-play exercises, and assigned readings, participants will actively learn to engage in courageous conversations and facilitate groups across social divides to work together more effectively, collaboratively and compassionately.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

X.COMM-436 Persuasive Communications
Offered: Summer  |  Credits: 2
Description: The goal of persuasive communications is to influence people’s beliefs, attitudes and behaviors. We are exposed to hundreds of messages meant to persuade us daily from organizations and on social media. So what works, and why does it work? In this course we will investigate research on persuasion, receptiveness, and ethical frameworks for this work. Participants will learn techniques for creating, analyzing and critiquing persuasive messages. The course culminates in a final project in which participants create a campaign to change a target audience’s attitudes or behaviors about a subject of the students’ choosing.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

PaGE: Computing and Technology

X.CMPTC-443 Data Visualization: Presenting Data to Build Understanding and Insights
Offered: Summer  |  Credits: 2
Description: While many organizations have data, it is not always easy to translate that into a format that is easy for non-data people to quickly understand and interpret. In this course, participants will learn about different kinds of data and data structures, explore the theory and principles behind good design, and be able to articulate why certain visual designs are appropriate or inappropriate based on the data type. The final project in this class is to build data visualizations and a dashboard based either on data provided or data that is chosen by the participant. While this class is focused on technical skills, no prior experience with data, coding or computer science is necessary.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

X.EDUC-360 TESOL Certificate: Teaching English as a Second or Foreign Language
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4
Description: This four-week program is designed to provide participants with a foundation of practical pedagogy, linguistic knowledge, and classroom experience to prepare you for a job as a language instructor in an international environment. The course includes lecture and discussion, materials development sessions, microteaching workshops, and a teaching practicum with a minimum 6 hours of teaching experience. Participants will develop a teaching portfolio for use in their job search and receive a certificate of completion with a passing grade.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

X.EDUC-411 Policy Fluency: Current Issues in Education
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: In this learning experience, teachers will work on building up their “education policy fluency” based on their own school context. Students will read education news from across the country, including Education Week and blogs from a range of teacher and education bloggers with varied perspectives. Then they will dig into deeper understanding through weekly dialogue with each other and article authors and current teacher leader experts in the field. This course aims to help teachers gain an even stronger understanding of the policy world that influences what we do in the classrooms, in both public and private school settings.

Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAT, MAMT, and MATL students only

X.EDUC-413 Leading Colleagues Using Research: Bridging the Gap Between Research and Practice
Offered: Summer | Credits: 2
Description: Based on Domain 2 of the Teacher Leader Model Standards, this class helps build the skills, knowledge, and dispositions teacher leaders need to support colleagues in using the latest research and data to improve practice and student learning. Topics we will explore include types of research, examining the research process, the skills teacher leaders need to lead colleagues in using research to improve practice, research competencies, action research, data collection and analysis, how research makes instruction intentional and systematic, and how it allows us to make meaning out of numbers.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAT, MAMT, and MATL students only

X.EDUC-417 Teaching With Technology
Offered: Summer | Credits: 2
Description: Students will read current research examining the effectiveness of teaching with technology in PreK-12 classrooms as they explore questions about the role of technology in 21st century education. Students will experiment with a variety of tools that allow teachers to design effective lessons for a diverse range of learners. Students will focus on using technology to integrate students on IEPs, 504, and other learners with specific learning needs.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

X.EDUC-419 Independent Schools: New Teachers Seminar Practice
Offered: Summer | Credits: 2
Description: This course helps new independent school teachers answer questions that all teachers ask themselves on a daily basis: How do we best serve our students and their learning needs, across the multiple dimensions of learning styles, ethnicity, race, gender and class? As we design an experience to welcome and engage all of our students, how do we also nourish and sustain ourselves in this important work? The course includes cohort meetings as well as time for reflection, designing lesson plans, exploring how we organize our classrooms, and discussing how we support ourselves and each other.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAT students only.
Advisory: Section 01 is for middle/secondary education students. Section 02 is for elementary education students.

X.EDUC-420 Human Development

X.EDUC-420AD Human Development: 'Adolescent Development'
Offered: Summer | Credits: 2
Description: In this course you will develop a foundational framework of knowledge about physical, cognitive and social/emotional development that can inform your practice in the classroom. You will have opportunities to delve into the study of the age group that you intend to teach through individualized exploration, and we will discuss specific topics particularly relevant to education, such as language development, gender, moral development, the nature of intelligence, and motivation. By the end of this course, you should be conversant in developmental theory and able to use it to support the pedagogical choices you will make as an educator.

X.EDUC-422 Practicum Seminar on Teaching and Learning: Early Childhood and Elementary Education
Offered: Spring   | Credits: 4
Description: The Integrated Methods Seminar focuses on supporting and building on key aspects of the intensive full-time supervised student teaching experience. Teacher candidates learn how to develop integrated curriculum units, address complex behavioral and management issues with increasing sophistication, delve more deeply into theory and practice, develop peer coaching and mentoring skills, develop habits of reflection, and prepare for job interviews. Additionally, there is an emphasis on social studies content and pedagogy. Specifically, students will be studying content of a meaningful elementary and early childhood social studies curriculum and devising lessons and units that address multiple learning needs, planning effective and aligned assessments, infusing EL protocols and practices, and exploring integration opportunities. Linking critical learning from their work in social justice to issues of instructional equity and practice in the classroom is also part of the Seminar this semester.

X.EDUC-449 Equity and Social Justice: A Teacher's Role
Offered: Summer  |  Credits: 2
Description: In this course, participants will learn to address issues of social justice seamlessly and incorporate social justice into the design of their learning environments. This will be accomplished in three steps: First, participants will be assigned a self-awareness partner to process socialization around social issues. Second, participants will produce narratives about their social justice development. Finally, participants will create action plans that will create learning environments that don't shut down dialogues about difference, but open them up. Participants will then take this new learning and self-awareness and apply it to education systems outside of their classroom.

X.EDUC-489 Catapult! Capstone Course
Offered: Spring | Credits: 2-6
Description: This course is designed to catapult students' professional and personal leadership journey to the next level. It serves as an idea incubator, helping give teacher leaders the support and direction they need to propel themselves forward in their work and launch teacher-created ideas to improve education for all students. In this class, graduate students will demonstrate and document the impact of their knowledge gained throughout their journey at Mount Holyoke College. Students will choose a domain of the Teacher Leader Model Standards to focus their capstone work, then they will choose one of four pathways for the semester: a research study, a teacher-created project, a teacher leader internship, or National Board candidacy. They will apply their skill and knowledge under a teacher leader coach, who will support them and engage in weekly reflective practice of their teacher leadership work. At the end of the semester, teachers will complete and share a portfolio that demonstrates how their experiential learning experience has enhanced their practice as a leader and a teacher leader.

Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This licensure-level weekly seminar provides teacher candidates with opportunities to examine curriculum development models, develop curricular units utilizing state and national content area standards, review research-based models of classroom management, and engage in dialogue with practicing teachers regarding various aspects of teaching and learning. Additional topics covered will include: implementing translanguage pedagogy, developing productive partnerships between ELL and content area teachers, legal obligations of teachers, and home-school communication.

Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Reqmt R. Hornsby, A. Lopez
Instructor permission required? Y
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAT, MAMT, and MATL students only
Advisory: Students must be enrolled in the ELL MAT program and have successfully completed of all required MTELS. Students may only register for X.ELL-422 if concurrently taking X.ELL-423.

X.ELL-423 Student Teaching English Language Learners in Elementary Schools
Offered: Spring | Credits: 10
Description: Teacher candidates participate in full-time supervised student teaching of grades PK-6 ELLs from January to June. Teacher candidates will hone classroom management skills, implement extended curricular units designed to support students' development of disciplinary literacies, deliver lessons to support disciplinary English development in all content areas, and develop a wide range of assessment skills. Evaluation of performance is determined by on-site visits and written assignments. Successful completion of the course is premised based on satisfactory submission of the CAP requirements for licensure preparation.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Reqmt R. Hornsby
Instructor permission required? Y
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAT, MAMT, and MATL students only
Advisory: Students may only register for X.ELL-423 if concurrently taking X.ELL-422.
Notes: This course is graded on a credit/no credit basis.

X.ELL-426 Methods in Teaching English to K-12 Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL Methods)
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: This course focuses on applying theories, principles, and evidence-based methods of second language acquisition to the development of materials, lessons, and curricula for teaching disciplinary English to K-12 speakers of other languages. Teacher candidates will cultivate skills in the design and delivery of contextualized lesson plans, develop expertise in the selection and evaluation of materials such as textbooks, computer-assisted materials, and realia, and demonstrate their understanding of critical issues in teaching ELLs. Teacher candidates must simultaneously be participating in pre-practicum observations.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Reqmt N. Kositsky
Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.
Advisory: X.ELL-403 advised but not required.
Notes: Requires a field experience in an educational setting.

X.ELL-431 Student Teaching English Language Learners in Secondary Schools
Offered: Spring | Credits: 10
Description: Teacher candidates participate in full-time supervised student teaching of grades 5-12 ELLs from January to June. Teacher candidates will hone classroom management skills, implement extended curricular units designed to support students' development of disciplinary literacies, deliver lessons to support disciplinary English development in all content areas, and develop a wide range of assessment skills. Evaluation of performance is determined by on-site visits and written assignments. Successful completion of the course is premised based on satisfactory submission of the CAP requirements for licensure preparation.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Reqmt R. Hornsby
Instructor permission required? Y
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAT, MAMT, and MATL students only
Advisory: Students may only register for X.ELL-431 if concurrently taking X.ELL-433.
Notes: This course is graded on a credit/no credit basis.
X.ELL-433 Practicum Seminar in Teaching and Learning: Secondary ELL Education
Offered: Spring | Credits: 4
Description: This licensure-level weekly seminar provides teacher candidates with opportunities to examine curriculum development models, develop curricular units utilizing state and national content area standards, review research-based models of classroom management, and engage in dialogue with practicing teachers regarding various aspects of teaching and learning. Additional topics covered will include: implementing translanguaging pedagogy, developing productive partnerships between ELL and content area teachers, legal obligations of teachers, and home-school communication.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
R. Hornsby, A, Lopez
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAT, MAMT, and MATL students only
Advisory: Students must be enrolled in the ELL MAT program and have successfully completed all required MTELs. Students may only register for X.ELL=433 if concurrently taking X.ELL-431.

X.ELL-436 Teaching English Language Learners Internship 1
Offered: Fall | Credits: 2
Description: Students pursuing an additional license in teaching English language learners are expected to complete a supervised field experience of at least 60 hours in an approved ELL program in a public school setting (e.g., ELL content classroom, push-in teaching, pullout to separate classroom). In addition to the field experience component, students attend biweekly course meetings, during which they will have the opportunity to learn more about ELL program models and policy trends, English language development standards (e.g., WIDA, Next Generation ESL), tracking student development, advocacy, professional collaboration, and leveraging an additional license on the job market.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
K. Accurso, R. Hornsby
Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.

X.ELL-438 Teaching English Language Learners Internship 2
Offered: Spring | Credits: 3
Description: Students pursuing an additional license in teaching English language learners are expected to complete a supervised field experience of at least 100 hours in an approved ELL program in a public school setting (e.g., ELL content classroom, push-in teaching, pullout to separate classroom). In addition to the field experience component, students attend weekly course meetings, during which they will have the opportunity to learn more about language development in the four domains (listening, speaking, reading, writing), planning curriculum for effective English language instruction in K-12 standards based settings, and ELLs and technology.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
K. Accurso, R. Hornsby
Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.

X.ELL-451 English Language Development Standards and Assessment Framework
Offered: January Intersession | Credits: 1
Description: This course introduces teacher candidates to the WIDA English language development standards and assessment framework, with a particular focus on understanding the large-scale standardized assessment of English language learners (e.g., WIDA ACCESS 2.0). This course will prepare teacher candidates to understand test design, prepare to participate in administrator training, and interpret score reports in ways that support their ability to use assessment to inform instruction and communicate with students and families about students' English language development needs and progress.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
A. Lugo
Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.
Prereq: X.ELL-418.

X.ELL-463 Teaching English Language Learners: Sheltered English Immersion Endorsement Standalone
Offered: Summer | Credits: 3
Description: This course is offered for teachers seeking SEI endorsement. It serves as the ReTELL course that provides an overview of pragmatic pedagogical strategies for including English Language Learners in content area classroom instruction. Readings in language acquisition theory, language learning and teaching, effective lesson design and assessment, Sheltered Instruction Observation Protocol and knowledge of intercultural learners are covered. Students will have experience developing and adapting lessons and curriculum to address the needs of students in their pre-practicum settings.

Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Reqmt

X.MATH-400 Developing Mathematical Ideas: Building a System of Tens
Offered: Fall | Credits: 2
Description: Participants will explore the base-ten structure of the number system, consider how that structure is exploited in multi-digit computational procedures, and examine how basic concepts of whole numbers reappear when working with decimals. They will study the various ways children naturally tend to think about separating and combining numbers and what children must understand in order to work with numbers in these ways.
Crosslisted as: MATH-158ST
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Reqmt
M. Flynn, S. Charbonnet
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAT, MAMT, and MATL students only

X.MATH-401 Developing Mathematical Ideas: Making Meaning for Operations
Offered: Fall | Credits: 2
Description: This course provides opportunities for participants to examine the actions and situations modeled by the four basic operations. The course will begin with a view of young children's counting strategies as they encounter word problems, moves to an examination of the four basic operations on whole numbers, and revisits the operations in the context of rational numbers.
Crosslisted as: MATH-158MM
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Reqmt
L. Lamb, T. Kepler
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAT, MAMT, and MATL students only

X.MATH-402 Developing Mathematical Ideas: Examining Features of Shape
Offered: Summer | Credits: 2
Description: Participants examine aspects of two-dimensional and three-dimensional shapes, develop geometric vocabulary, and explore both definitions and properties of geometric objects. The seminar includes a study of angle, similarity, congruence, and the relationships between three-dimensional objects and their two-dimensional representations. Participants examine how students develop these concepts through analyzing print and video cases as well as reading and discussing research articles.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Reqmt
A. Chang, S. Bent
Instructor permission required? Y
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAMT students only

X.MATH-404 Developing Mathematical Ideas: Working With Data
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 2
Description: Students will work with the collection, representation, description, and interpretation of data. They will learn what various graphs and statistical measures show about features of the data, study how to summarize data when comparing groups, and consider whether the data provides insight into the questions that led to data collection.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Reqmt
The department
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAMT students only

X.MATH-405 Developing Mathematical Ideas: Measuring Space in One, Two, and Three Dimensions
Offered: Summer | Credits: 2
Participants will examine different aspects of size, develop facility in composing and decomposing shapes, and apply these skills to make sense of formulas for area and volume. They will also explore conceptual issues of length, area, and volume, as well as their complex interrelationships.

Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

Y. Chan

Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAMT students only

X.MATH-406 Developing Mathematical Ideas:
Patterns, Functions, and Change
Offered: Summer  |  Credits: 2

Description: Participants discover how the study of repeating patterns and number sequences can lead to ideas of functions, learn how to read tables and graphs to interpret phenomena of change, and use algebraic notation to write function rules. With a particular emphasis on linear functions, participants also explore quadratic and exponential functions and examine how various features of a function are seen in graphs, tables, or rules. Participants examine how students develop these concepts through analyzing print and video cases as well as reading and discussing research articles.

Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

V. Bastable, M. Flynn J. Hanson, K. Schweitzer

Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAMT students only

X.MATH-407 Reasoning Algebraically About Operations
Offered: Summer  |  Credits: 2

Description: Participants examine generalizations at the heart of the study of operations in the elementary grades. They express these generalizations in common language and in algebraic notation, develop arguments based on representations of the operations, study what it means to prove a generalization, and extend their generalizations and arguments when the domain under consideration expands from whole numbers to integers.

Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

J. Szymaszek, K. Turner

Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAMT students only

X.MATH-411 Math for Elementary Teachers
Offered: Summer  |  Credits: 2

Description: This course equips educators planning to teach mathematics at the elementary (K-6) level with the foundations for teaching math and an understanding of the "why" underlying the formulas, procedures, and reasoning. Using an inquiry-based approach, future teachers learn about a range of topics relevant to elementary school (K-6) math pedagogy and curricula. Topics covered include: number sense, operations, data analysis, functional relationships, algebraic thinking, and geometry/measurement. At the end of the course, students are prepared to meet both federal Common Core standards and Massachusetts state standards, and to support their students by using best practices in math education.

Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

J. Agron

Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.

X.MATH-424 Developing Mathematical Reasoning
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 4

Description: Developing Mathematical Reasoning (DMR) builds on and extends the work of Connecting Arithmetic to Algebra. Participants will work with a five-phase model for instruction in mathematical argument: Noticing, Articulating, Representing Specific Instances, Creating Mathematical Argument, and Comparing and Contrasting Operations. They will examine and implement a set of lessons designed to engage their own students with generalizations about the operations using these phases of instruction. DMR investigates how this approach to mathematics thinking supports a range of mathematics learners including those who have difficulty with grade-level mathematics and those who need additional challenge.

Advisory: X.MATH-460 Connecting Arithmetic to Algebra.
X.MATH-460 Connecting Arithmetic to Algebra
Offered: Fall | Credits: 4
Description: Connecting Arithmetic to Algebra (CAA) is a year-long professional development experience in which teachers consider generalizations that arise from the study of number and operations in grades 1 through 7. They examine cases of students who are engaged in the process of articulating general claims, working to understand those claims, and learning how to prove them. The course also focuses on how this approach to mathematical thinking supports a range of mathematics learners, including those who have difficulty with grade-level mathematics and those who need additional challenge.

X.MEDIA-411 Visual Literacy and Media
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year | Credits: 2
Description: Most of us are constantly inundated by visual messages, but do we know or understand the design, intent and the impact of these communications? This intensive, interdisciplinary course provides theories and tools to critically analyze, interpret and read/understand visual messages presented through a variety of forms of media, such as film, photography, video, digital games, and the internet. Students will develop critical and cultural visual literacy analysis skills mainly through the language of cinematic conventions such as composition, lighting, movement, editing and symbolism in Chinese film and apply them to other cultural contexts and their own lives. They will also examine the role and influence of media and how social dimensions such as gender, race, class and ethnicity are portrayed.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
Y. Ma

X.MEDIA-426 New Media and Activism
Offered: Summer | Credits: 2
Description: New media technologies such as video-sharing websites, podcasts, and social media have altered how we interact and consume news and information. While activists use these tools to raise awareness, educate citizens and mobilize support, these efforts can be overshadowed by corporations or political action groups with their own agendas and well-funded media campaigns. In this course participants explore how to use new media strategically to address social, economic and environmental issues, how to analyze media representations of these issues, and how to design media campaigns that build communities, organize efforts, and influence policy; culminating in a final project that can be applied in a professional context.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
M. Polish

X.MEDIA-429 Media Production Topics
Description: These courses offer conceptual knowledge and basic design principles as well as hands-on instruction to use digital media tools such as video, audio, podcasting, websites and other emerging technologies. Each topics course will be unique in its application of one or more media platforms, but they will all be designed for the production of dynamic, high quality and compelling content that is ready for dissemination.

X.MEDIA-429AP Media Production Topics: ‘Audio Production’
Offered: Summer | Credits: 2
Description: In this course, participants will explore both the artistic and technical issues relevant to preparing music and sound for podcasts, video, and the web. Topics will include: acoustic theory, audio animation and sound effects, sound design, multichannel sound, mixing audio and audio processing techniques. No prior experience is necessary to take this course. This course will prepare participants to work with music and sound for both artistic and professional purposes.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
M. Polish

X.MEDIA-429VP Media Production Topics: ‘Video Production’
Offered: January Intersession | Credits: 2
Description: This is a hands-on foundational class exploring every step of video production for educators, artists and other professionals in the community who want to create engaging, eye-catching videos. We will cover all of the components of production, including aesthetics and mechanics, narrative development, the role of audio, and the conceptual and technical aspects of editing. You are invited to come with a story to tell or a product, service or brand to promote. Plan to dedicate a significant amount of time outside of class sessions to readings, viewings, and practical assignments to expand your perspective of the power of communication through video. Students will complete a series of in-class exercise pieces, and each will make a short video as a final project.

Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt M. Polish

Notes: Please come to class with your own external hard drive with a minimum capacity of 500GB, and also bring any equipment with video capabilities that you would like to use, including cell phones, tablets, DSLR cameras, camcorders, etc. A limited number of ca

X.MGMT-416 Participatory Community Development

Offered: Summer  |  Credits: 2
Description: Participatory community development (PCD) is an approach to working with local communities in partnership with government and non-government agencies. The goal of PCD is to empower local community members to be involved in the research, design, implementation, advocacy, monitoring, and evaluation of community projects, including those that generate sustainable sources of new income, food, and services. In this course, participants will explore different benefits and forms of PCD through case studies and methods of facilitating participatory project planning, and develop their ability to anticipate and evaluate the impacts/consequences of the projects.

Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt F. Hasan

Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.

X.MGMT-429 Building Effective Organizations

X.MGMT-429CP Building Effective Organizations: 'Creativity, Problem Solving and Decision Making'

Offered: Summer  |  Credits: 2
Description: Being a good leader often requires creativity, problem solving and decision making in contexts where there often are limited resources, not enough information, and urgency. This is a cognitive psychology approach to understanding how mental processes, including attention, perception, creativity, and problem solving can be harnessed to improve decision making for individuals and organizations.

Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

The department
Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.

X.MGMT-429MM Building Effective Organizations: 'Mentorship Models to Grow Leadership'
Offered: Summer  |  Credits: 2
Description: Mentorship is a powerful tool for personal and professional growth; it provides support, insights, feedback, and helps people develop their knowledge, networks and capacities. People taking on new challenges can benefit from both formal and informal mentorship. In this social psychology approach to leadership, participants will explore the theories and research on mentorship, investigate different models and strategies for mentorship, and design a mentorship program for a particular organization or context (including businesses, non-profits, volunteer organizations, and community projects).
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.

X.MGMT-441 Diversity and Intercultural Management
Offered: Summer  |  Credits: 2
Description: In today’s globally interconnected world, organizational success is often dependent on the performance of teams that interact across significant distances and multiple cultural perspectives, internally and with their constituents. This course is designed to increase cultural competency and the success of leaders by combining an exploration of academic research and case studies with opportunities for application. By the end of the course, participants will understanding the cultural dimension of managing diverse and dispersed team members, learn to foster positive interactions, facilitate communication, and be able to identify and manage conflict more effectively.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

X.MGMT-452 Fair Trade and Sustainable Tourism
Offered: Summer  |  Credits: 2
Description: Partnerships to support fair trade and sustainable tourism often operate in a complex context of a) individual as well as institutional stakeholders with different amounts of power and b) economic, social and environmental goals that may not be shared. In this course, participants explore dimensions of these types of partnerships, the role of ethics, how to create shared goals and strategies, establishing structures to support and sustain high quality relationships, and how to assess partnerships for success. The culminating project in this course is to develop a partnership plan that could be used to create a new relationship between at least two key stakeholder groups or organizations.

X.MTHED-404 Effective Practices for Advancing the Teaching and Learning of Mathematics
Description: The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics identified eight practices for effective teaching of mathematics. Teacher leaders from around the country have been strategizing and working to develop unique ways to implement these practices in K-12 classrooms. Each live online session will explore a different practice in depth with one of the teacher leaders who designed it. Students will then work to implement the practice in their own classrooms and analyze how it affects student learning.

X.MTHED-404DV Effective Practices for Advancing the Teaching and Learning of Mathematics: "Developing Students' Mathematical Sense-Making"
Offered: Spring | Credits: 2
Description: Recent math reform efforts emphasize the importance of developing students' conceptual understanding over teaching procedures for students to memorize. For many teachers, this is a shift in practice because their own experiences in mathematics have been with the latter. In this course we will draw upon some of the leading experts in the field to explore how we can develop students' understanding in the domains of counting and cardinality, geometry, number and operations in base ten, algebraic reasoning, measurement, and functions. In each class session, we will explore one or more domains in depth as we engage in mathematical tasks and analyze student thinking through video and print cases.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt S. Bent, M. Flynn

X.MTHED-408 Professional Development for Coaching Mathematics
Offered: Summer | Credits: 2
Description: This course is designed for elementary math specialists with responsibilities for supporting teachers in the development of strong mathematics education programs. Participants explore issues related to: learning mathematics while in the context of teaching; facilitating the professional development of colleagues; teachers' and students' ideas about mathematics and learning; and fostering a stance of collaborative investigation. By way of a central theme of mathematics learning, the institute will offer coaches opportunities to explore, through the coaching perspective, ideas of number and geometry in the elementary grades.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt P. Wagner
Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.

X.MTHED-409 Educational Leadership I: Exploring the Rules of Math Teacher Leadership
Offered: Summer | Credits: 2
Description: This course will explore the roles of teacher leadership in math education at the local, state, and national level. Topics will include coaching, mentoring, writing (blogs, journals, op-eds, articles), professional learning communities (virtual and face-to-face), and advocacy. Participants will consider current issues and challenges facing students and teachers with regard to math education and will work to develop action plans to address these issues in the coming school year.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt M. Allen
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAMT students only

X.MTHED-410 Educational Leadership II: Facilitating Professional Learning
Offered: Summer | Credits: 2
Description: This institute focuses on learning to teach one of the Developmental Mathematical Ideas (DMI) modules. Participants will choose a particular DMI module on which to concentrate their facilitation work. The institute will include examination of the central mathematical ideas of the module, identifying key goals for each session, discussion of the process of interacting with participants both in the institute sessions and through written responses, as well as opportunities for practice facilitation.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt V. Bastable
Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.
Advisory: Prior experience with a DMI seminar recommended.

X.MTHED-411 Educational Leadership II: Facilitating Adult Learning
Offered: Summer  |  Credits: 2
Description: This course provides opportunities for participants to develop skills and knowledge to enable them to design and implement professional learning opportunities in mathematics for adults. Activities focus on four aspects: the importance of identifying key ideas and goals for professional learning, strategically using both small and whole group formats, an analysis of the range of professional learning opportunities for teachers, and opportunities to practice facilitating professional learning with an audience of teachers.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt M. Flynn
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAMT students only

X.MTHED-412 Mathematics Coaching: Designing Effective Professional Development
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 3
Description: This course provides opportunities for math specialists/coaches of grades K-8 to design, develop, critique, implement, give, and receive feedback on mathematics professional development experiences that align with the Common Core standards and the particular needs of the school/district’s participating staff. Topics include staying focused on mathematics while developing collaborative relationships, communicating with teachers and administrators, developing leadership skills, and continuing to be a learner. Emphasis will be placed on learning how to move a school and/or district toward their mathematics goals by providing both support and press for teachers who teach mathematics.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt The department
Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.
Advisory: Prior experience with a DMI seminar recommended.

X.MTHED-413 Supporting the Range of Learners in Mathematics Classrooms
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 2
Description: Every teacher wants each student to achieve to the highest levels. And yet knowing how to do this can feel hard, overwhelming, and/or unclear. To make diverse classrooms feel more manageable and productive, this course will provide concrete methods and strategies teachers can use in classrooms to support all students. Students will engage in interesting mathematics every session; leave each session with something concrete to try in your classroom; read and analyze current research on supporting diverse learners; research your own students through case work and discussions with colleagues; and have new thought partners and colleagues who will be invested in your students’ success.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt J. Sunkle, P. Wagner
Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.

X.MTHED-422 Research on Learning: Implementing the Common Core Math Practice Standards
Offered: Not Scheduled for This Year  |  Credits: 2
Description: This course is focused on implementing mathematics instruction to support the development of conceptual understandings of mathematics. Topics include creating a classroom climate for productive mathematics discussion, posing open-ended math tasks, asking probing questions, and exploring teacher moves that both challenge and support individual student learning. Analyzing classroom cases of practice will be a key feature.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt The department
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAMT students only
Advisory: Prior experience with a DMI seminar recommended.

X.MTHED-465 Action Research on Learning and Teaching
Offered: Fall and Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: This course will include action research on the mathematics learning of students and pedagogical moves of teachers. Participants will produce written cases of practice based on audio or videotaped classroom discussions and interviews with their own students. Participants will analyze their own cases and those of their colleagues to examine the learning of students and the impact of teacher moves. Course instructors will also provide individual feedback based on the classroom cases.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
The department
Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAMT students only Notes: Online.

X.MTHED-466 Action Research on Math Teacher Leadership
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: The course involves action research on the impact of teacher leadership roles in mathematics education. Students will implement the action plan created during Educational Leadership I, develop a capstone project, and report the results so the group can provide critical feedback and support. The scalable nature of this work allows each student to define a leadership role and project to fit their interests and professional goals.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAMT students only
Advisory: X.MTHED-409 Educational Leadership I.

X.MTHED-473 Creating Accessible Mathematics Classrooms
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 2
Description: Supporting students with disabilities in mathematics can be enhanced by developing teachers' mathematical content and pedagogical knowledge. This course will broaden teachers' understanding of universal design for learning, EDC accessibility strategies, and the implementation of effective instructional routines. The course will also review the history of the disability rights movement with a lens on mathematics education and the importance of respecting neurodiversity.
Participants in the course will leave with specific skills and strategies they can implement in their own educational settings

X.SPED-416 Interventions for Behavior and Classroom Management
Offered: January Intersession  |  Credits: 1
Description: In this course students will review research, theories, and practices for responding to challenging behavior. Topics will include establishing effective rules and procedures, classroom-and school-wide behavior management systems, and approaches for addressing individual student behavior and developing relationships with children and support professionals to improve behavior across settings.
Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt

Restrictions: This course is limited to Mount Holyoke MAT, MAMT, and MATL students only

X.SPED-421 Assistive Technology for Special Education
Offered: Fall  |  Credits: 1
Description: This course provides an introduction to teaching with technology and, more specifically, how assistive technologies can be used by individuals with disabilities, PreK-12, to enhance the teaching and learning experience. Students will have the opportunity to explore a range of devices, applications, software, etc. that enhance access to academic and non-academic learning in schools. Course assignments will help students develop an understanding of how to assess student assistive technology needs, employ and monitor interventions, and improve teaching through the use of technology.

Restrictions: This course is offered for graduate students only.

X.SPED-422 Practicum Seminar: Teaching and Learning for Moderate Disabilities Licensure PreK-8
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 4
Description: During seminar students will discuss the teaching of children PreK-8 with mild and moderate disabilities in school settings, review research-based models of instruction, and engage in dialogue with professionals regarding numerous aspects of teaching and student learning. Topics covered include: preparing and implementing IEPs, designing and modifying curriculum, use of assistive technology, developing a positive classroom climate and addressing challenging behavior, collaboration with other agencies, and the legal regulations governing special education. In addition, seminars will include discussion of best practices for educating English language learners and for developing effective communication between home and school.

X.SPED-423 Student Teaching in Inclusive and Substantially Separate Classrooms for Students PreK-8 with Moderate Disabilities
Offered: Spring  |  Credits: 10
Description: Teacher Candidates (TC) undertake full-time supervised student teaching from January through June in PreK-8 classrooms for students with Mild/Moderate Disabilities. The student teaching is comprised of over 600 hours of mentored experience, two-thirds of which will occur in inclusive settings and one-third in a substantially separate setting, to satisfy the state requirements for licensure. Evaluation of performance is determined by on-site visits, written assignments, and successful completion of the course is verified based on satisfactory submission of the CAP requirements for licensure preparation.

X.WRTNG-406 Creative Inquiry and Writing a Research
Offered: January Intersession | Credits: 2
Description: This course will immerse students in writing as informal research practice. Taking as our starting point contemporary American writing addressing the labor conditions of late capitalism, we will examine strategies for creative inquiry used to document and research topics not normally or officially investigated. Due to the length of this course, we'll focus particularly on short forms and generating new writing, as opposed to revision and critique. Topics to be discussed will include research as community building, fragment as form, and the collapsing of high vs low culture in contemporary American experimental writing. Students will write into a variety of forms modeled by readings from Jill Magi, Bhanu Kapil, Dodie Bellamy, Brandon Brown and Stephanie Young, among others.

Applies to requirement(s): Meets No Distrib. Rqmt
L. Fridman
Advisory: English (reading and writing) fluency is required. Previous experience with creative writing is advised, but not required.
Notes: Requirements of the course will include daily class participation including reflective and critical posts, as well as a final portfolio of original writing.
